There is no monarchy in ceptable Democrat on the ticket, our Europe so illiberal as this self-same Dutch Republic. To know this we need only explore for a moment in the constitution of the Transvaal. This constitution invites all comers to the country and then declares that equality between the white and colored races and between natives and foreigners shall not be tolerated either in state tween the heroic American officers or church. It forbids the existence of any Catholic church within the confines of the republic. It goes further and forbids the existence of any Protestant churches save those that are willing to teach the doctrines of the Heidelberg catechism. It is made unconstitutional for a white preacher to fesses to having voted the Republican baptize a negro, or to marry a negro couple, and it is set forth in the creed are those who are members of the 200 tickets into the ballot box in one Dutch Reformed church. Taxation without representation is the very essence of the Transvaal government. The courts, though originally independent, are now mere creatures of the executive, and no man can become a judge unless he is a Boer and a churchman. In fact, bigotry sits enthroned in this Dutch Republic, and when the state is merged into the British empire the change in governmental system and the increase in social and political liberty will be so great as to appear almost revolutionary.
