CENTRE HALL, PA., THURS. MAR. 11

ON inauguration day the Nat. Guard of Pa. was a home guard.

Greece keeps up her spunk, even as against the European Powers.

THE Republicans will lack two votes of a majority in the U. S. Senate.

Twelve veterans of the war of 1812 are yet living, with ages running from 90 to 104 years.

McKinley is President now. Write to him for work and say you expect your pay in gold.

The new president is overrun with office seekers; they are as plenty as were locusts in Egypt, and the Spring Mills platoon hadn't arrived yet.

OUR eminent friend, Dr. George W. Atherton, of State College, is being recommended for appointment to the post of Minister to Mexico.

THE Bellefonte board of trade is anxious to have the Commission appointed to select a site for the Middle Penitentiary to visit Bellefonte.

At Pittsburg last week Judge Thomas handed down a decision declaring unconstitutional the act of assembly passed in 1855 which gave special school privileges to children of soldiers of the late war.

Thus it runs; the fellows who cause others to be rich, get poor, forsaken and forgotten. Tim Hussey, who discovered in the Cripple Creek district mines worth $1,000,000, died penniless in the hospital of the great gold camp last week.

Dr. Swallow has not been scared by being sued for libel, and in a letter to Gov. Hastings renews the charges and adds some new ones, and makes the reasonable request of the governor to lend him aid to secure a fair chance to produce his proof of the charges.

A woman, down in Haines township, whose husband voted for McKinley and talked strongly for gold and good times, has held over three pecks of "apple schnitz" until McKinley became president when she would get a higher price and gold for her schnitz.

THE storm middle of last week did great harm in some parts. There were cyclones and some tremendous down-pours of rain in towns in five states. A train was wrecked near Cincinnati in a fog. Streams went booming high and great damage was done by floods.

In Cincinnati, on 5th, five inches of rainfall in 18 hours preceding noon, is the unprecedented record made. All of the roads coming into the city found their lines paralyzed by washouts or overflows. At Loveland the tracks were four feet under water.

THE GRANGERS' BILL

Members of the grange legislative committee, says the Patriot, were to have a hearing yesterday before the house ways and means committee on the revenue bill of the Pennsylvania state conference.

The grangers are committed to the bill and believe it will place more tax on corporations. A practical test of the amount of revenue it will raise is now being made by the auditor general's department.

Peace, or McKinley Gives You No Pie.

No pie so long as Pennsylvania Republicans are at war among themselves—that is President McKinley's ultimatum. Not only will the president not make any appointments for this state, but he will not even consider applications, according to trustworthy information.

The auditors of Penn township met at this place on Monday to examine the accounts of the Overseers of Poor, and the Supervisors respectively; they found the finances of the township in excellent condition; another evidence of Democratic economy.

SPRING MILLS.

Happenings of More Than Minor Interest Down the Valley.

Since the inauguration the half-dozen prominent applicants for the post-mastership of our village are becoming a little nervous and excited; they know that doubtful things are very uncertain.

George Dunkle, the well-known wall paper dealer, has moved from his old quarters on the "hill" to the residence formerly occupied by William Neese; the families simply made an exchange of dwellings.

The stone walk to be built along Penns Creek from the foot log passing the M. E. church to the iron bridge over Sinking Creek, a distance of probably five hundred feet, will now be commenced in earnest; high time, heretofore there has been too much talk and no work.

Saturday last was the anniversary of the 80th birthday of Mrs. Jane D. Nofsker, a very highly esteemed and estimable lady of our village, and as "Aunt Jane," her name here is as familiar as household words.

At the north end of the town of Madisonburg Mr. Kline, a Jew, has a store. On last Wednesday while George Miller, who is familiarly called "fatty," happened to be the only loafer, Kline and Miller while talking agreed that the one who would succeed in putting the other out of the store would receive from the loser a box of cigars; after they had been at the tussle for some time J. A. Deitrich happened to come along, and when he was about to enter the store he saw at once that Kline had Miller on the floor and had drawn a hatchet to cut Miller. Just at this moment Deitrich caught the Jew's arm, and saved Miller's life; upon investigation it was found that Miller had received an ugly gash in the back of the head from the Jew's hatchet; if the cut had been a little deeper it would have caused instant death to Miller.

It is supposed the Jew has a grudge against Miller for some reason and thought it appropriate to exercise the same while alone.

Frank, the oldest merchant and ex-town clerk of Rebersburg, who claims to have completed a course, by observation, in the Rebersburg trapping school, is now with great delight putting into practical experience his trapping knowledge already acquired, in trying to trap those pets which are commonly called "skunks" which have found a favorable place to live under the north end of the store and from what Mr. Frank can learn the place is also very favorable for the propagation of the cat family; however, Mr. Frank is in the midst of discouragements, and is almost ready to acknowledge that it is necessary for him to take a post-graduate course in the school of trapping, in order to make a success of his new undertaking.

The members of the Epworth League of Kremerville, gave an entertainment in the M. E. church last Saturday evening; the music was excellent and appropriate throughout the exercises; the address of welcome was well rendered and the following gave recitations, which were also well rendered and appropriate: Amanda Winters, Stella Miller, Annie, Harry and Esta Kreamer, Gertrude Styers, Maggie Harvey, and the closing recitation by Nellie Brindle; the clippings by John Brindle were very much appreciated by the audience. Samuel Winters conducted the exercises of the evening; the church was crowded to its utmost.

At the north end of the town of Madisonburg Mr. Kline, a Jew, has a store. On last Wednesday while George Miller, who is familiarly called "fatty," happened to be the only loafer, Kline and Miller while talking agreed that the one who would succeed in putting the other out of the store would receive from the loser a box of cigars; after they had been at the tussle for some time J. T. S. Swartz, one of our bright young men, took a flying trip to Bellefonte last Thursday.

Lot McClathlan and Mrs. Fishburn of this place, were the guests of Calvin Rossman, at Siglerville over Sunday.

Wm. Rossman of Siglerville, who has been visiting among his many friends for some time, has been detained on account of his horse being lame. That the officers they elect will discharge their duties as the law directs and not allow them to leave rods of unbroken stone on the highways, and that where stone is put on the roads they are properly broken; some places the roads are almost impassible, worse than some of our mountain roads. It is a shame the way the road was left on the east side of the new iron bridge. I hope our incoming supervisors will create improvements that will be a benefit to future generations.

Not How High

But how low can we make the price, is the question we ask ourselves when marking our goods for sale. That's what makes ours an ever-expanding business, it's a potent advertiser; it tells the story through the purse in many homes, only to be re-told to others by appreciative money savers.
