Food, Work and Sleep.

What a great mistake it is to contend that time taken from toil for sleep and recreation is time lost! There is no greater fallacy, for sleep and recreation form, as it were, the cement put in to fill up the joints in order to keep out the weather and preserve the edifice. A man does not necessarily require riches, honor or office-although the majority of us naturally have an ambition to attain one of these desiderata-but he does need food, work and sleep. It follows therefore, that he should use every means to promote life, and among these there are three things to be kept in mind. When a man denies himself sleep, food and the exercise work gives both to brain and body he is robbing his life of its full term. Let him be cheerful also, for the body is like an engine-it will run well and long if it is well oiled. Contentment and cheerfulness are the oil which keeps the nerves from wearing out.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

THE EMINENT DIVINE'S SUNDAY DISCOURSE.

Subject: The Home Life--It Points Out the Duty of Purents and Admonishes the Children-Don't Stuff the Young People With Religion.

(Copyright 1900.)

Washington, D. C.—This discourse of Dr. Talmage will interest young men, while it is full of advice and encouragement to parents who are trying to bring up their children aright; text, Proverbs x., 1, "A wise son marketh a glad father, but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother." ish son is the heaviness of his mother."

In this graphic way Solomon sets forth the idea that the good or evil behavior of children blesses or blights the parental heart. I know there are persons who seem to have no especial interest in the welfare of their children. The father says: "My boy must take the risks I took in life. If he tarns out well, all right. If he turns out ill, he will have to bear the conse-out ill, he will have to bear the consequences. He has the same chance that I had. He must take care of himself." A shepherd might just as well thrust a lamb into a den of lions and say, "Little lamb, take care of yourself."

der her young to your keeping or your is not aware of the fact that the young touch. Allon will rend you if you come too near the whelps. Even the barnyard tations? too near the whelps. Even the barnyard fowl, with its clumsy foot and heavy wing, will come at you if you approach its young too nearly, and God certainly intended to have fathers and mothers as kind as the brutes.

Christ comes through all our households to-day, and He says: "You take care of the bodies of your children and the minds of your children. What are you doing for their immortal souls?" I read of a ship that foundered. A life-boat was launched. Many of the passengers were in the waters. A mother, with one hand beating the wave and the other hand holding her little child out toward the lifeboat, cried out, "Save my child!" And that impassioned cry is the one that finds an echo in every parental heart in this land to-day. "Save my the one that finds an ecno in every parental heart in this land to-day. "Save my child!" That man out there says: "I have fought my own way through life, I have got along tolerably well, the world has buffeted me, and I have had many a hard struggle.
It don't make much difference what happens to me, but save my child!" You see I have a subject of stupendous import, and I have a subject of stupendous import, and I am going, as God may help me, to show the cause of parental solicitude and then the alleviations of that solicitude.
The first cause of parental solicitude, I

The first cause of parental solicitude, I think, arises from the imperfection of parents on their own part. We all somehow want our children to avoid our faults. We hope that if we have any excellences they will copy them. But the probability is they will copy our faults and omit our excellences. Children are very apt to be echoes of the parental life. Some one meets a lad in the back street, finds him smoking and says: "Why, I am astonished at you! What would your father say if he knew this? Where did you get that cigar?" "Oh. I picked it up on the street." "What knew this? Where did you get that cigar?"

"Ob, I picked it up on the street." "What would your father say and your mother say if they knew this?" "Oh," he replies, "that's nothing. My father smokes!" There is not one of us to-day who would like to have our children copy all our examples. And that is the cause of the solicitude on the part of all of us. We have so many faults we do not want them copied and stereotyped in the lives and characters of those who come after us.

In the lowest grogshop.

Sometimes sin does not hait in that way sometimes sin even comes to the drawing room. There are leprous hearts sometimes admitted in the highest circles of society. He is so elegant, he is so bewitching in his manner, he is so refined, he is so educated, no one suspects the sinful description. What is the matter with that way sometimes sin does not hait in that way sometimes sin even comes to the drawing room. There are leprous hearts sometimes and mitted in the highest circles of society. He is so elegant, he is so bewitched in the highest circles of society. He is so refined, he is so educated, no one suspects the sinful design, but after a while the talons of death come forth. What is the matter with that he lowest grogshop.

those who come after us.

