DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

Democratic primaries, or delegate election will take place on Saturday afternoon next, 5th, at the placing in nomination a Democratic ticket to be elected. The field is well covered by candidates for the various offices to be filled in the county, and each candidate for nomination has been before the people sufficiently for them to become acquainted. It is highly important that every Democrat in the county turn out on Saturday and voice his sentiments of choice in nominating the candidates. Too little importance and insignificance is indulged in by some who never go to the primaries, and if their favorite is not successful, all is done to defeat the ticket.

Every Democrat owes it as his duty to the party to turn out on Saturday and have his say as to who shall be nominated for the offices.

At no time have there been as good men seeking the nomination as there are this year. Each has a record of which they can be proud, and the successful nominee will surely meet with a rousing majority in November. The field has been thoroughly covered. Each candidate has met with encouraging success, and as there are many candidates for the few offices there cannot help but be bitter disappointment on the part of some, but let them abide by the decision of the county convention. Stand by the ticket and give it your full support, and abide your time.

The candidates to be nominated are one for sheriff, one for treasurer, one for register, one for recorder, two for commissioner, one for coroner, and two for auditors.

THE BELLEFONTE Republican has been trying to indulge in a few caustic remarks in vilifying our present competent board of commissioners, and every action of the board is commented upon and political timber made of it. The recent howl goes up from the board improving the Court house yard, which should call forth words of commendation from the Republican, if it has the beautifying of Bellefonte at heart. They howled because the yard was left in the shape it was, and now they howl because it has been beautified. The paper simply wants to talk.

COMMON HONESTY.

Special attention has been given by the newspapers to the fact that the two daughters of a deceased Italian banker, who failed in Philadelphia, have been laboring to rescue their father's reputation by paying from their personal earnings, as far as possible, the debts which he incurred. There is something touching in this fidelity to a dead father's memory, in the sense of honor to which these young women have shown their loyalty, in order to free their family name from the blot of bankruptcy.

Yet the very praise and approval which these young women have attracted by their self sacrifice suggest the question whether common honesty, that sense of noblesse oblige in dealings between man and man, which used to be so general in times that are past, is not on the decline to-day. When a bankrupt pays debts long due his conduct is commented upon as strange, if not inexplicable, and sometimes it is slyly intimated that the object of his belated honesty in regard to almost forgotten obligations is to cover the fresh tracks of recent sharp practice.

It is humiliating that common honesty—for, after all, the payment of debts whether due for a long or a short period is nothing more—should be a subject of incredulity and surprise. The Press believes that the blunting of honor's Damascus blade is not so general as appearances would indicate. But there are too many signs that honesty in business is not always held to be the simple duty of every business man, and that ultimate success is too often accepted as atonement for flagrant breaches of integrity.

These remarks we copy from the New York Press, and are worthy common study. Common honesty seems to be a rare virtue now-a-days, and the common swindler and cheat in business affairs comes under your eye at almost every corner. To refuse to pay an honest debt is thievery of the lowest order, and the guilty try all the time to pass themselves off as respectable and even Christians, while the clothes they wear, the food they eat, and articles of value which they obtain, are unpaid because the virtue of common honesty is not in their souls. It is with regret that the REPORTER feels it a duty to add these comments to the clipping from the Press.

HON. B. K. FOCHT, editor of the Lewisburg Saturday News, is prominently mentioned as a candidate for the republican State Treasurership. Focht is the Union county representative in the Legislature. He made a record during the last session and is a young man of no little ability. He is a pusher and if he fails to make connections with the nomination for treasurership it will be because he was not smiled upon by the bosses.

JUSTICE WILLIAMS of the Supreme Court, has declared the Penrose bill unconstitutional and the Philadelphia building commission is back at the old stand plundering the taxpayers of Philadelphia for a little more than sixteen millions. Justice Williams evidently is a candidate for a position on the commission, and by his miscarriage of the law he should have one.

THE TAX ON STATE BANK NOTES.

The tax on State bank notes was not imposed for revenue purposes, but to suppress their circulation, just as the tax on oleomargarine was established in an endeavor to discourage its manufacture in favor of a rival product. The Supreme Court sustained the bank note tax in an evasive opinion, that it could not inquire into the motives of Congress in passing it. If for revenue purposes, it was constitutional. If to prohibit them, it was unconstitutional. The tax standing as constitutional, it is urged that it is within the power of Congress to partially repeal or modify it, say that the law levying the tax be so modified as to exempt from its operations any and all State bank issues for the redemption of which ample security should be made by a reserve of specie, and the deposit of interest paying bonds on the principle of the national banking system. The Philadelphia Record suggests this plan, and asks "if Congress can tax all State bank issues, why might not Congress remove the tax from such issues only as should rest on a solid specie-paying basis?"

