JAMES DENTON HANCOCK, Democratic Candidate for Congressman-at-Large.

AN AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL POLICY.

Relief is at hand for the American industry from the burden of monopoly taxation by which it is now paralyzed. Free raw materials, cheapened production, enlarged consumption, with wider markets—this is the only policy that can revive our manufacturers and give employment to our workmen.

The industrial situation of this country is well summed up by Mr. Wilson in the course of his exposition of the new tariff schedules. In every great line of manufactures he truly says, we can produce in from six to nine months enough to supply our home market for a year.

The alternative has been the formation of trusts to keep down the production. Hence frequent suspensions, with the cessation of wages, while prices to the consumer are maintained. The present tariff is thus in the interests of capital only and against the interest of labor.

The new tariff policy is thus full of hope for every branch of American industry. It is a policy of unimpeded growth and expansion, in which all can share, as against a policy of coddling and contraction that benefits the few at the expense of the many.

It is an American policy. It will open to this great country, with its infinite resources, the markets of the world. It will start up our factories, revive our commerce and carry American products and American influence everywhere.

A BABY alligator will double its size in two days on a diet of wind. Golly, if newspaper men could only do that, it would save lots of dunning.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to make ex-Congressman James Kerr, of Pennsylvania, now clerk of the House, the secretary of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

ABOUT DEMOCRATIC HARMONY.

Harmonizing the Democratic party just at this juncture is rather a huge job. It is all split up in Washington, and until there shall be some cohesive Democratic power there, there is little likelihood of Democratic cohesion and harmony in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, or elsewhere.

Wm. Singlerly, of the Philadelphia Record, is always waltzing around as a missionary of peace and good will, says the Times. He wants nothing for himself; wouldn't take anything for himself; but he does want to spread the wings of peace over the jarring elements of Pennsylvania, and he has thrown himself into the breach with all the enthusiasm of his nature to heal the Democratic discord.

There are on the surface two Democratic elements in Pennsylvania. One is run by the Democratic organization and ninety-five per cent. of Democratic voters sustain it, and the other is run by Quay.

The Federal patronage is now one of the great stumbling blocks to Democratic harmony. Had the general appointments been made at the expiration of the commissions of the Republican incumbents, there would have been disappointments, of course, but they would largely have perished by this time under the inspiration of Democratic power in official places.

There is only one way to get the Democracy of Pennsylvania together and that is for the honest, earnest friends of tariff reform to unite in support of their faith. The issue is vastly more momentous than the division of party spoils, and whenever the party shall be thus harmonized Singlerly can be assured of permanent peace in the Democratic fold.

IN the election of borough officers on the 20th of February, it is certainly worthy of attention that men be chosen who will not waste the borough funds uselessly and illegally. We are prepared to show that upwards of $1500 have taken such a direction.

THE brute fight down in Florida is over; the American brute, Corbett, knocked out the British brute, Mitchell, on the third round. This is all the comment the Reporter cares to make.

RECONCILED.

There is great joy in Germany over the reconciliation of Bismark and the Emperor William. In Berlin a dispatch from Friedrichsruhe, on the morning of the 25th, was the signal for an outburst of cheering when its contents was made known in front of the different newspaper offices, the clubs and other public places, for it announced that Prince Bismark, ex-chancellor of the German empire, the man of blood and iron, had started for Berlin at 9:30 o'clock, in order to cement the reconciliation which has taken place between the emperor and himself after four long years of bitterness.

Prince Bismark when he left the Castle of Friedrichsruhe was accompanied by Princess Bismark, Count Herbert Bismark and Doctors Schweininger and Chrysanter. The princess left the train shortly before it started and did not accompany her husband to Berlin. The whole neighborhood of Friedrichsruhe turned out to cheer the veteran statesman as he departed for Berlin, and six young girls, dressed entirely in white, presented the prince with a handsome laurel wreath inscribed: "A happy journey." These girls also carried large baskets of flowers and they preceded Prince Bismark's party to the railroad station strewn the road with flowers amid the vociferous cheering of the immense crowds which lined the route and did their utmost to make the old statesman feel that he had a large share of the hearts of patriotic Germans.

