more obnoxious every day as people get to understand it. Republicans in all sections are displeased with it and in business circles it is creating uneasiness. The gold Democrats who supported McKinley are howling against the bill as a tariff to aid the trusts, but these are only getting what they voted for with open eyes. The Dingley bill is the most unpopular measure that could have been drafted.

THE Arbuckles the other day met a cut of half a cent a pound made a few days before by the Woolson Spice Company of Toledo, which the American Sugar Refining Company controls, in the price of their brand of roasted coffee. The cuts reduce the price of both concerns to 11 cents a pound net.

In the coffee market, since the decline, which is based on an exceedingly large visible supply, began, prices dropped 5 cents.

Bardsley, who stole millions, only got a nominal term in prison.

In making improvements on streets such as grading, raising and lowering a roadbed, etc., the law strictly requires of a town council that notice of such intention shall be published and that property owners adjoining such work must be personally notified. Where such work interferes with the approach to any property the owner can lay in claim for damages. There is a penalty for not giving such notice.

THE CENTRE REPORTER objecting to such a tax, it is probable that they can be made to see an advantage in it. Such a tax is not much to pay for roads in the high state of perfection demanded for bicycles, and most of the wheelmen would probably pay it gladly if assured that it will aid in putting the roads in the condition contemplated by the Hamilton bill. And, indeed, since the majority of bicyclers are young people who pay no other taxes, it is only fair that they should contribute something toward paying for the roads they use.-Phila. Ledger.

A SENSIBLE BALLOT LAW.

House Bill No. 231, now pending at Harrisburg, provides a simple, straightforward application of the Australian ballot system in the place of the cumbersome and every way unsatisfactory blanket ballot law now in operation, and it should be promptly passed. The bill was prepared by the Ballot Reform Association of Pennsylvania, of which John Russell Young is president, and any one who will give a moment's scrutiny to the sample ballot will be convinced of its superiority over the blanket sheet necessi- to the fact that we have purchased tated by the existing law.
