DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

For Prothonotary, WM. F. SMITH. For District Attorney, WM. J. SINGER.

LAST Saturday's primaries, in a half dozen counties, like those of the previous Saturday, went quite Quayish.

BAD as was the last legislature it is a pity that the governor didn't kill a single snake with his veto club, and there were so many within his reach.

BOTH the Quay and Hastings factions are claiming a majority in the next state convention. Somebody is going to be badly fooled and badly licked.

THE Valentine iron works shut down under the M'Kinley tariff, and started up under the Wilson tariff, and last week increased wages 10 cents per day.

THE Millinburg Telegraph, heretofore non-committal, has pronounced in favor of Quay. Will its neighbor, the heroic News, now get on one side or the other of the fence?

QUAY is undoubtedly making big strides on the home stretch, and from his headquarters we have direct information that he has a surprise in store when the convention comes off.

QUAY has sent out an alarm fearing chairman Gilkeson will doctor the roll for the coming Republican state convention. No doubt of it, and no one knows better than Quay how such things have been done.

A BOWER club from Bellefonte is to attend the Williamsport convention in the interest of C. M. Bower for superior judge. The most catching yell of the club would be, Bow-wow, bow-wow, bow-er. We could all join in that.

THE Republican state convention will meet in Harrisburg, August 28. All the wild animals will then be let out of their cages.

THE Democratic state convention will meet in Williamsport, September 11th.

EVERY reader of the "Reporter" would be doing the manly thing by becoming a subscriber instead of a borrower. We often have subscribers report to us that persons annoy them by being regular borrowers of their paper.

THE Democracy can point with pride to two administrations that were models of economy and honesty; but what have we now? a shameful waste of the public funds millions beyond the revenues of the state.

Not thus under Cleveland and Patison.

QUAY wrote a letter the other day on the political fuss now going on in the ranks of his party, in which he champions purity and reform in politics and public affairs. No one knows more about it than Quay, because it is the atmosphere he breathed for twenty-five years, and if he is sincerely repentant, just let him tell all knows and had a hand in, and it will do more to open the eyes of the people than a mere letter championing reform.

QUAY'S BATTLE IS WON.

Saturday was a field day for the supporters of Senator Quay in his contest for the chairmanship of the State committee. The sweep in Schuylkill and Montgomery clearly exhibited the conditions and phases of the battle. Both counties were confidently claimed by the opponents of Quay and both were lost and by decided votes after a contest of unexampled bitterness and effort, says the Philadelphia Times.

The defeat in Montgomery is one of the most impressive of the many impressive lessons taught Governor Hastings since this battle began. It is the home of one of his own cabinet officers, who is presumed to be omnipotent in his county with the Governor's borrowed popularity. Congressman Wagner was drafted into the service because Gilkeson's county is part of his district and all appliances of power, legitimate and disreputable, that promised to aid in the overthrow of Quay, were summoned to aid in the conflict.

The result in Montgomery is a most disastrous and humiliating defeat for Hastings, although he does not in any sense deserve it beyond the fact that he has permitted his plumes to be worn unworthily by those who seek his power for selfish ends. It is a defeat that is an irretrievable disaster, for it was the admitted battle ground of the two great factions, with every advantage in favor of the Martin-Magee Combine of lobbyists, and it will have a powerful influence on the primaries to be held in this city on the 20th instant.

Senator Quay has now a clear majority of the convention already elected. On this point we speak considerably. We have no information that is not accessible to any other intelligent and dispassionate observer of current events, but everyone who has looked the situation squarely in the face must now know that there are over 145 delegates already elected who will vote to make Senator Quay chairman of the Republican State committee. Of the dozen or so delegates to be elected on Saturday next he will have nine-tenths of them and in Philadelphia there will be from 15 to 20 or possibly 25 elected in his favor, in addition to the actual and positive majority he has in the list of already chosen delegates.

It is possible that Governor Hastings is deceived on this point, but, if so, he has been most unjust to himself, and those about him are either ignorant of the situation or cruelly withhold the facts. He ought to know, that of the men elected in his favor apparently on the distinct issue a considerable number will certainly vote for Quay with or without his approval; and he ought to know, also, that there is not a single Republican member of the Superior Court who would not be glad to see the factional contest ended by the unanimous election of both Hastings and Quay to respective positions for which they are candidates.

It is never wise for a man to cheat himself. It would be reasonable for Lobbyists Martin and Magee to insist that they have Quay defeated and thereby the Governor vindicated. They are playing for desperate stakes and they may be pardoned in claiming power they have not, but Governor Hastings should look the truth in the face and the hour that he gets down to an exact horizontal view of the present contest in all its varied phases and hidden intricacies he must learn that Quay has now a majority of the convention already elected and will have an overwhelming majority on the 28th of August.

It has been a desperate battle and it is logical that it should be so. When the Republican organizations in the country districts came to face the fact that a factional fight was forced upon them apparently under the banner of the Governor but in reality to give two professional lobbyists the absolute control of party organization, patronage and plunder, three-fourths of them have openly revolted and the Republican people of every section of the state when not controlled by corrupt political machinery have voted overwhelmingly in favor of Quay and apparently against Hastings. These organizations are not only now arrayed against the lobbyists who are fighting under the banner of the Governor, but they have been embittered to aggressive action and the one who will most feel the retributive sting will be Governor Hastings himself. Such a contest could have but one result in a great state like Pennsylvania and it is creditable to a great party of intelligence and integrity to find it vindicating itself triumphantly and being able to hurl its defiance at the debauched political control of Philadelphia.

The battle is over; Philadelphia is voiceless in the contest and will be remembered in it only for the shame its leadership attempted to bring upon the Republican party of the state.

SERIOUS RUN-OFF.

Two Ladies Dropped Into the Creek at Spring Mills—Buggy Wrecked.

A serious run-off happened at Spring Mills on last Friday afternoon. Mrs. James M'Clintick and her hired girl, Miss Katie Frederick, of Farmer's Mills, had gone to Spring Mills in a buggy. On their return as they got to the foot of the hill below Chas. P. Long's store, a traction engine was left standing by the road while the hands were away to dinner. In trying to pass the engine the horse took fright and ran off; crossing the first bridge the buggy struck the edge of it and both ladies were tumbled headlong into Penn's creek. Parties witnessing the accident hastened to the bridge and rescued the unfortunate ladies. Mrs. M'Clintick was taken out unconscious and it was over an hour before she came to again, having sustained some severe bruises, and, we are informed, is now out of danger.

Miss Frederick was taken out more frightened than hurt, beyond some light bruises. In the absence of immediate assistance, Mrs. M'Clintick would undoubtedly have drowned.

The buggy was upset and the horse dashed furiously on completely wrecking buggy and harness.

As a thing to frighten horses, a traction engine is a perfect success.

Strange Death of a Woman in a Hay Field.

The dangers of the hay field took a new form near Clearfield a few days ago, when Mrs. Fred Marshall, the wife of a well-known farmer of Luthersburg, was killed, being thrown fifty feet in the air and over a high embankment. The woman was assisting her husband to load hay on a wagon standing on a side hill. The wagon was filled, and the long pole with which it was to be bound was being fastened by Mr. Marshall. His wife, sitting on the pole, helped him to hold it down. Suddenly the wagon toppled over, the pole catching in the woman's clothes. At the same time the man was thrown from his position, and the pole, springing forward, the woman, with terrific force, shot into the air. She was hurled at least fifty feet, landing at the foot of the hill, and died within a short time.
