CENTRE HALL, PA., THURS. JAN.17

THE INAUGURAL.

Gov. Hastings was inaugurated on amid considerable pomp. The inaugural address is quite conservative in tone and contains suggestions that will meet with general favor. His views upon the subject of strikes are in accord with public opinion, namly, that capital can hire what labor suits it free from dictation as to price; and that labor can demand the highest price and if no satisfactory terms are obtained labor has the right to refuse to work, but it has no right to prevent others from working for lower wages, as little as capital has the right to force a man to work if wages don't suit him. Gov. Hastings makes fair promises in his address, and if carried out under his administration, he will retire with credit.

There is a very faint echo of the late calamity howl in the new governor's address, which is a sop he may have felt obliged to throw out to please the rabid element in his party; but as the new tariff is working well, he deals cautiously gentle with the subject.

There is nothing abusive of Democrats in the inaugural, the governor seemingly being mindful that it was Democratic votes which made his majority big.

THE Republican fight in Philadelphia gives that party much concern. If not healed the big majority will dwindle to the other side of nothing. It is a fight of boss Quay against leader Martin. Quay, of the western village of Beaver wanted Penrose nominated for mayor of Philadelphia, but Martin stepped in and downed Quay and Penrose nearly three to one and had Warwick nominated for mayor. And now the fight is on among the Philadelphia ringsters.

It is reported that Chris Magee, the Pittsburg boss, is the only man who can bring about peace between Quay and Martin, and that the big Pittsburg injun will be called on to try his healing salve on this sore.

If the Martin faction can elect Warwick at the coming February election, it is said the fight will go on to down Cameron for a re-election to the senate. Pitch in Quay! Pitch in Martin! the REPORTER will hold your hats, and Centre county Democrats will look down from their mountain tops and laugh while this Republican circus is performing in Philadelphia.

JOSEPH M'CLELLAN.

Death of That Gentleman on Wednesday Morning.

Joseph McClellan, the well-known farmer and citizen of Potter township, died at his home near Tusseyville, on Wednesday morning, at the age of about fifty-seven years.

Mr. McCiellan suffered from cancer in the face for over a year, and the trouble had every appearance of being distressing, yet he never suffered any pain from it.

The disease manifested itself over a year ago, and its ravages had become such that the aid of specialists only afforded him temporary relief.

ship for Illinois thirteen years ago, has returned on a visit, and he looks well. He tells us he likes it in the prairie state.

Pattison Nominated for Mayor.

The Democrats of Philadelphia on Wednesday unanimously nominated Ex-governor Pattison for mayor. Now watch the big majority tumble.