The solicitude arises from our conscious and skillfully to discipline; perhaps not more than one out of twenty. We, nearly more than one out of twenty. We, nearly all of us, err on one side or on the other. Here is a father who says, "I am going to bring up my children right; my sons shall know nothing but religion; shall see nothing but religion, and bear nothing but re-ligion." They are routed out at 6 o'clock in the morning to recite the Ten Commandments. They are awakened up from the sofa on Sunday night to recite the Westminster Catechism. Their bedroom walls are covered with religious pictures and quotations of Scripture, and when the boy looks for the day of the month he boy looks for the day of the month he looks for it in a religious almanac. If a minister comes to the house, he is requested to take the boy aside and tell him what a great sinner he is. It is religion morning, noon and night.

Time passes on and the persons are wait.

Time passes on, and the parents are waiting for the return of the son at night. It ing for the return of the son at hight. It is 9 o'clock, it is 11 o'clock, it is 12 o'clock, it is half-past 12 o'clock. Then they hear a rattling of the night key, and George comes in and hastens upstairs lest he be accosted. His father says, "George, where have you been?" He says, "I have been out." Yes, he has been out, and he has been down, and he has started on the broadroad to ruin for this life and ruin for the life to come, and the father says to his wife, "Mother, the Ten Com-mandments are a failure; no use of Westminster Catechism; I have done my very best for that boy; just see how he has turned out." Ah, my friend, you stuffed that boy with religion; you had no sympathey with innocent hilarities; you had no common sense. A man at midlife said to me, "I haven't much desire for religion; my father was as good a man as ever lived, but he jammed religion down my throat when I was a boy until I got disgusted with it, and I haven't wanted any of it since." That father erred on one side.

Then the discipline is an entire failure in many households because the father in many households because the father pulls one way and the mother pulls the other way. The father says, "My son, I told you if I ever found you gailty of falsehood again I would chastise you, and I am going to keep my promise." The mother says: "Don't! Let him off this time."

A father says, "I have seen so many that make mistake by too great severity in the rearing of their children. Now, I will let my boy do as he pleases. He shall have full swing. Here, my son, are tickets to my boy do as be pleases. He shall have full swing. Here, my son, are tickets to the theatre and opera. If you want to play eards, do so; if you don't want to play cards, you need not to play them. Go when you want and come back when you want and come back when yeu when you want and come back when you want to. Have a good time. Go it!" Give a boy pienty of money and ask him not what he does with it, and you pay his way straight to perdition. But after awhile the lad thinks he ought to have a still larger supply. He has been treated, and he must treat. He must have wine suppers. There are larger and larger ex-

But for the most part the children that live sometimes get cross and pick up bad words in the street or are disposed to quarrel with brother or sister and show that they are wicked. You see them in the Sabbath-school class. They are so sunshiny and bright you would think they were always so, but the mother looking over at them remembers what an awful time she had to get them ready. Time passes on. They get considerably older, and the son comes in from the street from a puglilstic encounter bearing on his appearance the marks of defeat, or the daughter practices some little deception in the household. The mother says, "I can't always be scolding and fretting and finding fault, but this must be stopped." So in many a household there is the sign of sin, the sign of the truthfulness of what the Bible says when it declares, "They go astray as soon as live sometimes get cross and pick up bad

There is also a cause of great solicitude into a den of lions and say, "Little lamb, take care of yourself,"

Nearly all the brute creation are kind enough to look after their young. I was going through a woods, and I heard a shrill cry in a nest. I climbed up to the bird's nest, and I found that the old bird had left the brood to starve. But that is a very rare securrence. Generally a bird will pick your eyes out rather than surrender her young to your keeping or your

