New York, (Special.)-"Is he here? Well, it's like Dewey !"

This was about what the average New Yorker said Tuesday when he heard that the hero of Manila had arrived in the lower Just as he had stolen in on the Spanlards at Manila, the bold Admiral steamed into New York waters early in the morning, and at 6 A. M. he cast anchor near Sandy Hook. The first shout of welcome was from the pilots and crew of Pilot Boat No. 7, 15 miles south of the Hook lightship. It happened to be Pilot John Peterson's turn, and at 5.30 A. M. he was put aboard the Olympia and brought here around the Hook and into the lower bay.

The marine observers along the coast had sighted the Olympia in the first light of the morning. The shore batteries of Fort Hancock, manned by gunners called from breakfast, let loose 17 guns. The flagship replied and let go her anchor not far from where the cup challenger Shamrock is moored.

The Admiral was in his own country again, after 23 months absence. The pilot had taken him the Sunday New York papers. and soon his cabin was littered with the illustrated "Dewey editions," which together made hundreds of pages in black and white and in colors, all concerning the great Admiral and the preparations made to receive him.

"It almost saddens me," he said, "to see what my people are doing for me. The pride and gratification are immense and I cannot express the appreciation I feel. I splendid welcome that my countrymen are giving me. The Governors of many States Florids, Georgia and other far away States are on their way to take part in receiving vessels of peace.

The Admiral stroked the head of a tawnyhair dog, a Chow dog of a Chinese breed that is one of his favorite pets.

"Bob here," he said, "is not well. He sarns to be ashore. He is sick to get a little grass and to scamper around. I feel a good deal that way myself. I am mighty glad to get home. It is not good for a man any more than a dog to live on shipboard for 23 months.

The Admiral said he felt tired, but he did not look so. His complexion is a clear bronze, his hazel eyes are bright, his bearing is brisk and rather jaunty. Some deep lines are under his eyes and around his mouth, but his voice is singularly clear and pleasant.

The hero's whole presence is that of a man in his fullest powers. His manner is gentle and kind.

Alluding to his arrival two days ahead of the time he was expected, the Admiral said:

"I am sorry that I am ahead of the schedule. The Olympia has been steaming at the uniform rate of 10 knots an hour since we left Gibraltar. Several days ago we knew that we would arrive before Thursday unless we moderated our speed or went somewhere out of our course.

"Captain Lamberton, Lieutenant Brumby and I held a consultation. The propriety of running into Hamption Roads or some other port in the South was spoken of, but wa concluded that we ought not to touch land first anywhere except at New York. It was suggested that we cruise some distance outside New York harnor until Thursday, but we knew that if we did that we would be discovered and reported. The weather looked a little squally, and it seemed to be better inside the Hook than outside,

"But the consideration that really decided us to come into port was to give Captain Lamberton a chance to clean up the ship before our voyage up the harbor. Captain Lamberton and I are proud of the Olympia, and we wanted enough time at our anchorage to rub her down and make her look spick and span."

The Olympia looks as smart now as yacht. Her anchors were hardly down before her crew were washing the ship's white sides and tonehing up the stains with

New York, (Special.)—Three leading events marked the first day of the Dewey celebration. Of these by far the nicst important was the superb parade of warships in triumphal procession from Tompkinsville, S. In addition to the resident population of New York, it is estimated that 2,000,030 visttors were in the city to see the parade. Most of them were able to do so, he saw the wonderful sight from the bridge of the Olympia. His modesty did not de-

Next in importance to the naval parade was a dazzling illumination at night of the harbor, the city and the shores of the Hudson, the East river and New York bay. The illumination was arranged by an official city committee, and was carried out on a scale which, it is said, had never previously been attempted in this country.

The third event that marked the day occurred in the morning before the naval parade, when Mayor Van Wyck, accompanied by the Governors of a number of States, went down to the Oympia on the steamer Sandy Hook and extended an official welcome to Admiral Dewry. The chief event of the second day of the celebration was the land parade. Gen. Charles P. Roe, who has organized

The wharves and piers and rocky heights and grassy knolls were coveren with enthusiastic people, who strived to make their shouts heard above the bedlam of tooting whistles. As the tomb of General Grant, on Riverside Drive, was reached the fleet paid itstribute to the memory of the warrior with a national salute of 21 roaring guns.

