AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

Streams Not Private When Stocked With Fish Procured from the State Fish Commission.

A decision important to anglers has been made by the supreme court of Pennsylvania through Judge Sterret holding that the streams stocked with fish procured from the State Fish Commission are not private, and all streams are public unless the fish are actually propagated. To do this so that the stream may become legally private, the spawn of the fish to be propagated must be kept in a separate screen cell, the fry when hatched put into another screen cell, and so on until they are large enough to take care of themselves. Even then, if the person who is propagating them would own them he must keep them confined by themselves, and so much of the stream becomes private as is within the screens placed there by the owner. A pond surrounded by the owner's lands, without any continuous flow, may be called a private pond, but if the water of a pond covers a large surface of land, and a person whose lands are covered only by a part of the water places fish therein for the purpose of propagation, he does not by such act make it a private pond. Neither is a notice that all persons are hereby notified not to trespass on these lands or fish in this pond a sufficient notice to make it illegal for either strangers or neighbors to trespass or fish. The mere placing of fish in a stream or pond for the purpose of propagation does not make such water private under the statute even on the property of the person where the fish were put in.

To Avoid Sunstroke.

Frequent bathing, regular habits, plain diet, plenty of sleep and abstinence from alcoholic liquors are the regimen prescribed by the doctors for the avoidance of sunstroke. This prescription, carefully followed, will make a pretty good citizen out of any man, and it would be well if everybody would accustom himself to it on that account quite irrespective of the weather. There is greater inducement to practice it in hot weather, however, and it should be begun at once. Now is the time to reform.

A Record.

Hiram Durst, the practical farmer east of Centre Hall, has just finished cutting his crop of wheat. Seventeen years ago he was among the first in the valley to purchase a binder, and he has the same machine in use yet today, doing the work practically good as when bought years ago. During all these years, he has not found it necessary to take the knives out of the bar. Hiram says he will put his machine up against any later date make and do as good all round work, if not better.

40 Persons Killed, 84 Injured.

Forty persons were killed and 84 seriously injured by a collision between two trains at Gjentofte at midnight of 11th, in Sweden. The collision was due to an error made by the engineer in reading the signal and failure of a brake to act.
