THE JUDGESHIP.

The upshot of the president judgeship in our district is likely to be as follows on the Republican side: Huntingdon county has Lovell and Centre county has Love. One must haul off for harmony. Centre county having the governor, Hastings, and other fat places, it will be argued she can't have the judge too, as that might cause a fracas that would injure Hastings some. So Jack Love may have to step out and let Lovell be the judicial nag. To have Love off will harmonize the Furst people, and leave all serene for Lovell, whose nomination would heal all sores in Centre and make Huntingdon happy. Now, can you see through the thicket?

THE Democratic majority in Alabama is growing; it is now between 25,000 and 30,000.

WANTED—100,000 bows and arrows, for use in the Chinese army, against the Japs.

It's about time Generals Hastings and Beaver return from their western trip and explain the $40 plank in the Republican platform. Perhaps the two distinguished Pennsylvanians will return from Colorado full to the brim with Colorado free silver ideas and the unlimited coinage of the white metal, 58 cents worth to be called one dollar. Which does the $40 plank mean—forty silver dollars or forty gold dollars?

CAMERON FOR PRESIDENT.

A circular will be issued by Congressman "Jack" Robinson, president of the state league of Republican clubs, to the different clubs over the state requesting them to elect delegates to the convention to be held in this city September 5, and pay their dues in order that they may be in good standing, remarks the Harrisburg Patriot. Chairman Gilkeson, of the state Republican committee, has notified Congressman Robinson that he will be present, as will also General Hastings and his colleagues on the state ticket. It is the intention of those in charge of the arrangements for the convention to make it the largest that has ever been held by the league.

It is said the convention will adopt a mild silver platform, and start a boom for Senator Don Cameron for president. It is claimed all the Republican politicians in the state, with the exception of a few anti-Cameronites like C. C. Kaufman, of Columbia, and ex-Senator Emory, of Bradford, will unite for Cameron, and that those who look on his candidacy as a joke will discover that it is a reality and that he will be a strong candidate.

Chief Clerk Voorhees, of the house of representatives, is one of the original Cameronites of the state. He predicted that Cameron would be the next Republican presidential nominee the day after he made his famous free silver speech in the senate, and says he sees nothing now to cause him to change his mind.

DEBS has learned a lesson. He says he will never again order a strike, and advises the workmen to try and right their wrongs at the ballot box. He says he is convinced that the American people are opposed to strikes. This is sensible talk even for Debs, the pity is he did not use common sense a little sooner, he then would have thought twice before striking once. Debs got himself and many others into a pickle.

THE war between China and Japan stands 325,000,000 Chinese against 40,000,000 Japanese and the Japs licked 'em three times in the past three weeks.

THE MILLS BILL AND THE SENATE BILL.

No better answer could be given to the flagrant Republican misrepresentations of the Senate Tariff bill than that which is afforded by a comparison of its provisions with the Mills bill of 1888. The Mills bill dealt with the tariff of 1882, while the Senate bill deals with a much more difficult problem. But a careful and impartial comparison of the two measures will show that the much belied Senate bill proposes a more radical reduction of protective duties than was proposed by the Mills bill. That is to say, the bill now lying in Committee of Conference, if adopted, would make the rates of duty in the aggregate and in detail lower than the rates proposed in the Mills bill. Yet the Mills bill was accepted by the friends of Tariff Reform as a fair expression of their views, and was bitterly assailed by the Protectionists as an infamous scheme of British Free Trade. With somewhat less partisan injustice the tariff-mongers denounce the Senate bill as another Free Trade iniquity.

Throughout nearly every schedule of imports, including cotton goods, silks, iron and steel, earthenware, glassware, sugar and chemicals, the rates of duty are substantially lower in the Senate bill than the rates proposed in the Mills bill. In this conservatism the Mills bill left the duties on silks untouched; and the Senate bill reduces them. In putting wool on the free list the Mills bill proposed to reduce the duties on wools from 68 per cent. in the Tariff of 1882 to an average of 49 per cent. The Senate bill proposes to reduce the average rate of duty on wools from 90 per cent. in the McKinley tariff to 45 per cent.—a much greater proportionate reduction than was proposed in the Mills bill. This is in accordance, too, with the oft-repeated Democratic pledge to make no violent or vindictive slash at the tariff. If there be those who regard this as a mere campaign pledge, made only to be broken, there are others of us who hold that it should be faithfully and honorably observed.

