The Pellenn Smiled. There is a sly old pelican in Central park which has an almost human way of noticing what goes on about him without seeming to do so. The other day two herons in the same cage with him fought over a fish. One had made the catch, but the other had under-rightful possessor. They squabbled over it like two boys who have hold of the same baseball bat. The scuffle brought them into the neighborhood of the old pelican, who stood, apparently asleep, with his big bill tucked away under a wing. Then the heron dropped its fish, and the battle went on.

taken to wrest the morsel from its

No sooner had it been dropped than the great bill came out from underneath the wing and the fish went into the pelican's pouch. Then the head disappeared again. The pelican was plainly asleep.

When one heron gave up the fight and flew away, the other looked about for the prize. It was nowhere to be seen. The keeper of the bird cages solemnly asserts that he saw a twinkle in the eye which the pelican opened to give a glance at the retreating heron.-New York Times.

After Seeing His Friend Lushed to

One by Apaches and Tortured. No, I can't say that I have any admiration for that sort of plant, however tine a specimen it is," said an Arizona man as he passed a casual glance at a giant cactus in the lobby of a hotel. "I have seen altogether too many of them, and there is a circumstance that is often recalled by seeing them that I had rather forget." The Arizonian hesitated and would have passed on, away from the curiously formed plant, had he not been asked to tell what was this circumstance which seemed to deeply affect him. He

"I have lived in Arizona a great many years. In fact, I am one of the pioneers of the territory. When I went there in 1865, there were few white people, but no end of Indians. The Indians were not all friendly. It was a year or so after coming to the territory that, with a small party of prospectors, I was crossing the great Arizona desert from Phenix to where is now the King of Arizona mine. We were all provided with food and water and were making the trip over the hot sands and under a scorching sun with as much comfort as was possible until we were overtaken by a straggling band of Indians. I think they were Jicarillas. "There was nothing to do but to make a run for it, and we gave them a hard race for five hours until Archie Hazzard, one of the party, fell behind and was taken. Then we turned and made a fight. but it was no use. The Indians made off with their prisoner, a part of them keeping us off from those that had him in charge. We followed until night, when the Indians made a halt, and there, before our eyes, they stripped Hazzard of his clothes and lashed him to a big cactus. "Such suffering! They raised him just far enough above the ground that his whole weight fell on the sharp needles of the plant, thousands of them piercing his flesh. While half of the Indians held us away the others danced about our suffering partner. There were only four of us and about twenty Indians, but we succeeded in driving them off after a fight that lasted until near midnight.

"When we reached Hazzard, he was nearly dead from the loss of blood and the terrible agony that he suffered. We got him back to Phenix, but he died in a few

"I have been caught in the desert and have been saved from dying of thirst by drinking water that is contained in the cactus, but I never can feel any gratitude to the plant after that first experience. And I never can tolerate an Indian."-Denver Republican.

Mutton as a Motor.

Green, the English historian, one day asked a friend which of all the inventions of their day had done the most for the people as a whole. His friend guessed this and that, but the answer was:

"Beyond doubt sixpenny photographs." A reply involving quite as great an absurdity as that was made by Cecil Rhodes in answer to a lady who, seeking to draw him out, suggested that he owed his phenomenal rise to the impetus of noble sentiments. "Madam," returned Mr. Rhodes, "I owe my fortune simply and solely to cold mutton.

"Cold mutton!" gasped the lady. "Oh. Mr. Rhodes, what do you mean?" "When I was young." continued the South African millionaire, "I was so dosed with cold mutton and I hated it so We are authorized to announce that J. J. How Should Bobby Know. The density of the English "bobby" has often been told, but here is the experience of a young woman just back from London. Stockholm Impregnable. There are a lot of picturesque old castles and fortresses on the coast of Swe den in which garrisons are still maintained, but they would not last an hour-if attacked by modern guns and projectiles. They are re-enforced, however, by earthworks, with the very best of artillery. Swedish guns rank among the highest, and several Swedish patents in ordnance have been already adopted by the fortification board of the United States, All the harbors are protected by torpedoes, and Stockholm is absolutely impregnable from the sea, being situated upon a fiord or bay that cannot be entered except through passages that are narrow and

P., "if I have any partiality for the honorable member it is against him?" "Sir." said another, "I an-swer boldly in the affirmative. No!" "The silence of the Irish members of the house," said another, "shall be heard no longer!" Sir John Parnell declared that "every man ought to be ready to give his last penny to save the remainder of his fortune!" while another spoke of "re-deeming a character irretrievably lost!"

Another member declared he was not going to reiterate what he was going to say, but that "the time has come, indeed is rapidly arriving, when the population of Ireland will be decimated by twothirds!"-London Tit-Bits.

