CIVIL PENSIONS.

Discussion Created by the Case of Congressman Boutelle.

When officers in our navy or our army or even those of a lower rank that officer reach a certain age, they are allowed to go into honorable retirement freed from financial anxiety by a pension. Not so with the men who have served their country long and well in the fields of peaceable endeavor. We have no civil pension list upon which to place men who become disqualified by age or otherwise while doing their duty. In this we differ from other great nations, who recognize the necessity and justice of a civil pension list and act upon the necessity. To say that republics are ungrateful is a truism, but in this respect our republic has fairly earned the reproach.

After serving his constituents well enough to be re-elected seven times Charles Addison Boutelle, represents which we can't imagine one of our best Tea Sets has proven so far a poor seller. Being quadruple silver plate and one of the very latest styles it should have met with a ready sale at $20. For Tea, Sugar, Cream and Spoon-Holders we have decided to reduce the price to $12 per set for the balance of the line, and to protect those who have already bought so that they don't pay more for the same goods than others, we will refund the amount of the reduction, $8, if they will kindly bring the tea pot to our store at any time either before or after Christmas.

We hope to have enough of those 25c children's silver-plated Cups to last this year, but there is no telling. We thought the same last year and the year before.

tive from the Fourth congressional district of Maine, was incapacitated by mental troubles, and his removal to a sanitarium became inevitable. While there confined he was again re-elected at the latest election.

Mr. Boutelle is a poor man, and his salary as congressman could not well be spared. A congressman cannot save much out of the $5,000 given to him by the government in return for services that would frequently command a much higher sum if devoted to private ends. During the civil war Mr. Boutelle did good service in the navy, and he was formerly chairman of the house committee on naval affairs. On these grounds the movement to place him upon the retired list of the navy was started, and the opposition to the plan has been mainly from those who consider such action as establishing a bad precedent. The case has revived agitation of a civil pension list.

The London Bus.

"English travelers," says a London correspondent of the Boston Transcript, "have so jeered our advertising outrages upon architecture and scenery that I fancied we were of all nations most culpable. But after a season's residence in England I hold America excused. Our advertising efforts are modest, even feeble, beside those of our British cousins.

"A London bus is a mere advertising van with accommodations for passengers. It takes almost as long to read one through as to read a daily paper. The destination of the bus is marked in inconspicuous letters, the smallest on the canvas decorated vehicle, and the chances of disentangling those letters from the maze of advertising announcements about them in time to halt the bus you want are smaller still."

Crape on the Door.

The custom of placing crape on the door of a house where there has been a recent death had its origin in the ancient English heraldic customs and dates back to the year 1100 A. D. At that period hatchments, or armorial ensigns, were placed in front of houses when the nobility or gentry died. The hatchments were of diamond shape and contained the family arms quartered and covered with sable.