The fleet then anchored and reviewed the almost endless procession of craft that steamed past, all so burdened with humanity that they looked as if they would "turn turtle" before they got back to their piers. Toward the end the parade became disorganized, and it took hours for the heterogenous flotilia to get by. Darkness at last brought relief to the tired Admiral, who had stood on the bridge six hours, bowing his acknowledgements to the stentorian expressions of homage.

New York has never witnessed before any. thing approaching this wonderful demonstration. The Columbian naval parade, the dedication of the Grant tomb and the reception of the North Atlantic squadron last fail, all pale before this gigantic ovation to the salior who, in a single morning, destroyed an enemy's fleet without the loss of a man or a ship. It is not beyond the mark to say hat 3,000,000 persons viewed the pageant from ashore, and that 250,000 were affeat. The parade was an immense marine picture, a water pageant, that appealed to the Empire State Official Welcome.

Admiral Dewey and his officers and men on the Olympia were formally welcomed to the state of New York by Governor Roosevelt and the chief officers of the National Guard of the state, who went down the bay on General Francis V. Greene's yacht Wild Duck. Besides the governor, there were in the party other men whose grasps of the Admiral's bands were something more than formal. General Francis V. Greene, who went with the governor, is a Manila campaigner, and for the first time since the Admirai left the harbor of Manila he shook hands with some of the captains who commanded vessels in his squadron on May 1, 1898. These were Captain Wilder, of the Boston; Captain Dyer, of the Baltimore Captain Wood, of the Petrel; Captain Walker, of the Concord; and Captain Coghlan, of the Raieigh. Others who accomrapled the governor were the members of the staff of the State Militia, Brigadier General Avery B. Audrews, Military Secretary Treadwell and Captain J. W. Miller, commanding the State Naval Militia. Governor Roosevelt was received with a salute of thirteen guns. He was met at the gangway by Admiral Dewey, who conducted him to his cabin. When the governor left the Olympfa he was taken to the New Hampshire, of the Naval Militia, where he held a

TRAGICEND OF WEDDING

Iwo Men Were Shot After a Hot Dispute About Religion and One Victim Will Die-Discoveries of Copper Reported in Columbia County-Burglars Ransacked Residence at Lancaster.

Another murder is likely to be added to the long list of tragedies lately enacted in the Lehigh Valley. The victim is John Vosco, a Hungarian, and his brother, Mike Vosco, is also badly injured. The tragedy was the outcome of a Hungarian wedding celebration in Upper Catasauqua, when George Kapehag and Annie Olta were married. After the ceremony the usual festivities began. Keg after keg of beer disappeared and the guests became bolsterous. The Vosco brothers reside at Egypt, this county, and belong to the United Greek Catholic Church, while the great majority of the guests at the wedding are members of the Orthodox Greek Catholic Church. The Vosco brothers had been warned to remain away on account of the bitter feeling between the members of the two factions of the Greek Church. They attended, however, and a discussion on religion was started. The argument grew bot, and the climax was reached when John Vosco, it is alleged, made an insulting remark about the Orthodox faction. At first the fight was limited to a few men, but soon all was confusion, and knives, beer glasses, furniture and everything that was handy was used as weapons. In the excitement the lights were extinguished. Soon after a pistol shot was heard and John Vosco fell to the floor with a buliet hole in his abdomen. A minute later Mike Tosco was shot in the nose, After the shooting the Huns left the house and went to a dance hall. Chief of Police Sheckler, of Catasauqua, was notified. Vasie Mackanich and John Shimshay, of Catasauqua, were arrested on suspicion of having done the shooting and they are in the Catasauqua lock-up. On Shimshay a revolver with an empty chamber was found. He said that he had fired a shot in self-defense, but does not know he hit anyone. The wounded men were taken to the Allentown Hospital. The doctors say that John's chances for recovery are very slight. Mike may recover.

Mining for Copper. The residents of Sugarloaf Township, located in the extreme northern end of Columbia county, have the copper craze. Within sight of the little town of Central they have discovered a rich find of copper and reports have it that miners are making from $5 to $8 a day in this new Eldorado. On the farm of J. P. Fritz a rich find of the metal was made and a large smelting plant is now in course of erection. This has spurred the owners of other farms in the vicinity, and in many places on each farm can be seen men sugaged in sinking shafts or the large piles of earth showing where a shaft has been sunk and abandoned. There is nothing talked of but copper in that section, and if the hopes of the residents are but partially realized, the upper end will soon have changed its standing and become the richest section of the county.
