A Runaway on Nittany Moantain. On Saturday night last, about eleven o'clock, while on their way back from taking part in the Memorial Day services at Potters Mills, Hugh Taylor Saturday evening June 5th, by the Charles Arney, Joshua T. Potter, Rev. and Samuel Gettig met with quite an girls of Mary Kreamer's Sunday school F. F. Christine, and W. O. Rearick, experience. They had nearly reached class. The programme will consist of met on Tuesday evening in order to the top of Nittany mountain when they saw a horse and buggy coming towards them driven by a woman. Just behind Taylor and Gettig came the Pleasant Gap band, on their way back from Centre Hall, making the mountains echo with their music. The horse driven by the woman hearing this became frightened and, wheeling in the road, started to run away. The "For God's sake stop this horse."
