HASTING'S SIDE.

Last week we printed from the Philadelphia Inquirer, Quay organ, the defense of the Senator in his fight with the combine. This week we give the other side, as presented by the Philadelphia American in defense of Hastings. We copy the following extract:

Republicanism in Pennsylvania touched high-water mark in November last. The rising tide of condemnation of the misguided ways of the party in power nowhere reached such force and effectiveness as in this great state. There was no possible excuse for misinterpretation of the verdict rendered at the polls. It was not intended as a vindication of any species of political bossism. It was not declared that throughout this Commonwealth men should bow down before a self-appointed, arrogant and tyrannical would-be master. It was not commanded that a new commission should be issued to any one who had misused political power and prostituted political place. The people had spoken as never before and the whole country distinctly understood that the greatest industrial state in the Union led the way in a movement the purpose of which was to restore good government and national prosperity. Instead of realizing the plain facts in the case and recognizing their own limitations, certain political leaders in Pennsylvania set about entrenching themselves and preparing to exercise an authority that had never been acknowledged by the popular will. Senator Quay seemed to think that it was incumbent upon him to take entire charge of the Republican organization, and set up anew his offensive dictatorship.

There was strange forgetfulness on the part of this discredited politician, who acted as though his forbidding record was unassailable, and who assumed that his autocratic will should be a law unto the multitude. Mr. Quay had been tolerated—never indulged. The perfection of machine politics, taking advantage of public indifference, had led to his securing a high public position; but he was not regarded either as a statesman or a leader worthy of confidence and support. There was generous forbearance in the hope of better things in the future. There was no warfare on the part of the public, but even a superficial observer could clearly perceive that there would be no further submission to the autocratic rule which showed such contempt for popular rights. The issue was first met in Philadelphia, and the result was the greatest surprise in the public career of Mr. Quay. It was confidently hoped by some of the Senator's wisest friends that he would realize the true situation and take a new departure, in accordance with correct ideas. The record during the next few months showed this expectation to be without any basis whatever. Mr. Quay could do nothing to repair the disaster brought upon himself in this city, but a way was opened to him to assert his power and it was shamelessly utilized. The Legislature of Pennsylvania never before made such an exhibition of factional subservience. Legislation was enacted and measures in the public interest defeated, for the purpose of accomplishing political vengeance and building up the power of the machine for the future. Upon numerous occasions members of both houses reversed themselves, and in various ways showed how they were being used by a stronger hand. The great commercial interests of Philadelphia were sacrificed. The Republican party throughout the state was placed in a false position and humiliated before all men, and the Executive Department of the state government was assailed.

All this is Quayism, the legitimate outcome of the political leadership which should have been overthrown many years ago. The people have no right to be surprised, but they have much reason to be heartily ashamed. No other great state in the union would quietly submit to such things, and the time has come when there must be, and certainly will be, a united and determined effort to break the power of an odious combination which is hostile in every essential respect to the public welfare. There is but one course open to self-respecting men who believe in Republican principles, decent politics, manly political methods, honest government and faithful compliance with the public will. Mr. Quay has needlessly invited a new demonstration of public sentiment and response should be overwhelming. Pennsylvania in the coming national contest should play a most conspicuous and a decisive part. For once it should not be the plaything of mercenary political traders. The interests of this great state demand that Quayism shall be repudiated and that Republicanism shall be triumphantly asserted. The battle has been precipitated, and whether it is concluded this year or not it must be fought to the end.

For Superior Court Judge. From the Lewisburg Journal.

For some time past we have been watching the trend of opinion among the leading Democratic papers of the State in reference to the action which should be taken by the Democratic State Convention in placing candidates in nomination for Superior Court Judges. The sentiment of the party seems almost unanimous that at this time it behooves the Democrats to place on their ticket six able, upright men, who by virtue of their character and reputation will give the party a fighting chance in the coming election. The "Journal" believes in presenting a full ticket, and dislikes the idea of showing the white feather by accepting a Judge thrust upon the party by Republican manipulators. Give us six good, clean men and we will go in to win.