At first it was a fashionable hotel. Marble flow. No unclean pictures behind the counter. No drunken hiccough while they drink, but the click of cut glass to the elegant sentiment. You ask that young man now to g into some low restaurant and get a drint and he would say, "De you mean to insu-me?" But the fashionable and the elegan hotel is not always close by, and now the young man is on the down grade. Farther and farther down until he has about struck the bottom of the depths of ruin. Now he is in the low restaurant. The cards so greasy you can hardly tell who has the best hand. Gambling for drinks. Shuffle away, shuffle away. The landlord stands in his short sleeves, with his hands on his hips, waiting for an order to fill up the

The clock strikes twelve—the tolling of the funeral bell of a soul. The breath of eternal wee flushes in that young man's cheeks. In the jets of the gaslight the flery tongue of the worm that never dies. Two o'clock in the morning, and now they Two o'clock in the morning, and now they are sound asleep in their chairs. Landlord comes around and says "Wake up, wake up! Time to shut up!" "What!" says the young man. "Time to shut up?" Push them all out into the night air. Now they are going home. Going home! Let the wife crouch in the corner and the children hide under the bed. What was the history of that young man? A shadow insufficiency and unwisdom of discipline. But of twenty parents there may be one parent who understands how thoroughly night and burricase. The agony of that night and burricase. The agony of that parent makes him say, "Oh, I wish I had buried my children when they were small!" Loss of property? No. Death in the family? No. Madness? No. Some villain, kid gloved and diamonded, lifted that cup of domestic bliss until the sun-light struck it and all the rainbows. light struck it, and all the rainbows into desolation and woe, until the harpies of darkness clapped their hands and all the voices of the pit uttered a loud "Ha,

The statistic has never been made up in these great cities of how many have been destroyed and how many beautiful homes have been overthrown. It the statistic could be presented, it would freeze your blood in a solid cake at your heart. Our great cities are full of temptations, and to vast multitudes of parents these tempta-tions become a matter of great solicitude. Begin early with your children. You stand on the banks of a river and you try to change its course. It has been rolling now for 100 miles. You cannot change it. But just go to the source of that river, ge to where the water just drips down on the Then with your knife make a channel this way and a channel that way, and it will take it. Come out and stand on the banks of your child's life when it is thirty or forty years of age, or even twenty, and try to change the course of that life. It is too late! It is too late! Go farther up at the source of life and nearest to the mother's heart, where the character starts, and try to take it in the right direction. But, ob, my friend, be careful to make a line, a distinct line between innocent hilarity on the one hand and vicious hilarity on the other. Do not think your children are going to ruin because they make a racket. All healthy children make a racket. But do not laugh at your child's sin because it is smart. If you do, you will cry after a while because it is malicious. Remember it is what you do make they what you say that is going do more than what you say that is going to affect your children. Do you suppose Noah would have got his family to go into the ark if he staid out? No. His sons would have said, "I am not going into the boat; there's something wrong; father won't go in; if father stays out, I'll stay

Are all your children safe? I know it is a Are all your children safe? I know it is a stupendous question to ask, but I must ask it. Are all your children safe? A mother, when the house was on fire, got out the household goods, many articles of beautiful furniture, but forgot to ask till too late, "Are the children safe?" When the elements are melting with fervent heat and God shall burn the world up and the cry of "Fire! Fire!" shall resound amid the mountains and the valleys, will your children be safe? children be safe?

I wonder if the subject strikes a chord in I wonder it the subject strikes a chord in the heart of any man who had Christian parentage, but has not lived as he ought? God brought you here this morning to have your memory revived. Did you have a Christian ancestry? "Oh, yes!" says one man. "If there ever was a good woman, my mother was good." How she watched you when you were sick! Others wearied. If she got weary, she nevertheless wan

After awhile one day a messenger from the bank over the way calls in and says to the father of the household of which I am speaking, "The officers of the bank would like to have you step over a minute." The father steps over, and the bank officer says, "Is that your check?" "No," he says; "that is not my check. I never made an 'H' in that way, I never put a curl to the 'Y' in thet way. That is not my writing. That is not my signature. That is a counterfeit. Send for the police." "Stop!" says the bank officer. "Your son wrote that."

Now the father and mother are waiting for the son to come home at night. It is o'clock, it is half-past 12 o'clock, it is half-past 12

THE WILV FILIPINO.