In the sugar schedule the Mills bill proposed to reduce the duty on raw sugar from 100 per cent. in the Tariff of 1882 to 78 per cent., and on refined sugar from 109 to 81 per cent. For a revenue measure this was regarded as a rather steep reduction of duty; but, at that time at least, the friends of Tariff Reform were unanimously in favor of a revenue duty on sugar. Had the Mills bill been passed the revenue from sugar under its provisions would have amounted to upward of $75,000,000 a year. In substantially reducing the Mills rates the Senate bill would bring $40,000,000 a year to the Treasury from sugar. In what respect is Senate bill a departure from the principle and policy of its Democratic predecessor of 1888 save in proposing a greater reduction of the sugar duty? If the Senate bill proposes to make a discrimination in favor of refined sugar as an article of manufacture, the discrimination proposed in the Mills bill was much greater. Who will dare affirm that the Senate bill so far as relates to the sugar duties is not from every point of view a much better measure of Tariff Reform than was the Mills bill?

Under the Senate bill the free list would be larger than in any tariff since the foundation of the Government. In respect to free raw materials it would be a much better measure than the "Free Trade" Tariff of 1846. While the Senate bill proposes to cut the duties on coal and iron ore in twain, the Mills bill proposed to leave them untouched. This was not because Chairman Mills and his Democratic associates of the Ways and Means Committee in 1888 did not desire to put coal and iron ore on the free list. They were confronted, however, by the same difficulty which confronts the Democrats of the Senate. But no friend of Tariff Reform asserted that the framers of the Mills bill were faithless and corrupt because they could not achieve impossibilities. No one urged, as now, that the bill should not be passed because it did not put coal and iron ore on the free list, nor because it made a large discrimination in the duty on refined sugar.

With all its shortcomings and its concessions to the lingering spirit of Protection, it is seen that the Senate bill is a great stride in Tariff Reform since the Mills bill embodied the Democratic policy on this question.—Philadelphia Record.

SUCCESSIVE hot waves sweeping through the Kansas grain fields have left as large and desolate a burnt district as the forest fires have made in Wisconsin, and the harvests in other Western and Northwestern States have not escaped a searing from the phenomenal heats. But rains may yet retrieve many fields that seem to have been hopelessly ruined; and, in any case, it is too soon for the farmers to yield to despair. The disastrous results of the weather may yet be offset by the effects of the Eastern war upon the grain markets.

CANDIDATE LOST.

Candidate Hastings has mysteriously disappeared. The last heard from he was somewhere in the far northwest. There is only one who knows where he is, and that is Gen. Beaver, and he won't tell, expecting a reward will be offered for information as to the whereabouts of the Republican candidate for governor.

COBURN.

Narrow Escape of a Brakeman from being Killed.

Huckleberries are a scarce article in the market. There are none to be had. On Saturday an itinerant umbrella mender, razor grinder, etc., created quite a sensation among the boys, by having a goat hitched to a small express wagon, and driving it through the streets.

On Saturday forenoon the freight going east while shifting a car on the siding, a brakeman named Davis, in attempting to open the valve of the air brake his foot slipped, and he fell on the track in front of the car while it was in motion. He was fortunate enough not to fall on the rail or he would have been killed. He fell between the rails and the brake rod caught him and wound him up in bad shape, hurting his back and otherwise injuring him. He was carried into the depot, and Dr. Frank, of Millheim, summoned, who dressed up his wounds and applied restoratives. He was taken to his home in Sunbury on the afternoon train.

Mr. Adolph Porter and family, of Clintondale, were visiting at the home of A. J. Campbell, over Sunday.

Mr. White, of Axemann, and Miss Laura Runkle, of Spring Mills, were visiting friends at this place over Sunday.

Mrs. Stover is visiting friends at Spring Mills at the present time.

Mrs. Julia Geary, the wife of D. B. Geary, departed this life on last Saturday, at the age of about 47 years. Mrs. Geary during her life time was a quiet unassuming woman, with a kind word for everybody. She left no children. Her remains were buried at Paradise church on Wednesday forenoon.

Efforts are being made to have a monster picnic at this place, on the 25th inst., by the P. O. S. of A. and Sunday schools combined.

Pealer, of Spring Mills and S. M. Swartz, of Tusseyville.
