Not for Amusement.

The thing that keeps down the newspeople think that editors pursue their journalist eating a contributed poem for want of bread or pie. When a man has a roll of bills he pays everybody before he remembers that he owes the amiable editor; he squares up with the butcher, the baker, the horse blanket maker, and by the time he is through he says to himself the editor will have to wait a while. A great many editors in this world of sorrow and sin have been compelled to wait awhile; they have waited until their whiskers have turned gray, and their bosoms become melancholy and their hearts hard; and they are waiting yet and will wait until the sun grows cold. and the stars are old, and the leaves of the judgment book unfold. And it is all very sad, at least.