Certainly it would seem to be within the financial statesmanship of the day to devise a plan by which State bank issues can be made absolutely safe, and the important element of national supervision maintained. There must be conditions precedent to the removal of the tax. There are plenty of first-class securities that could be made the basis of the circulation of these State banks. A late Government estimate puts the amount of outstanding State, county and municipal bonds at $3,000,000,000. For the most part they are just as good security as Government bonds. The outstanding bonds of a dozen States, cities and counties of the country, which have never been quoted below par, amount probably to $500,000,000, and would constitute an admirable basis for banking. Such a deposit would guarantee a larger issue of bank notes than the national banks put forth at any time in their history. Of course, the difficulty of Federal supervision comes in as an important factor, but the adjustment of that problem hardly passes the limits of statesmanship.—Pittsburg Post.

ENDORSES CLEVELAND.

Ex-Secretary Whitney has sound views upon the financial situation and endorses Cleveland's ideas as safe. Mr. Whitney advises to shut off the silver flood, and favors the equalization of taxation. He thinks the currency question not the most vital one, and that taxation on the country is too high—it needs to be equalized and reduced to make the country prosperous.

Lewis, Bellefonte, take the lead in suits for men and boys. Nothing quite so stylish or better made. Call and be convinced.

HOW UNCLE SAM BUYS GOLD.

This is from the St. Louis Globe: A place seldom visited by the public is the Assay Office of the United States, where gold is bought for the Government. There are but four such offices in the United States, one in St. Louis, one in Helena, Mon., one in Boise City, Idaho, a fourth at Charlotte, N. C., and the fifth at the branch mint in Denver. The office here is in charge of Mr. Elliot Jewett, with two assistants. It is as complete an office as can be found in the world, being equipped entirely new since its location in the Old Custom House. As the agent of the Government, Mr. Jewett, buys all gold offered in amounts above $100, paying for the same as soon as it can be melted and assayed. A great many people are ignorant of the fact that the Government buys gold outside of the mints. The moment the assayer begins to drum trade, too, that moment he drives it away. By such action he causes the public to believe that he represents a private company, speculating on its purchases. This idea is encouraged by the gold buyers, jewelers, pawnbrokers and others who would prefer a field clear of the United States. As a matter of fact, it makes no difference to the assayer whether he receives one ounce or 1,000,000 ounces, as he is paid a certain fixed salary. He receives anything in the shape of gold, whether it be the so-called retorts, bars, dust or jewelers' scraps. Whatever shape it is in, he takes it for what it is worth. The Government pays the expense of ascertaining this worth.

The process of receiving and depositing of the gold is of considerable interest. On delivery it is deposited on scales capable of weighing 5,000 ounces Troy, though so delicately balanced that Mr. Jewett uses them to weigh letter mail. Gold brought in early in the morning can be disposed of so the seller may receive his check in the afternoon. On being weighed a check is made of each separate lot, designating the weight, name of seller, origin, etc. When the melting is completed and the gold turned out in bars and assay made, a complete record is made, showing the origin, where it is possible to learn it, and the degree of fineness of the metal. The bar is then stamped ready for shipment to the mint at Philadelphia. This stamp is protected from counterfeiting by the same penalties provided against counterfeiting coin.

A FAIR DISTRIBUTION.

HOWARD, Pa., July 20th, 1893. To the Democracy of Centre County: We take pleasure, as citizens of Howard Boro and vicinity, in bringing to public notice the claim of one of our representative Democrats as a candidate for the nomination for County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket.

For almost thirty years many of us have labored earnestly in this portion of the county for the success of our party, without a request for recognition in any of the county offices. In all that time but one or two in Howard township, and none in Howard boro, have been called to serve our people at the county seat. In casting about for a fit representative of industry, integrity and sterling Democracy of our community we have kept closely in view the critical judgment of the people, and the duties of the office to be filled.

We cheerfully concede that live, energetic, scrupulously honest and obliging persons are most entitled to confidence and advancement in the line of public service; and we hereby certify that in H. A. Moore these qualities are happily blended. His faithful observance of public, as well as private obligations; his earnest, but conservative Democracy; his genial and obliging disposition and his general business training and efficiency, commend him to your confidence.

We are for him, and would like you to co-operate with us to secure his nomination—because of his superior qualifications, because of the claims of our locality, and finally, because his official career, we are confident, would bring to us and our party substantial advantage and lasting credit.

Very Truly Yours,
BALSER WEBER, J. A. WOODWARD,
K. G. SHUTT, MICHAEL CONFER,
A. W. GARDNER, PETER ROBB, SR.

A Fast Run.

The Keystone express, which is the east-bound counterpart of the Columbia express, over the Pennsylvania railroad, last Sunday made the fastest run ever made between Altoona and Harrisburg, the time being 132 miles in 145 minutes.
