After quoting laws and unbroken decisions of courts, the latter being especially clear that the directors of corporations have no right to use the funds of which they are the guardians for any other purposes than those for which the corporation was formed to promote, the Evening Post lays down the principle 'that a payment of corporate funds as a political assessment involves the commission of a crime or of a series of criminal offenses." This it carefully backs up with the law and court decisions. It shows the money is diverted by directors can be recovered by the tectionist. "The Record" is moved to stockholders, and the boss who collected the assessment can be held for blackmail and punished by heavy fines and years of imprisonment.

SPRING MILLS.

An Interesting Letter from Our Scribe from the Busy Town.

A few evenings since the Spring Mills band tendered a serenade to John Auman, one of our prominent citizens. After playing several pieces of very fine music, Mr. Auman with his usual liberality, presented the band with quite a handsome sum of money.

Commercial agents are again on their middle trips. All report that the fall business has been quite fair, while the orders received on the road now are about the average; of course property in repair and clean. that is not very flattering. The question with many at the present time is, how long will the middle trips-between seasons-be continued. The regular trips pays a trifle above expenses, while the other trips generally fall short. If a very decided improvement in business does not occur soon, they think that about one-half of the traveling men will be withdrawn.

Last week we thought winter had set in in earnest; for two days the wind swept down this valley like a tornado, and seemed to come directly from Greenland. But since then the weather has been spring like; our farmers have about all their corn husked and stored, together with all the fodder. Many of our garden are ornamented with huge hills, under which tf are planted cabbage, turnips, apples, etc., for spring use. The recent rains have improved the wheat fields very

Mrs. Deshler, wife of Dr. Deshler, sold one of her squares of ground to Mrs. Annie M. Stover, for $155.

The Latest Scheme. Two men travel together; one has a kodak or something resembling it. One of them goes to a farm house and tells the family he is getting up a history of that section to publish in a leading paper and wants to take a picture of the family and the buildings, telling the farmer it will not cost a cent.

The family group themselves out in front and the operator is quite a while in getting a satisfactory picture; at last it is done and he takes his leave telling them about what time they can expect to see the paper with it in. During this time his confederate has looted the house, taking money, jewelry and watches. In one instance the kodak was a cigar box covered with leather.
