INSPIRING RELIGION

Dr. Talmage Preaches on Solomon's Wisdom-Sweet Spices of Christianity.

It Counteracts All Trouble -- No Dolorous Music Needed.

[Copyright 1961.] WASHINGTON, D. C .- In this discours Dr. Talmage corrects some of the false notions about religion, and represents it as being joy inspiring instead of dolorous; text, II. Chronicles ix, 9, "Of spices great abundance; neither was there any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave King Solomon."

What is that building out yonder, glit What is that building out yonder, glittering in the sun? Have you not heard? It is in the house of the forest of Lebanon. King Solomon has just taken to it his bride, the Princess of Egypt. You see the pillars of the portico and a great tower, adorned with 1000 shields of gold, hung on the outside of the tower, 500 of the shields of gold manufactured at Solomon's order; 500 were captured by David, his father, in battle. See how they blaze in the noonday sun!

Solomon goes up the ivory stairs of his throne, between twelve lions in statuary, and sits down on the back of the golden bull, the head of the huge beast turned toward the people. The family and the attendants of the king are so many that the caterers of the palace have to provide every day 100 sheep and thirteen oxen, besides the birds and the venison. I hear the stamping and pawing of 4000 fine horses in the royal stables. There were important officials who had charge of the work of gathering the straw and the barwork of gathering the straw and the bar-ley for these horses. King Solomon was an early riser, tradition says, and used to take a ride out at daybreak, and when in his white apparel, behind the swiftest houses of all the realm and followed by mounted archers in purple, as the caval-eade dashed through the streets of Jerusalem I suppose it was something worth getting up at 5 o'clock in the morning to look at.

Solomon was not like some of the kings Solomon was not like some of the kings of the present day—crowned imbecility. All the splendors of his palace and retinue were eclipsed by his intellectual power. Why, he seemed to know everything. He was the first great naturalist the world ever saw. Peacocks from India strutted the basaltic walk, and apes chattered in the trees, and deer stalked the parks, and the trees, and deer stalked the parks, and there were aquariums with foreign fish and aviaries with foreign birds, and tradition says these birds were so well tamed that Solomon might walk clear across the city under the shadow of their wings as they hovered and flitted about him.

More than this, he had a great reputation for the conumdrums and riddles that he made and guessed. He and King Hiram, his neighbor, used to sit by the hour and ask riddles, each one paying in money if he could not answer or guess the riddle. The Solomonic navy visited all the world, and the sailors, of course, talked about the riddles and enigmas that he made and solved, and the news spread until Queen the riddles and enigmas that he made and solved, and the news spread until Queen Balkis, away off south, heard of it, and sent messengers with a few riddles that she would like to have Solomon solve and a few puzzles that she would like to have him find out. She sent, among other things, to King Solomon a diamond with ahole so small that a needle could not pentage it arrives him to threat that ahole so small that a needle could not pen-etrate it, asking him to thread that dia-mond. And Solomon took a worm and put it at the opening in the diamond, and the worm crawled through, leaving the thread in the diamond. The queen also sent a goblet to Solomon, asking him to fill it with water that did not pour from the sky and that did not rush out from the earth, and immediately Solomon put a slave on the back of a swift horse and galloped him around and around the park until the horse was nigh exhausted, and from the perspiration of the horse the goblet was filled. She also sent to King Solomon 500 boys in girls' dress and 500 have not looked at it as such. I thought girls in hows' dress wondering if he would girls in boys' dress, wondering if he would be acute enough to find out the deception. Immediately Solomon, when he saw them wash their faces, knew from the way they applied the water that it was all a cheat.

Queen Balkis was so pleased with the acuteness of Solomon that she said. "I'll just go and see him for myself." Yonder it comes—the cavalcade—horses and dromedarics, chariots and charioteers, jingmedaries, chariots and charioteers, jing-ling harness and clattering hoofs and blaz-ing shields and flying ensigns and clapping ing shields and flying ensigns and clapping cymbals. The place is saturated with the perfume. She brings cinnamon and saffron and calamus and frankincense and all manner of sweet spices. As the retinue sweeps through the gate the armed guard inhales the aroma. "Halt!" cries the chapitoteers as the wheels grind the gravel in front of the pillared portico of the king. Queen Balkis alights in an atmosphere bewitched with perfume. As the dromedaries are driven up to the king's storehouses and the bundles of camphor are unloaded, and the sacks of cinnamon and the boxes of spices are opened the purhouses and the bundles of camphor are unloaded, and the saeks of cinnamon and the boxes of spices are opened the purveyors of the palace discover what my text announces: "Of spices, great abundance. Neither was there any such spice as the Queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon."

Well, my friends, you know that all theologians agree in making Solomon a type of Christ, and in making the Queen of Sheba a type of every truth seeker, and I will take the responsibility of saying that all the spikenard and cassia and frankincense which the Queen of Sheba-brought to King Solomon is mightily suggestive of the sweet spices of our holy religion. Christianity is not a collection of sharp technicalities and angular facts and chronological tables and dry statistics.

