Diamonds in Steel.

Some time ago it was shown by M. Moissan, a French chemist, that when iron was saturated at 3,000 centigrade with carbon and then cooled under a high pressure a portion of the carbon separated out in the form of diamonds. The conditions under which very hard steels are now made should also result in the formation of diamonds, and an examination of a large number of samples of such steel has shown that this is really the case. The diamonds are obtained by dissolving the metal in acid and then subjecting the residue to the action of concentrated nitric acid, fused potassium chlorate, hydrofluoric and sulphuric acid successively. The crystals are very minute, the largest being only five mm. in diameter, but they present all the chemical and physical properties of true diamonds .--Engineering and Mining Journal.

Covered Dishes.

Dishes were not covered at first for the purpose of keeping the food warm. They were covered from fear-the fear of poison. In mediaeval days, and down to the time of Louis XIV., people were afraid that poison might be introduced into food between the kitchen and the table. Hence the cook was ordered to cover the dishes, and the covers were not removed until the master of the house sat down to eat.

REV. DR. TALMAGE. The Eminent Washington Divine's Sunday Sermon.

Subject: "Divine Chirography."

TEXT: "Rejoice because your names are written in heaven."-Luke x., 20.

Chirography, or the art of handwriting, like the science of acoustics, is in very un-satisfactory state. While constructing a church, and told by some architects that the voice would not be heard in a building shaped like that proposed, I came in much anxiety to this city and consulted with Prof. Joseph Henry, of the Smithsonian Institution, about the law of acoustics. He said: "Go ahead and build your church in the shape proposed, and I think it will be all right. I have studied the laws of sound perhaps more than any man of my time, and I have come so far as this: Two auditoriums may seem to be exactly alike, and in one the acoustics may be good and in the other bad. In the same unsatisfactery stage is chirography, although many declare they have reduced it to a science. There are those who say they can read character by handwriting. It is said that the way one writes the letter "I' decides his egoilsm or modesty, and the way one writes the letter "O" decides the height and depth of his emotions. It is declared a oramped hand means a cramped nature, and an easy, flowing hand a facile and liberal spirit; but if there be anything in this science. there must be some rules not yet announced, for some of the boldest and most aggressive men have a delicate and small penmanship, while some of the most timid sign their names with the height and width and scope of the name of John Hancock on the immor-tal document. But while the chirography of the earth is uncertain, our blessed Lord in our test presents the chirography celes-tial. When addressing the seventy disciples standing before Him. He said: "Rojoice because your names are written in heaven. Of course, the Bible, for the most part, when speaking of the heavenly world, speaks figuratively while talking about books and about trumpets, and about wings and about gates and about golden pavements and about orchards with twelve crops of fruit-one crop each month-ant about the white horses of heaven's cavalry; but we do well to follow out these inspired metaphors and reap from them courage and sublime expectation, and consolation and victory. We are told that in the heavenly library there is a Book of Life. Perhap: there are many volumes in of Life. Ferhap: there are many volumes in it. When we say a book, we mean all writ-ten by the author on that subject. I cannot tell how large those heavenly volumes are, nor the splendor of their binding, nor the number of their pages, nor whether they are pictorialized with some exciting scenes of this world. I only know that the words have not been impressed by type, but written out by some hand, and that all those who, like the seventy disciples to whom the text was spoken, repent and trust the Lord for their sternal salvation, surely have their names written in heaven. It may not be the same name that we carried on earth. We may, through the inconsiderateness of parents, have a name that is uncouth, or that was afterward dishenored by one after whom we were called. I do not know that the seventy entrances of the names of the seventy disciples correspond with the record in the genealogical table. It may not be the name by which we were called on earth, but it will be the name by which heaven will know us, an 1 we will have it appounced to us as we pass in, and we will know it so certainly that we will not have to be called twice by it, as in the Bible times the Lord called some peo pletwice by name: "Saul! Saul!" Samuel:" "Martha! Martha!" "Samuel!

