Goose Bone Says Mild Winter.

Hundreds of Reading people have long pinned their faith to the weather prediction of Elias Hartz, aged 86 years as taken from the goose bone. Monday he obtained the breast bones of three geese hatched last spring. He says that they are the most remarkable he has ever seen, and indicate an unsuually mild winter. There will be no storms in that section, he says and there will be very little cold weather, at least not before the latter part of February, when we are likely to have a severe spell of cold and stormy weather. For the last fifty years Mr. Hartz has relied on the goose bone as a weather forecaster, and he says he has never known it to deceive him.
