CONGRESSIONAL APPORTIONMENT.

The administration arithmeticians having under consideration the most politcal advantageous ratio to be adopted in the reapportionment of members of the Federal House of Representatives have fixed upon 194,344 as the proper population for a Congress district. That ratio would, if adopted, increase the present membership by twenty-eight. Pennsylvania would gain two seats, New Jersey two, New York three and Illinois three. The net Republican gain would be twenty seats, against eight seats for the Democrats. The representation in the House ought to be reduced instead of being increased by twenty-eight additional members. The House is now so large that it has ceased to be a forum for reasonable and searching debate. It is ruled by the committee on rules, and ed; the sermon preached by Rev. ## SPRING MILLS.

Subscribe for the Reporter; it will be a welcome visitor during the long winter months.

The late rains have brought abundance of water to the wells and cisterns. Deer season closed last Friday; from what can be learned there have been forty deer killed in the Seven Mountains, a record above that of any previous years. Now sporting men hang up your guns, and be law abiding citizens and look up such law breakers who do illegal hunting, and you will see the result of game becoming plenty.

Spring Mills Creamery Company has about sixty fat hogs for sale, ranging in weight from 225 to 300 pounds. Michael Leitzell is making his tour through Centre, Mifflin and Union counties, with his native herb medicine.

THE BIG SEA TURTLE

HOW IT IS CAUGHT BY GEORGIA COAST FISHERMEN.

The Hunt Is Always Made at Night and the Ungainly Creatures Are Brought to Grief Through the Use of Trick and Device.

One of the favorite summer sports of the fishermen and marooners of Savannah is turtle hunting on the sandy beaches of the neighboring islands, T. G. Hosterman, S. R. Lingle and and all Florida points. Trains arrive where from May to August the turtles come out to lay their eggs.

On the long, flat stretches of sand the turtle crawls about 100 feet or more from the water line, and there, with her flippers scooping out a round hole from two to three feet deep, deposits her eggs, often 300 or more, covering every 50 or so with a thin layer of evening. sand, and putting a final layer of considerable thickness over the top of the nest after her maternal duties are finished. This final filling in of the nest she smooths off even with the beach and after making the surroundings as nearly as possible like the remainder of the beach, if undisturbed, crawls back to the water with the pleasing consciousness of duty well performed and the confident conviction that in a short time her maternal heart will be gladdened with a numerous progeny. Even when she escapes with her life, however, her hopes of a family are often disappointed, for turtle eggs are conceded to be a delicacy by nearly everybody who has tried them, and it is this toothsomeness of her product that leads to the undoing of the turtle's hopes, for during the season of her laying the nests are sought for continuously and many of them found and robbed of their contents. The method of search is very simple. Where the tracks of the turtle are found leading up the beach they are followed, and the ground at various points along the trail is tested by means of a slender rod or walking cane. The nest is distinguished when reached by the ready yielding of the sand, and the hunters scoop out the sand with their hands and appropriate the eggs.

But it is in securing the turtle herself that the hunter finds the greatest pleasure. The hunt is almost always made at night and preferably during moonlight. The conditions are best about the middle of May, during a full moon, and in the early morning hours. Then skirting the water line the hunters walk along the beach, keeping a sharp lookout for tracks as they pass along and a still sharper lookout ahead for the creature itself. On a clear night the great, slumbering animal can be distinguished a long way off. When one is sighted, the hunters determine their further proceedings in accordance with the position of the creature with respect to the nearness of the water line and its evident intentions. If on its way to make a nest, which is known by its crawling up the sand and away from the water, there is no particular need to hurry, as, unless 29 Nov 24 disturbed, the turtle will not return to the water until she has deposited her eggs. So usually the hunters are content to wait a safe distance away until the nest has been completed and the actual laying of the eggs begun. Then they may approach with impunity, for the turtle, once on the nest, will not move until she has completed her task. It is when she commences her retreat to the water that the hunters secure her by catching the side of the shell and turning her over on her back, where she lies helpless and can only fan her mighty and powerful flippers in wrathy impotence. The turtle is a firm believer that discretion is the better part of valor, and she shows fight only when cornered and has no way of escape. Should she catch sight of her natural enemy, man, before she has begun to lay, she will at once beat a hasty retreat toward the water, scaling the hard beach and throwing back quantities of sand in her haste. But when she is brought to bay she will both bite and strike heavy blows with her flippers, and these must be carefully avoided while she is being turned on her back. It is owing to her efforts to injure her enemies that her final undoing is accomplished, for, like most of the family testudinata, the turtle can draw its head into the shell and close its flippers close to its sides, making itself practically impervious to attacks. This its captor knows, and so when ready to slaughter it he pokes its head with a stick until, to stop the annoyance, the animal extends its head, when it is cut off by a well directed blow with hatchet or ax. Some persons claim that there can be found in the turtle portions that taste like and resemble in appearance chicken ment, veni and beefsteak, but the average marooner finds in the turtle only turtle, which both in texture and taste closely resembles beefsteak. Turtles are still quite numerous on Warsaw, though not nearly so plentiful as they were several years ago, when as many as nine have been turned in one night. They average in size from the comparatively small one of 100 pounds to 500 pounds and in exceptional cases 600 .- Savannah News.