Our religion is compared to frankincense and to cassia, but never to nightshade. It is a bundle of myrrh. It is a dash of ho'y light. It is a sparkle of cool fountains. It is an opening of opaline gates. It is a collection of spices. Would God that we were as wise in taking spices to our divine King as Queen Balkis was wise in taking the spices to the carthly Solomon.

the properties of the special properties. It is an collection of spices. Would God that we were as wise in taking spices to our divine King as Queen Balkis was wise in taking spices to the carthly Solomon.

The fact is that the duties and cares of this life, coming to us from time to time, are stupid often and inane and intolerable. Here are men who have been battering, climbine, pounding, hammering for twenty years, forty years, fifty years. One great, long drudgery has their life been, their faces anxious, their feelings benumbed, their days monotonous. What is necessary to brighten up that man's life and to sweeten that acid disposition and to put sparkle into the man's spirite? The spicery of our hot religion. Why if between the losses of life there dashed the glearm and of the control of the control because she can watch her infant brother;

Rachel, because she can help her father water the stock; the widow of Sarepta, be-water the stock; the widow of Sarepta, because to cruse of oil is being replenished.

I mull confess that a great deal of the religion of this day is utterly insipid. There is nothing piquant or elevating about it. Men and women go around humming psalms in a minor key and cultivating melancholy, and their worship has in it more sighs than raptures. We do not doubt their piety. Oh, no! But they are sitting at a feast where the cook has forgetten to season the food. Every-they are sitting at a least where the cod-has forgitten to season the food. Every-thing is flat in their experience and in their conversation. Emancipated from sin and death and bell and on their way to a magnificent heaven, they act as though they were trudging on toward an everlasting Botany Bay. Religion does not seem to agree with them. It seems to catch in the windpipe and become a tight strangulation instead of an exhilaration. All the infidel books that have been written, from Voltaire down to Herbert Spencer, have not done so much damage to our Christianity as lugubrious Christians.

Who wants a religion woven out of the shadows of the night? Why go growling on your way to celestial enthronement? Come out of that cave and sit down in the warm light of the Sun of Righteousness. Away with your odes to melancholy and Hervey's "Meditations Among the Tombs!"

I have to say also that we need to put more spice and enliverment in our religious teaching, whether it be in the prayer meeting or in the Sunday-school or in the church. We ministers need more fresh church. We ministers need more fresh air and sunshine in our lungs and our heart and our head. Do you wonder that the world is so far from being converted when you find so little vivacity in the pulpit and in the pew? We want, like the Lord, to plant in our sermons and exhortations more lilies of the field. We want fewer rhetorical elaborations and fewer secondal in your server and when we talk sesquipedalian words, and when we talk about shadows we do not want to say adumbration, and when we mean queer-ness we do not want to talk about idiosyncrasies, or if a stitch in the back we do not want to talk about lumbago, but, in the plain vernacular of the great masses,

I promise a high spiritual blessing to ny one who will sing in church and who will sing so heartily that the people all around cannot help but sing. Wake up, all the churches from Bangor to San Francisco and across Christendom! It is not a matter of preference; it is a mat-ter of religious duty. Oh, for fifty times more volume of sound than has yet rolled up from our churches! German chorals in German cathedrals surpass us, and yet Germany has received nothing at the hands of God compared with America. And ought the acclaim in Germany be louder than that of America? Soft, long drawn out music is appropriate for the drawing room and appropriate for the cencert, but St. John gives an idea of the sonorous and resonant congregational singing ap-propriate for churches when in listening to the temple service of heaven he says: "I heard a great voice, as the voice of a great multitude and as the voice of many waters and as the voice of mighty thunderings. Hallelujah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!" Join with me in a erusade, giving me not only your hearts, but the mighty uplifting of your voices, and I believe we can, through Christ's grace, sing 5000 souls into the kingdom of Christ. An argument they can laugh at, a sermon they may talk down, but a 5000 voiced utterance of praise to God is resistible. Would that Queen Balkis would drive all her spice laden dromedaries into our church music. "Neither was any such spice as the Queen of Sheha gave King Solomon."

General Trade Conditions.

New York (Special.)—R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says: 'Continued favorable weather conditions have resulted in the saving of much late-planted corn, and in the Northwest ideal weather for spring wheat harvest has been enjoyed. As this is the point that business in all parts of the country has been most carefully watching, the general feeling is better than a week ago.

"Official returns of pig iron produc-tion in the first half of the year show a record-breaking aggregate of 7,674.713 tons, exceeding the remarkable output of the previous year by 32,044 tons. "Violent fluctuations have marked the course of corn prices. The top point of the previous week was not regained, but traders on the short side of the market were compelled to cover at a loss. The decrease in marketing is not in proportion to the advance in price. Whatever benefit may have accrued from the high level of prices, it certainly has driven foreign buyers out of the market, Atlantic exports for the week amounting to only 764.178 bushels, against 3,106,931 a year ago. Wheat is of less interest to speculators, but in legitimate trading it is especially act-
