The names of young men and ladies are mentioned that recall to me little boys and girls, forgetting that fifteen or sixteen years makes a vast difference in children.

There are many names, however, that recall people who are dear to me. It is a great pleasure to me, and all who retain a love for home, to read the Reporter after even years of absence. Manners in the Street.

It is a mark of provincialism and lack of good form for people to walk arm in arm says the March Democrat, or for a man to walk between two ladies; his place is at the outside of the walk. If a lady is very old or infirm and requires assistance, he may offer his arm; otherwise, it is unnecessary and is not the custom even after dark. A lady bows first to a man, as it is her privilege to take the initiative in such matters.