OWING to the conflicting opinions of the county judges throughout the state on the question of theater licenses, Manager Gilbert Greenburg, of Huntingdon, has carried the case up to the courts of the 18th judicial district, before Judge Furst, in Bellefonte.

DURING the recent depression which caused distress all over the country, to the credit of the farmer be it said, there was no complaint from his side, but he went farther, he contributed from his scanty gains to relieve the needy. The farmer can always be relied upon to help in the hour of need.

But how is it on the other hand when the farmer needs aid to lessen the burdens of taxation? Well, the responses then are far from prompt and magnanimous, and the farmer is put off with little attention, yet the agricultural interest is the largest and most important of all—it is the backbone of the country; the one great pursuit of every nation upon which every other pursuit depends for success.

THE Republican state convention should be recalled to read Galusha A. Grow out of the party, thinks the Pittsburg Post, as he is little better than a blasted free trader. He voted for an average rate of duties 12 per cent less than the average under the Wilson bill, and when the McKinley bill was before congress he made an argument to McKinley's committee in advocacy of cutting down the tax on coal 50 per cent, and at the same time took occasion to declare that Pennsylvania would be largely the gainer by free trade in coal. Evidently GALUSHA needs looking after.

It is about settled now that Gen. Hastings will be the next Republican nominee for governor, all Stones and other party trash have been rolled out of the way.

HOW CONGRESS WORKS.

The interest felt by the members of congress in the speeches made before that body in the debate on the Wilson bill was manifested in a startling manner one evening last week. A member from Illinois was delivering a speech against the bill and there was a fair-sized audience in the gallery but of the congressmen there were 352 absentees; in fact, there were but two present, and those were so only by force of circumstances. One was McKaig, of Maryland, who was officiating as chairman of the committee of the whole and the other was a member from Indiana, speaker pro tem, of the House. The orator finished his speech amid liberal applause from the galleries and hurried to the restaurant, but the silence from the floor was appalling. The member from Indiana made a motion to the chairman that the committee rise, but received no response. After silence for a few seconds the audience in the galleries broke into laughter, for it was evident that the chairman was sound asleep. Approaching the chair the speaker pro tem repeated his motion in such a vociferous manner that McKaig awoke with a jump, rubbed his eyes, glanced around the house and declared the motion carried. He then handed over the gavel to the speaker, who took the chair and declared the House adjourned until the following day, when both hurriedly left the hall.

No county in the state has so many diversified elements of wealth as our own county of Centre. First stands our agricultural interest great in its results; our bituminous coal fields; our lumber districts; vast beds of best quality of limestone; abundance of finest building stone; sand for the manufacture of glass; clay for the manufacture of fire-brick; and vast beds of valuable iron ore in every part of the county. Then we have excellent railroad facilities, and any number of streams that furnish excellent water power.

MAY HAVE MET WITH FOUL PLAY.

A Lycoming County Farmer Missing Since Saturday.

Enoch Houseknecht, a farmer aged about forty-five, who resided three miles from Muncy, has disappeared. On Saturday Houseknecht drove to Muncy. William Buch, who resides on an adjoining farm, was with him for awhile, but they became separated. Buch searched for his companion, but being unable to find him, took Houseknecht's horse and buggy and drove it home.

Houseknecht had not turned up at home Monday, and a general alarm was sent out at Muncy, since which time a large number of people have been searching for the missing man. Houseknecht's overcoat was found in an alley in Muncy Saturday. It is said that he had $60 when he left home and it is thought that after he became separated from Buch he was waylaid and robbed.

Ruling Not Accepted.

At a special meeting of the borough council held last night that body decided to not accept the recent ruling of Judge Furst giving Mrs. Lohr $1,050 in her suit against the borough for damages for injuries caused by a defective boardwalk. It is our opinion that the case will again be taken before the Supreme court for adjustment. —Pittsburg Journal.
