

STRIKERS DO NOT RESIST.

Riotous Miners Vanish at the Coming of the Troops.

The State troops took possession of the Bell, Lewis & Yates coal property at Walston, Adrian and Anita, near Punxsutawney, on Friday morning, without a protest from the foreigners who had been terrorizing that end of Jefferson county.

The Fifth regiment and the Sheridan Troop went over the Bells Gap railroad. The Sixteenth regiment came over the B. R. & P. railroad. While coming from different directions the entire command arrived at exactly the same time, and in five minutes after their arrival the soldiers were drawn up in battalions in the west end of town.

Gen. Wiley assumed command and at 9 o'clock the men were marched to Walston and Adrian. The Italians and Hungarians who had been doing picket duty about the idle works, and who had been compelling American strikers to assist them, fled like a herd of stamped cattle at the approach of the militia.

One of the alleged cannon was captured by a detachment of the Fifth regiment. It was made of a black oak butt, into which a three-inch gas pipe had been inserted. It was then clamped with heavy iron hoops and was loaded with nails and small pieces of iron.

Eight years ago the 3,000 men employed by the Bell, Lewis & Yates Company struck for 50 cents per ton. At that time they were being paid 40 cents per ton.

Friday morning, when the Fifth Regiment and Sheridan Troop were coming up the mountain they encountered a band of about 1,000 strikers from Osceola and other mining towns.

After the soldiers had been distributed about in fighting shape, Col. Theodore Burchfield gave the order, "Forward, march." Instantly the strikers were given the same command from their leader.

The Col., as everybody else, regarded the "forward march" order of the strikers as proposing an attack. It was just the time for disappearing, however, and the order really meant for the strikers to hunt cover.

L. W. Robinson, superintendent of the Bell, Lewis & Yates mines, said that he would not employ an Italian. The American miners held a meeting and decided not to return to work unless all the strikers are re-employed.

Railway Construction in '93.

The railway construction in forty-three states and territories during the year of 1893 consisted of 2,435 miles of new track. This is 1,543 miles less than the total construction for 1892, and shows a much smaller amount of construction than in any year since 1878, when the total was 2,679 miles.

THE HOWARD CHURCH CASE.

The Associate Judges File an Opinion Overruling the Court's Opinion.

About four years ago a dispute arose among the members of the church of the Disciples of Christ, at Howard, this county, which culminated in a suit in court as to the ownership of the church property.

This disposition of the case, to the minds of the Associate Judges, is not in conformity with principles of justice and equity and they, therefore on the 26th inst. made and filed a dissenting opinion and decree in this cause, overruling the order and decree of Judge Furst, sustaining the defendants' exceptions to the master's report and dismissing the bill of complaint at the costs of the plaintiffs.

When judges disagree who shall decide? In other words: "who am the court?"

Energetic Advertising Succeeds.

During these times, when business has to be forced, the rewards of trade go to those who have the energy and enterprise to reach after them and deserve them.

It is a fatal mistake for business men to lose courage in dull times and to imagine that trade is so bad that it is useless to attempt to work it up by commanding public attention through advertising.
