

THE CANTEN FIGHT will be renewed in the next Congress, and Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, predicts as a probability that the anti-canteen law of the last session, carried through on a wave of extreme temperance sentiment, will be repealed before the session is two months old. This, despite the fact that the law has been indorsed by many religious convocations and generally by the prohibitionists. The law, it will be recalled, prohibited the sale of beer and light wines in the canteens or soldiers' supply stores, conducted under army regulations.

Since the law was passed the secretary of war has been gathering information from the officers, the surgeons and the chaplains of the army, as to its effects, and the reports from Washington are that the officers and surgeons almost unanimously, with a number of the chaplains, advocate the repeal of the law, and the restoration of the old privilege to the canteens of selling beer and wine. And they do it on good temperance grounds. The results predicted have followed the abolition of the canteen beer, and the military posts are surrounded, within legal limits, with saloons of the vilest description, where the soldiers resort on pay day. Under the canteen, which became social clubs for reading and innocent games, there was no drunkenness, self-restraint was imposed, and the condition of the enlisted men was bettered physically and morally. It stands to reason this would be the case. The only argument we have seen against the canteen is that it trained young soldiers in the drinking habit. But it is much better they should have such training under the rigid rules governing them than be turned loose in the vicious resorts that gathered about the military posts. It is simply further proof that as a measure of temperance reform regulation and training in self-restraint is better than impossible prohibition.

The promotion of temperance among the soldiers is certainly a very worthy work, but the trouble is that there are reformers who demand that reform shall consist of total abstinence. That is an ideal that has never been attained in the community at large, and the soldier can hardly be expected to get as near to it as the average man. If he cannot be persuaded to abstain from anything stronger than coffee intelligence means should be adopted to keep him in moderation. The almost universal judgment of army officers, from the commander-in-chief of the army and navy down, is that the canteen, or post exchange, is the best temperance lecturer in camp.

AN EMINENT ENGLISH ENGINEER is quoted as saying that the greatest danger to England's manufacturing supremacy now visible is the enormous output of Texas oil. This is one of the greatest finds of oil in the world, and may possibly exceed that at Baku, in the Caspian region. If it should hold out like the Baku flow, it will afford a source of power in the Southwest and on the Gulf of Mexico and the ocean much more economical and convenient than coal.

The fuel of the future, according to the London "Express," is petroleum, or rather the residuum after the finer products have been distilled from it. This residue, which constitutes two-thirds of petroleum, has till recently been thrown away, but is now claimed to be superior to coal. "A ton of liquid fuel," says the "Express," "will produce as much steam as two tons of coal, and fills only a third of its space." Besides being a concentrated fuel the oily residuum has the merit of packing closer than coal, so that it can be used as ballast, being run into the ship's double bottom. When space is scanty, as, for example, in torpedo-boat destroyers, the use of a liquid fuel seems to be almost imperative. It is, in fact, already very largely used in the French, Russian and Dutch fleets. On the Volga, steamers use it altogether, and the same is to be said of the 40 steamers that ply between Borneo and London, a distance of 10,000 miles. Locomotives on two of the greatest railway systems of England employ liquid fuel. On several important continental railways it is used exclusively, and the same is to be said of the Southern California railway. In South Africa on the traction line between Umtali and Salisbury, Rhodesia, oil is used because wood and coal are too expensive. The British admiralty object to the use of oil to propel the fleet, because the supply is insufficient—Russia and America being the only large producers—and at present costs over twice as much as coal. In case of war England might find herself cut off from oil, whereas she has stores of coal at numerous stations all over the world.

EX-GOVERNOR McCREARY OF KENTUCKY, one of the most level-headed of Democrats, does not think that Senator McClarin and other spoils agents of the administration are likely to make much headway in the South. The former governor says that the Southern people do not take to high tariffs, the trusts, subsidies and military colonialism as exhibited in the Philippines. In his opinion the more the Republicans shall identify themselves with this program the more strongly will develop the spirit of Democracy in the South.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No weakening of the nerves; a pleasant and positive cure for the liquor habit.—It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "Home Gold Cure" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

Wives cure your husbands!! Children cure your fathers!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so fully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "cure" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do not wait. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "Home Gold Cure" is sold at the extremely low price of one dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of one dollar. Address Dept. B734 Edwin B. Giles & Company, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia. All correspondence strictly confidential.