One of these six men should be no other than the Hon. Joseph C. Bucher, of Lewisburg, who has a reputation all over the State as an able jurist and is a sound Democrat, besides. Judge Bucher was elected President Judge of the 20th judicial district in 1871 by a majority of 2000 on the state ticket in the district. He served ten years and was re-elected in the same district by over 2100 majority. In 1891 he was again a candidate and defeated by only a slender majority of about 400. Since that time he has been in active and successful practice of his profession. Last fall the nomination of Congressman-at-Large was thrust upon him, and for private reasons he was absolutely forced to decline the nomination.

Give us Bucher and five other good, able, clean men and we will put up a stiff fight. We have no authority to present the name of Judge Bucher, and do not know whether he would consent to be a candidate, but if he could be induced to accept the nomination he would be a strong factor in making up a winning ticket.

Of course Cleveland has a right to run for a third term—don't he have three daughters?

THE Republican county convention was simply a suppressed row. The pitch and tar and sticks are all there yet waiting for some one to apply the match.

THE Republican county convention, on Tuesday in its platform endorsed the Republican party and all its ills, including uncle Dan's administration but was silent on the legislature to nearly all whose acts the governor put his signature. Queer. Last year the same body gave Quay a ringing endorsement and this year they are silent as the tomb as regards the big injun of Beaver. Queer the second.

THE present row among the Pennsylvania Republicans is termed by some "a battle of the giants." Not so; there is not a giant in intellect among them. They are only the traders, corruptionists, wire-pullers and jim-crows in politics. We defy any one to name a single clean-cut, broad gauge statesman in the row are the ones who ran the last legislature which has been cursed by the honest men of all parties for its unparalleled infamy. Which-ever faction gets licked, the other deserves to be unmercifully kicked.

JUDGE Bucher, of Union, is strongly urged by the "Lewisburg Journal," of last week, as one of the Democratic nominees for the Appellate Court. No more fitting selection could be made, he stands in the front rank of legal minds in this state, and was twice elected president judge of the strong Republican district of Union, Snyder and Mifflin, serving two terms with distinguished ability. Judge Bucher is one of the most popular men in the state, and his name upon the ticket would add great strength to it.

THE Huntingdon Monitor is authorized to state that Hon. John M. Bailey, of that town, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President Judge in the new district composed of the counties of Huntingdon and Mifflin. It may be safely assumed that Mr. Bailey will have the unanimous endorsement of the Democracy of Huntingdon county, and the reasons why he should be nominated by the district conference will be earnestly passed at the proper time.

A granger friend, of this place, two squares from these headquarters, is elated that the "Farmers' Friend" is giving the late legislature fits in double dose for its uniform iniquity. But our granger friend would like to know why Col. Thomas' wonderful "committee on legislation," that runs the sun, moon, stars, tides, finances, commerce and prices and picks its teeth on big hotel steps, why didn't this committee adjourn the legislature and arrest the iniquitous legislation? Surely the "committee" to watch legislation could do any thing, even low lobbying, if it tried, but when the bill passed for the farmer, making the weight of a bushel of onions 60 lbs., the vapor from the "ingens" blinded the watching committee's eyes with tears and then all went to the devil. It would be well to have a committee to watch the watching committee.

THE move to carry this county for Quay and against Hastings did not amount to more than show that the senator had a following, while the two delegates to the state convention, will be for Hastings, who is one himself, Mr. Bennisson being the other.

Quay got 7 delegates in Phillipsburg and 5 in Rush township. In Hastings's own ward, the North, in Bellefonte, the vote was 35 for the governor and 18 for Quay. The South ward gave 76 to 8, the West ward 48 to 10. In Spring township Quay had 18 votes. In other districts in the county the vote for Quay was slim.

Boys, and men, may not generally know that corner loafing is made a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment. The recent Legislature passed an act for the abatement of this form of public nuisance, and the police officers of everywhere should be instructed as to their duties under its provisions. It is the corner loafers who obstruct the walks and make insulting remarks of passing ladies and others.

At this hour it looks as if Hastings would down Quay.

OLD horses are no longer shot and dragged out for crows to eat, but are killed and canned like beef. The horse meat canning plant of the Western Packing Company, located at Linnton, Ore., commenced operations the other day. The establishment is the only one of the kind on the Pacific coast. Several carloads of horses have been received to be slaughtered. It is expected a good market will be found in foreign countries.

In Paris horseflesh has been eaten for many years, and the consumption is greater each year.