A DAY OF SCRUBBING.

Dutch Homes.

It was understood generally, says Mary A. Peixotto, writing in Scribner's on household ways in Holland, that our models would not pose on Saturday, that day being devoted exclusively to housecleaning within and without. Early in the morning every stick of furniture is rubthe house. Then the women, with their brush they souse and scrub the red tiled floor and finally pull up a plug in one corner to let the water flow out, let us hope, into the canal.

While the floor is drying a great polishing goes on in the street. Quaint old brass lamps and candlesticks, tobacco boxes and ash trays, huge milk cans-all are burnished until, like golden mirrors, they reflect the red cheeked, white capped faces bent over them.

bread trays and honey cake boxes with designs of gaudy birds and wondrous leaves and flowers. The street is in a turmoil until noon, when order is partially restored and the scant midday meal partaken of. In the afternoon washing is resumed. The exteriors of the cottages are scrubbed from roof to pavement and every trace of green moss gathers quickly. Then the brick pavements are drenched and carefully dried, and I have even seen the women slip off their sabots and tiptoe to their doorways in their woolen chaussons so as not to soil the immaculate sidewalk.

Lastly toward evening the entire village goes to the canal, and all the sabots are washed and whitened with pumice stone, spotless for the morrow. On Saturday evening all the pickets of the low black fences are decorated with rows of dripping footgear carefully graduated in ther down to the tiny sabots of the youn-

Sports of the Crusaders.

In their amusements Christians and infidels mingled very readily. During the truces the two frequently engaged in jousts and proved one another's skill in horsemanship, in the use of the lance, in the wielding of the sword and in the hurling of the spear. All, even the knights of the religious orders, entered with zest into these friendly rivalries. Both Christian and infidel were extremely fond of hunting and falconry. A long section in the assizes is devoted to the laws concerning the latter subject. Ousama in his autobiography devoted many pages to accounts of hunting experiences and to the art of falconry. The crusading leaders took their bunting dogs and falcons with them as a matter of course when they set out on the boly war.

As the close proximity of the enemy exposed both parties to constant at of certain sulphates. tack, hunting agreements were made by which each might hunt in security on disputed territory. His Particular Muse.

He had been calling on a young lady and had been talking against time for several hours, not noticing that she was, to say the least, slightly wearled.

"Do you know," he said, after comsand words and thinking a little flattery would be appreclated, "while talking tonight I have felt as if I were inspired by one of the muses. And which one do you think it is?"

He looked searchingly into her beautiful face. The modest blush for which he was watching proved to be a wide yawn, which grew wider as she answered:

"I guess the muse that inspires you tonight must be Euterpe." He didn't really know anything about mythology, so be couldn't tell just what she meant. But when he got home he took down his encyclopedia, and there in cold type, staring him in the face,

"Euterpe-the muse who presided over wind instruments."

A Pretty Big Tiger.

Old Dickey S., a very wealthy but very illiterate East India merchant in London, took a pair of compasses and set about examining a large map of India, the margin of which was illustrated with drawings of the wild and domestic animals of the country.

Suddenly Dickey dropped the 'compass in amazement. "It can't be! It ain't in the horder of nature that it should be! Impossible! Ridiculous!" "Why, Dickey, what's the matter?"

"Wot's the matter? Vy. this Bengal tiger is ninety miles long!" Dickey had measured the tiger by the scale of the map.

Electric Centipeds.

Least attractive among the insects which give light are the so called "electric centipeds" - black crawlers with many legs, which have been likened to serpents' skeletons in miniature. They move in a snakelike fashion, forward or backward, leaving behind them a bright track of phosphoric light. However, they are most accustomed to appear in the daytime, when the illumination they afford is not visible.

Great Liberality.

One day in November, 1900, I was called upon to conduct the funeral of an aged bachelor, who had three brothers all noted for their stinginess. I drove twelve miles to the church house, conducted a service and then drove one mile to the graveyard. After burial one of the brothers asked me to stop at his home for dinner. On taking my leave he asked me what I charged for my service. I told him I never made any charges, but always left it to the liberality of the friends. After saving that "a preacher who drives twelve miles to a funeral deserves something good" he went and brought two of the largest sweet potatoes I ever saw. As he put them in the buggy he said, "Now, don't you and your wife See Grant Hoover before you insure. Homilette Review.

Salphur occurs very widely distributed in the mineral kingdom, partly free and partly combined with other elements. The free sulphur is either found pure in regularly formed crystals or intimately mixed with earthly matters. In its native state sulphur is largely found in Sicily and Ita- Discounts Notes. ly and as a general rule in abundant volcanic districts. The brittleness of sulphur renders the cleavage imperfect.