How He Makes Smokeless Powder Out of Japanese Matches.

An ingenious way of getting a smokeless powder out of the heads of Japanese matches has been disclosed in the Pilippine Islands. A report received at the War Department, Washington, from Panay, Visayan Islands,

"The robber bands which are now devastating are badly armed and are arrant cowards, but cruel and take no prisoners. An illustration was given a short time ago in the fate of three soldiers, who, having made themselves stupidly drunk on tuba, the distilled sap of the cocoanut trees, were left behind by the command. Their throats were promptly cut by the bolo-

"A patrol party of ten of twelve men sent after the stragglers, we learned afterwards from native sources, ran into an ambuscade of some two hundred insurgents, who did not even dare to attack, for they said the country was open and they would be hurt. Eight or ten Americans can go any where, but a man alone is in greater danger of being shot from ambush.

"The natives of the Visayas have not many guns, but a greater need of ammunition. A curious trick has been discovered, which shows their rascally ingenuity. For a long time we heard of quantities of Japanes matches coming into Hollo, and nobody could guess why so many millions should be recelved. Finally it was suggested that the heads of these matches made a good explosive.

"Experiments were made here, and we found, by rubbing the compound from the stick, that a practically smokeless explosive was obtained, of higher power than black powder, giving a velocity so great that the lead bullet stripped but even entering sideways penetrated about five inches forther into sand than was the case with black powder, the bullet entering point

"As the rascally insurgents slip out of what uniform they wear, hide their guns and bolos, and come in dressed in the usual white skirt and trousers as amigos, smiling and friendly, they could easily obtain all the matches they required for the next attack."

The Morbid Sense of Injury.

By this "sense of injury" is meant that vague sense which afflicts many of us at times of being the object of hostile feelings on the part of others. No odubt we often are, for, in the stress of necessary rivalry and conflict upon which progress depends, we give and take injuries. But there remains a large excess of this "injured" feeling which can not be so explained, or which is disproportionate to its cause or entirely gratuitous, and is thus shifted into the field of morbid psychology. This only is here treatedthe morbid sense of injury.

It seems to find an easy entrance to the mind from a mere feeling of being ill used or stinted in sympathy to the entertainment of serious grievances or persecutory ideas. In certain temperaments it is marked. On so-called "blue" days we are constantly moved to a "sense of injury" from fancied aloofness of our friends, Madam Lofty slights us, and our jaundiced imagination has it that she has heard some thing detrimental and dislikes us. But lo! to-day, when the liver is released, madam smiles sweetly, and never heard a thing. So in suspicious people. They entertain a chronic state of mind, by which the acts of others are given an invidious construction. They anticipate ill will, carrying the chip on the shoulder. Of two constructions of a given situation, they leap to the more offending. -W. F. Becker, M. D., in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

A Girl With a French Education.

"I'll never say another word about the advantages of a European education for girls," said the woman from the West. "I'll never talk about the charm of the convent-bred young woman. I've lost my last illusion, and one of the prettiest young women in Washington acted as iconoclast for my benefit. She is more than pretty, She has a look of being somebody, and she is somebody. She belongs in the diplomatic corps. I saw her at a big reception two or three weeks ago, and I watched her with delight. I thought how boisterous and unrefined most American girls seemed beside her. I actually blushed to think how their slang must shock her. So gentle, so quiet, so exquisite. I kept as near her as I could for I wanted to hear her speak. At last I stood next her in the dressing room, Somebody wanted her to go home, and what do you think that exponent of highest European feminine culture said:

"'No,' she said, 'I don't want to go home. I'm going downstairs for more feed.

"After all-well, the American girl has her good points, even if her education is not made in France,"-Washington Post.

Annual Use of Eggs.

Many eggs are used by bakers for akes, pies, etc., not only for the albumen and yolks, but also the coloring matter. It is estimated that 40,000,000 eggs are annually used by calico printers, and about 120,000,000 by photographic establishments, wine clarifiers, bookbinders, glove makers, leather finishers, etc. The estimate may not be strictly correct, but that a large number are used is well known.
