REPUBLICAN PROSPERITY.

Four years ago Mr. McKinley was heralded as the "advance agent of prosperity," and upon his election the people were promised plenty of work, good wages, good prices for the products of the farms, and prosperous times generally.

The "advance agent of prosperity" was elected, and with him a Republican majority in the Senate and House of Representatives, giving to the Republican party absolute control of the machinery of the National government.

According to their own anti-election declarations and promises they, by the vote of confidence given them by the people of this country, undertook to shape, and did absolutely shape the policy of the government in accordance with their ideas of the fitness of things, and whatever was done during the last four years, either for weal or for woe, the responsibility must fall upon the Republican party.

What has been accomplished by the party in power to fulfill the promise made four years ago? Has the era of general prosperity come? And if it has come, is it permanent and universal in its character?

The Republican party in its platform adopted at Philadelphia, points with pride to the prosperous condition of the country, and the complete happiness of our people under the benign influences of the policy of the McKinley administration; and the herd of corporation attorneys who absolutely controlled that body, and shaped its policies and utterances, grew eloquent in declaring that the Republican party alone, and no one else, not even providence, was responsible for the condition of the country. We are entirely willing to concede that the present condition of the country is due to the administrative policy of the Republican party, and we are also willing to admit that the policy that has resulted in the present condition of things was, and is absolutely dictated by the influences represented by Hanna and the money power, which influences were so potential in securing the elevation of the Republican party to power in the nation.

All this being conceded, what has been accomplished by the McKinley administration, and what are the effects of this policy upon the masses of our people?

A high protective tariff, known as the Dingley Bill, was practically the initiative measure of the new administration, by which according to the admissions of Carnegie and Havemeyer, chief beneficiaries, the enormous trusts, now feeding upon the life of the people, were created and enabled to maintain themselves. To carry on a war which ended long ago, an enormous war tax was created, which is still maintained, and by the operations of which immense sums of money are constantly flowing into the national treasury, which same are in turn diverted by questionable means, into channels where they find lodgement in the pockets of favorites of the administration, or are deposited in certain banks which have been "useful in electing McKinley" without interest, to be used in controlling the finances of Wall street and enriching the beneficiaries. Millions of dollars have been willfully wasted in paying the expenses of commissions of all kinds and descriptions, appointed by the president with the ostensible purpose of investigation, but really for the purpose of creating fat places to repay political favors.

The "canned beef" scandals, the army scandals of various kinds, and the Cuban postal and revenue frauds are all fresh in the minds of the people, and it has not been forgotten that the John Olson, aged fifty-eight years, of Renova, hung himself with a clothes line in the wood shed on his premises. He performed his chores around the house as usual prior to his disappearance.

A town has been established in the coal field in Canoe township, Clearfield county, named Rossiter, four miles from Punxsutawney. Seventy houses have been built, and that is only a starter.

C. E. Shields, of DuBois, was yesterday appointed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Schaeffer, superintendent of the Clearfield public schools to fill the vacancy created by the death of G. W. Weaver, of Clearfield.

The Pine Creek Gas and Oil company's well, at Waterville, was shot but there were no indications of oil. Another well will be drilled at once. The well was shot with sixty quarts of nitro glycerine at a depth of 740 feet.

Miss Marion Christy, of Greenville, in the presence of a large number of sightseers successfully accomplished the feat of swimming across Conneaut lake, a distance of two miles, making the trip in a little more than one hour.

Mrs. Hannah Jacobs, of Erie, gave her life to rescue a twenty-cent novel from the flames. Her husband built a fire of rubbish in the yard, and on the top of it he threw the book. She saw the yellow cover of it and rushed in and was burned to death.

A coal oil lamp exploded in the hands of Mrs. Jessie Lee, of McKeesport, and set fire to her clothing and the bed in which two of her children were sleeping. In her efforts to save the children she was terribly burned, from which cause she died later.

While at Cumberland, Md., William H. Cuppet, of Mann's Choice, had his pockets picked of $2,000 in cash and $10,000 in notes. The Cumberland police found the wallet, containing only a few of the notes. All that Mr. Cuppet has left of his lifetime savings is about $5,000.

Judge Jacob F. Slagle, of the common pleas court No. 1, Allegheny county, died suddenly Friday, at his home in Pittsburg. The Judge was about to rise from his bed at seven o'clock in the morning when he was stricken with apoplexy. The deceased was seventy years of age.

A fierce dog fight between two canines took place at Mill Hall. One of the dogs was muzzled, but this did not deter him from going for his antagonist. Finally the two dogs locked their lower jaws, and chewed away at each other with a ferociousness that was sickening. After great difficulty in which a cold chisel was used, the animals were torn away from each other.

While Hugh Walizer and William Harris were driving to Clintondale, a portion of the harness became detached, which allowed the vehicle to bump against the horse's legs. The animal began kicking, and ran away. Mr. Walizer's collar bone was broken, his face was bruised and lacerated, and he was rendered unconscious. Mr. Harris sustained a gash on the head and was severely bruised.