In examination of your name in the heaveniy archives, if you find it there at all, you will find it written with a bold hand. You have seen many a signature that because of sickness or old age had a tremor in it, yet it was as bold as the man who wrote it. Many an order written on the battlefield and amid the thunder of the cannonade has had evidence of excitement in every word and every letter and in the speed with which it was folded and handed to the officer as he put his foot in the swift stirrups, and yet that commander, notwithstanding his trembling hand, gives a boldness of order that shows itself in every word written. You do not need to be told that a trembling hand does not always mean a cowardly hand. It was with a very trembling hand Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, signed his name to the Declaration of American Independence, but no signer had more courage and when some one said, "There are many Charles Carrolls, and it will not be known which one it is." he resumed the pen and wrote Char.es Carcoll of Carcoliton. Trembling hand no sign of timidity. The daring and defiance seen in the way your name is , written in heaven is a challenge to all earth and hell to come on if they can to defeat your sansomed soul. Again, if according to the promise of the Again, if according to the promise of the text, you are permitted to look into the volumes of eternity and see your name there, you will flad it written in lines, in words, in letters unmistakable. Some people have come to consider indistinct and almost unreadable penmanship a mark of genius, and so they affect it. Because every paragraph that Thomas Chaimers, and Deau Stanley, and Lord Byron, and Rufus Choate and other potent men wrote was a puzzle, imitators make their permanship a puzzle. Alex-ander Dumas says that plain permanship is the brevet of incapacity. Then there are some who, through too much demand upon their energies and through lack of time, loss the capacity of making the pen intelligible, and much of the writing of this world is in-decipherable. We have seen piles of inex-plicable chirography, and we ourselves have helped augment the magnitude. We have not been sure of the name signed, or the sentiment expressed, or whether the reply was affirmative or negative. Through indistinct penmapship last wills and testa-ments have been defeated, widows and orphans robbed of their inheritance, railroad trains brought into collision through the dim words of a telegram put into the hand of a conductor, and regiments, in this wise, mistaking their instructions, have been sacrified in battle. I asked Bishop Cowie, in Auckland, New Zealand, the Cowie, in Auckland, New Zealand, the Bishop baving been in many of the wars, what Tennyson, in his immortal poem. "The Charge of the Light Brigade," meant by the woris, "Some one had blundered," and the Bishop said that the awful carnage at Balaklava was the meant of an indistinctly-written and wrongly-read military order. "Some one had blundered." But your name, once written in the Lamb's Book of Life, will be so unmistakable that all heaven can read it at the first glance. It will not be taken for the name of some other, so that in regard to the name of some to be disputation. Not it means you and only you. Ob, the glorious, the rapturous certitude of that entrance on the heavenly rol!. Not saved in a promiseous way. Not put into a glorified mob. No, no! Though you came up, the worst singer that was approach glorified mob. No, no! Though you came up, the worst sinner that was ever saved, and somebody who knew you in this world at one time as absolutely abandoned and dissolute should say: "I never heard of your conversion and I do not believe you have a right to be here," you could just laugh a laugh of triumph, and, turning over the leaves containing the names of the re-deemed, say: "Read it for yourself. That is my name, written out in full, and do you not recognize the handwriting? No young not recognize the handwriting? No young scribe of heaven entered that. No annonyscribe of heaven entered that. No annony-mcus writer put it there. Do you not see the tremor in the lines? Do you not also see the boldness of the letters? Is it not as plain as yonder throne, as plain as yonder gate? Is it not the name namistakable and the handwriting unmistakable? The crucified Lord wrote it there the day I repeated and turned. Hear it! Hear it! My name is written there! There!' There is not on earth an autograph letter or signature of Christ. The only time He ence to having it soon shuffled out by human foot, the time that Me stooped down and with His finger wrote on the ground the hyporiay of the Pharisees. But when He writes your name in the heavenly archives, as I believe He has, or hope He may, it is to stay there from age to age, from eyele to cycle, from eaon to enon. And so for all you Christian people I do what John G. Whittier, the dying post, said he wanted done in his home. Lovely man he was! I sat with him in a haymow a whole summer afternoon, and heard him tell the story of his life. He had for many years been troubled with insomnia, and was a very poor sleeper, and he always had the window curtain of his room up so as to see the first intimation of sunrise. When he was breathing his last in the morning hour, in his home in the Massachusetts village, the nurse thought that the light of the rising sua was too strong for him, and so pulled the window curtain down. The last thing the great Quaker poet did was to wave his hand to have the curtain up. He wanted to depart in the full gush of the mcrning. And I thought it might be nelpful and inspiring to all Christian souls to have more light about the future, so I pull up the curtain in the glorious sunrise of my text and say. "Rejoice that your names are written in heaven." Bring on your doxologies! Wave your palms! Shout your victories! Pail up all the curtains of bright expectations! Yes! hoist the window itself and let the perfume of the "morning glories" of the King's garden come in, and the music of harps all a-tremble with symphonies, and the sound of the surf of seas dashing to the foot of the throne of God and the Lamb.

