Warned Gould of the Cost. Paul Gore, now clerk at the Auditorium Annex, was room cierk at the Grand Pacific for several years. He tells a story in connection with Jay Gould's first visit to Chicago. Mr. Gould had registered at the Grand Pacific, and was standing in the lobby with his hands in his coat pockets, looking like a countryman in town. The little millionaire approached J. P. Vidal, who was clerk at the house, and modestly asked him what would be the best way for him to go to Lincoln Park. Vidal, not knowing who Gould was, gave him the necessary instruction as mot go in a carriage?"

"Yes, you can; but it is a little expensive," said Vidal.

"Well, as this is my first visit, I think I will try to stand the expense." "All right, but to whom shall I charge the carriage?' asked the clerk. "To Jay Gould," came the quiet anwer. Vidal almost fell to the floor,

When Israel came out of Egypt there were 600,000 fighting men. Abijah commanded 400,000. Jeroboam commanded 800,000 men, of whom 500,000 were slain in one battle. Some of these wars God approved, for they were for the rescue of oppressed nations, and some of them Hedenounced, but in all cases it was a judgment upon both victors and vanquished. David knew just what war was when he wrote in the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text," Though war should rise to the second of the text, "Though war should rise to the second of the text," Though war should rise to the second of the text, were brought into a contest to the second of the text, were brought into a contest to the second of the text, were brought into a contest to the second of the text, were brought into a contest to the second of the text, who were in the slible putting it in one of those graphic sentences for which the book is remark-the slible putting it in one of those graphic sentences for which the book is remark-the block in the block is remark-the block in the book is remark-the block in the block is remark-the block in the block is remark-the ment upon both victors and vanquished. David knew just what war was when he wrote in the text, "Though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident."

David is here encouraging himself in stormy times, and before approaching battles administers to himself the consolatory. So to day my theme is the "Alleviations of War." War is organized atrocity. It is the science of assassination. It is the convocation of all horrors. It is butchery wholesale. It is murder glorified. It is death on a throne of human skeletons. It is the coffin in ascendancy. It is diabolism at a game of skulls. And the time is coming when war will be an impossibility. How far in the future I cannot say, but there will reply, "That is a sword." And the son will say, "What is that sharp, curred instrument?" and the father will reply, "That is a sword." And the son will say, "What are those round pieces of iron?" and the father will reply, "That is a sword." And the son will say, "What are those round pieces of iron?" and the father will reply, "Those are bullets and cannon balls and bombshells. Those are the things with which in the Dark Ages people killed each other." Yet the father, will have hard work to make the son believe that such things were ever the fathy, will have hard work to make the amounts to no Sabbath at all; to go out son believe that such things were ever from homes where all sanitary laws are

It is a war intiplied by mercy, which is an attribute in man imitative of the same attribute of God. In no other age of the world could such a war have been waged. The gospel of kindness needed to be recognized throughout Christendom in order to make such a war possible. The chief reason why most of the European nations are not now banded together against us is because they dare not take the part of that behemoth of cruelty, the Spanish Government, against the crusade of mercy which our nation has started. Had it been on our part a war of conquest, a war of annexation, a war of aggrandizement, there would have been by this time enough flying squadrons coming to this country across the Atlantic to throw into panic every city and on our American seaboard.

million slain in wars with Turks and Saracens; of the fifty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars of Justinian; and the thirty-two million slain in the wars of Genghis Kahn, not one man was sacrificed for mercy; but in this Hispanic-American war every drummer boy, or picket, or gunner, or standard-bearer, or skirmisher, or sharpshooter, or cavalryman, or artilleryman, or engineer who falls, falls in the cause of mercy, and becomes a martyr for God and his country.

Another alleviation of this war is that t is for the advancement of the sublime principle of liberty, which will yet engirdle the earth. Not only will this war free Cuba, but finally will free Spain. By what right does a dynasty like that stand, and a corrupt court dominate a people for cen-turies, taxing them to death, riding in glided charlot over the necks of a beggared negulation? opulation?

Another alleviation is that the war opens Pertinent to the Exciting Times with a great victory for the United States.

Through Which We Are Now Passing- in the most jubilant manner let the victory Cheer For Those Whose Hearts Are Sad of our navy be celebrated. With the story of the destroyed battleship fresh in the minds of the world it would require no ordinary courage to sail into the harbor of The ring of battle-axes and the clash of shields, and the tramp of armies are heard all up and down the Old Testament; and you find godly soldiers like Moses, and Joshua, and Caleb, and Gideon, and Shaimaneser, and Nebuchadnezzar. The High Priest would stand at the head of the army and say: "Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies, let not your nearts faint; fear not, and do not tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them!" and then the officers would give command to the troops, say-

Another alleviation is the fact that in son believe that such things were ever used for the destruction of human life. But that time has not yet arrived, and having on other occasions spoken to you of the "Aggravations of War," now that war is actually here it is time to speak of its alleviations.

If no homes where all sanitary have are observed into surroundings where questions of health are never discussed; to invade climes where pestilence holds possession; to make long marches under blistering skies; to stand on deek and in the fields under fire, at the mercy of shot and First, I find an alleviation in the fact that shell-we must admit that those thus ex-It has consolidated the North and South posed need especial care, and to the Omnipresent God we have a right to commend them, and will commend them. this beloved land to the care of a gracious God. That He answers prayer is so cerare now lifted to strike down Hispanic abominations.

Another alleviation of the war is the fact that it is the most unselfish war of the ages. swooped upon the Spanish Armada. Most of the ships soon went down under the sea, while others were driven helplessly along to be splintered on the coasts of England, to be splintered on the coasts of England, Ireland, Scotland, and Norway. Another Spanish Armada is crossing the Atlantic, and we are ready to meet them. The same God who destroyed the Armada in 1598 reigns in 1898. The wars of the Crusaders were only to regain an empty sepulchre: the Napoleonic wars, with their six million slaughtered men, were projected and carried out to appease the ambition of one man; of the twenty-five million slain in Jewish wars, and of the sixy million slain in the wars under Julius Cæsar; of the one hundred and eighty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the fifty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the chenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the twenty million slain in wars with Xerxes; of the chenty; two million slain in the wars of Genghis Kahn, not one man was sacrificed for mercy; but in this Hispanic-American war every drummer boy, or picket, or gunner, or standard-bearer, or skirmisher, or sharpsshooter, or Americans and Victoria's Birthd.y.

The Savage and the Bird Cage. A gentleman who went out with Stanley to Africa took with him a number of bird cages, in which he hoped to bring back some specimens of the rarer birds of the interior. Owing to the death of his carriers, he was obliged to throw away the bird cages with a number of other articles. These were seized by the matives in great glee, though they did not know what to do with them; but they eventually decided that the small circular cages were a kind of head gear, and, knocking off the bottom, the chiefs strutted about in them with evident pride. One chief, thinking himself more wise than the others, and having seen the white men eat at table out of dishes, thought they were receptacles for food, and took his meals from one, ceremoniously opening and shuttering the door between each monthful.

No Ready Money Needed.

In the British settlement in the great Chinese city of Shanghai ready money is practically unknown. After you have had lunch at a restaurant you calmly get up and walk out without a thought of payment in cash. Some time later in the day a coolie arrives at your residence with a tiny slip of paper-a "chit." as they call it—simply a memoradum of the amount. You get a shave at your barber's; the same system is carried out. You purchase a newspaper or a bouquet; a "chit" is the result. The very shoeblack does not ask for cop-pers, but brings in his bill at the end of the month.
