I am in receipt of the Reporter of 2d inst., which advises me, that I was in the wrong convention, when I offered the resolution of the Business Men's League approving of the (fovernor's acts and condemning the acts of the Legislature. Our esteemed friend Shortlidge has considerable credit with us for honesty of purpose, and for sticking to the wrong as long as he believes it is the right. In the platform of the Business Men's League there is much of which friend Shortlidge need not feel in the least ashamed, as it strikes at the astounding corruption and plundering The search for new gold fields is one practiced by the Republican legislatures the past three sessions.

RAIDING THE TREASURY

Senator Penrose's view that the secret $20,000 bond transaction was "only a trifle, a tempest in a teapot, and is too trivial to talk about," does not inexperts, and will ask the architects for | dicate a very high code of political morality, says the Pittsburg Post. It was part of a scheme to draw public moneys from the treasury in violation of law and in continuance of a policy that has long held sway in Harrisburg of regarding the treasury as a private loan office. The Philadelphia Bulletin is a Republican paper, and makes these pertinent comments on the lawless and demoralizing proceeding the senator sets down as a mere trifle.

> It is a system which no citizen who believes in sound and businesslike methods of handling the public money can give approval to. It is loose, irregular and demoralizing, no matter how much the treasurer himself may be "protected" by the bonds of outsiders. It means, in effect, that the treasury may be used for advancing money to any friends of the treasurer whom he may feel disposed to oblige, and that so long as the state, at some time, gets the money back again, it is nobody's business how it may be taken out or to what purpose it may be devoted. It is one of the conspicuous forms, in this state, of the evil of 'money in politics" so much deplored in a Republican platform of which Senator Penrose himself, not long ago, was among the foremost champions.

> The fact is further pointed out that in this case the secret bond was used to indemnify the treasurer for supplying money, not for tiding over some public emergency, which would have made it excusable, but for the compensation of a lot of nominal employes of the Legislature whom the governor justly refused to quarter on the public treasury under the color of law. And it was openly charged on the floor of the House, and denial challenged, that among this lot of pensioned politicians were a number sent on from Washington, presumably by Quay and Penrose. with instructions places should be provided for them. This is probably the reason the senator regards the secret bond with a leniency that borders on commendation.

> > THE CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Chairman Taylor Issues an Address to the Democracy of Centre Co.

To the Democracy of Centre County. The campaign in this State and County is now on. The representatives of the Democratic party assembled in convention at Reading, Pa., August 31, and nominated a strong state ticket and adopted a platform based on true Democracy, reiterating and reaffirming the Chicago platform, the principles as taught by Jefferson, Jackson, Benton, and championed in the last great conflict by that able and brilliant young commoner, William Jennings Bryan, defender of the people's rights and the great leader of the Democratic party which has administered this government during eighty years of its existence. I urge you from now until election day to further the interests of our party and have every vote out in your precinct. Centre county is Democratic by a good majority. We must make a great effort to place her high up in the Democratic column this fall. The Dingley Tariff Bill combined with the single gold standard has failed to bring the promised prosperity to the idle men, starving women and children all over this great country. The striking miners, the closing of furnaces, mills and factories combined with great financial failures is a mere indication of the great havoc, misery and disaster it is now spreading among our people; wages have been reduced. the necessaries of life increased, yet the deficiency in the treasury under the Dingley Bill, the highest tariff that has existed in this country is $14,-500,000 the first month. Then let us battle and vote to return to the money and principles of the Constitution, the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver, a low tariff to defray the expenses of the government and the affairs growth of gigantic trusts and combines a menace to our peace and prosperity as people. The State and County ticket is strong, they are men who have always been found fighting in the front in every campaign for Democratic principles-men who stood on markably well. Charles Krape, of our village, has just commenced the foundation walls for a structure of some kind, whether its to be a dwelling, store-room or simply an office, is merely guess work.

The continued dry weather is playing havoc with pastures, the grass is withering and the earth fattiy baked. A steady rain of about two days duration would be a welcome visitor.

Friday night last, is reported to have been the hottest so far of the season. To sleep was out of the question. It is said that on Saturday morning some persons were exhausted, in fact had almost melted from the excessive heat during the night, that they were obliged to be taken out of bed with a

A large number of our people attended the annual reunion of the Veteran Association of Centre and Clinton counties, at Hecla Park, on Saturday last, our village was almost deserted. The weather was extremely oppressive, and at times the heat was very intense, every tree, shrub, and even the fence rails seemed to be heated to a boiling capacity, yet the multitude on the ground enjoyed themselves notwithstanding. By the way your humble servant had quite an interesting conversation with a scarred old veteran from Clinton county, whose eyes resembled gems and fairly sparkled with enthusiasm while relating the dangers he had passed through during the war of the "hair breadth escapes in the imminent deadly breach, of being taken by the insolent foe, etc. Indeed in recalling these old associations, the old gentleman seemed to be in his youth again. Again he was a warrior in the battle field, again fighting his way through a storm of iron hail instead of as he informed me, rapidly approach. ing his three score years and ten. I I could mention many little incidents coming under my observation while promenading in the Park, some very amusing, some otherwise. The addresses were brief, very appropriate and quite brilliant. The games and bicycle racing decidedly lively and rather exciting. Indeed everything passed off according to the program, and in an admirable manner. The associations may well be proud of their reunion, and proud too, in their complete success in amusing and entertaining so agreeably, such a vast multitude as were present on Saturday last.

The little band of Republicans here, and no doubt the party generally, are somewhat startled at the outlook in the mining districts of this and other states, as well they may be. The little coterie here were verdant to a pitiful degree in supposing that the operators secured in their tariff protection, would now protect their miners and pay them something above starvation wages, of course the party managers knew better. But here in these valleys, this was their song during the entire campaign, in fact it was the promulgated clap trap of the bosses. Every working man, they repeated that time and again, would be employed at good wages, prosperity with her luminous wings would cover the whole country; they would feel the benign effects of McKinleyism and the tariff at once. Yes, they do feel the effects of the tariff with a vengeance. Wages reduced; strikes and tumults almost a daily occurrence, and everything the laborer sees, eats and wears is beyond his ability to purchase. Is it any wonder that there is such a widespread discontent bordering on rebellion among the laboring classes? They have discovered that all the bright promises made to them previous to the last presidential election have vanished, and instead they see trusts, combinations and syndicates enriched by millions by a vile and wretched tariff. framed especially to reimburse them for their lavish and villainous expenditure of money, contributed solely to debauch the presidential election, while they, the bone and sinew of the country are more impoverished, on the verge of starvation, and almost forced to dig their own dark graves, creep into them and die. When will the laboring man learn wisdom or even common sense, and scorn to be led by the nose like asses are, and be contin-ually bamboozled and humbugged by these dark gamesters miscalled politi-