But there is only one word on all this subject of Divine chirography in heaven that confuses me, and that is the small adverb which St. John adds when he quotes the text in Revelation and speaks of some "whose names are not written in the Book of Life of the Lamb slain." Oh, that awful adverb "not!" By full submission to Christ the Lord, have the way all cleared between you and the sublime registration of your name this moment. Why not look up to see that they are all ready to put your name among the blissful immortals? There is the mighty volume: it is wide open. There is the pen: it is from the wing of the "Angel of the New Covenant." There is the ink: it is red from the Calvarean sacrifice. And there is the Divine Scills: the glorious Lord who wrote your father's name, and your moth-er's name there, and your child's name there, and who is ready to write your name Will you consent that He do it? Be. fore I say "Amen" to this service, ask Him to do it. I wait a moment for the tremendons action of your will, for it is only an action of your will. Here some one says, "Lord Jeaus, with pen plucked from angelic wing, and dipped in the red ink of Golgotha write there either that which is now my earthly name or that which shall be my heavenly name." I puse a second longer that all may consent. The pen of the Divine Scribe is in the fingers and is lifted and is lowered, and it touches the shining page, and the word is trace !, in trembling and bold and unmistakable letters. He has put It down in the right place. And if there be in all this assembly a hopeless case, so-called hopeleas by yourself and others, I take the responsibility of saying that there is a place in that Book where your name would exactly fit in, and look beauti-ful, and you can, quicker than I can elap my hands together, have it there. A religious meeting was thrown open, and all those who could testify of the converting grace of God were asked to speak. Silence reigned a mo-ment, and then a man covered with the marks of disdpation arose and said: "You can see from my looks what I have been, but I am now a saved man. When I left home a thousand miles from here I had so disgraced my father's name that he said, 'As you are going away I have only two things to ask of you, first, that you will never come home again, and next, you will change your name. I promised. I have not heard my real name for years. I went the whole round of sin, until there was no lower depth to fathom. But I am by the grace of God a changed

SULTAN ABDUL HAMID.

SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF THE PO. TENTATE OF TURKEY.

Ruled By a Homicial Mania--- This Insanity Has Been Erequent in Kings --- The Delusion of Persecution.

The present Sultan of Turkey, Abdul Hamid, succeeded his brother Murad twenty years ago when the latter was deposed on account of insanity. Murad's insanity was in the nature of an enthusiastic young reformer eagerly starting his rule in a corrupt and semicivilized government. He tried for the few months of his reign to correct abuses and grant new liberty to his subjects. Whether actually insane or not, he was deposed and confined in a palace under the care of his mother. If not really crazy at the time, he probably became so eventually and has for twenty years led the life of a harmless, unambitious lunatic.

Abdul Hamid, the great Sultan, seems to have been at first a man of naturally kindly and enlightened instincts. He was for a long time a monogamist and devoted to his one wife and his children. He was passionately devoted to music, spending hours playing duets on the plano with members of his family.

been his extreme timidity. When his brother was deposed he did not wish to be appointed his successor, much preferring the quieter position of prince without the responsibility. He accepted the position of Sultan only with the greatest reluctance when ure to recommend them. "I have traveled for thirty years and have sheiks of the Mahommetan religion whose power over all Moslem is abso-Inte.

After his first refusal all the principal priests visited bim in a body. Sheik ui Islam, the primate, made this speech: "It is decreed and registered in heaven that you are to be Kaliph of Islam and Prince of the Faithful. You cannot disobey the command and will of God and the Prophet." The rest re-echoed the words. Abdul yielded to their orders and has always been practically a tool in the hands of these wily ecclesiastics ever since, especially in religious matters and in his treatment of all infidels and unbelievers. He knows that if the chief sheik should hose to say at any time that the exsultan, Murad, had recovered his reason that his own career as sultan would come to a sudden end. The sultan always has lived a secluded life. He rises every day at 6
