URGING JUST ACTION.

The Pennsylvania Grange Trade Bulletin in its last issue urges the farming class to action as follows:

At least three candidates have been nominated for the position of President of the United States, and the several parties have already appealed to the farmers for their votes at the polls at the coming national election.

It would be well for the farmers and the Grange to ascertain of these candidates as to whether the farmers' rights will be accorded them in numerical strength in filling the public offices of the national government before we pledge them our support.

The gross discrimination perpetrated against the farmers is too fresh in our memories to dismiss without a protest. Of the six hundred employees in the Department of Agriculture at Washington, not two dozen of them ever worked on a farm a day in their lives. Will these candidates for the Presidency agree to open the doors and remove these gross discriminations against our class? Now is the time for farmers to insist upon a straight auganization; and upon that answer let next November.

Let us firmly take this stand and heroically defend it as American freeposition of honor which the importance of our industry justly demands.

GOEBEL MURDER TRIAL.

Powers Sweetheart Tells a Secret on Him.

There were sensational developments in the trial of Caleb Powers, on 17, in Georgetown, Ky., accused of compli- july26-5t city in the murder of Governor William Goebel, and although statements were made which at the outset seemed to be damaging to the defense, yet cross-examination turned apparent defeat into victory, and the day closed with the defense thoroughly satisfied with the results.

Finley Anderson, of Barboursville, was put upon the stand and, resuming his testimony, said :

"I had a conversation at Barboursville with Caleb Powers with reference to my going to Frank North with the body of armed men. I asked him where the men were going and he said: To intimidate the Democrats, and if necessary to kill off a sufficient number of legislators to give the Republicans a majority."

"Was there any other conversation ?" was asked.

"Yes. On the evening of Jan. 24 Powers was in the telegraph office and said to me: 'Goebel will never live to be Governor. If I can't get somebody else to kill him I will do it myself."

These statements worked the interest up to the fever heat and the defense went at the witness fiercely when the prosecution had closed. Anderson became entangled and contradicted himself several times.

Miss Lucy Brock, of London, Ky., the flance of the defendant was put upon the stand to swear against him. She is young and pretty, and on taking her seat in the witness chair turned to Powers, who sat surrounded by his attorneys on the left side of the room, and bestowed upon him a smile which carried with it the sympathy of

"Did he say anything about any more money ?"

"I don't remember." "Did he say what Gov. Taylor said about furnishing more money ?"

"I can't say what he said." "Did he say this: 'Here is $1,000. We want a thousand men. I got this money from Gov. Taylor and can get more ?' "

"I don't remember."

Witness remembered that two different parties of men were sent from London to Frankfort. "Was Mr. Powers there at the time ?"

"Did you have any conversation with Mr. Powers about abandoning the project ?"

"Yes, we discussed it."

"What did he say ?" Witness did not remember.

"In a conversation with you did Powers say: 'This is Taylor's idea about bringing these men to Frankfort. I am for an open declaration of war ?' ''
