The general balance in the treasury of Pennsylvania, exclusive of the sinking fund, amounts to $9,535,534. This enormous sum, exacted from the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, is distributed in favorite banks throughout the State.

The abatement of sectarian and religious prejudices in the United States, compared with what they were in the days of Know-Nothingism, and even later, is an obvious fact, accepted by all intelligent citizens.

Secretary Root, if he does not apply the water cure to Government clerks who object to the Philippine policy of his department, has a remedy equally effective, in dismissing them from office and bread and butter.

The debate on the isthmian canal bill will not be to any idle purpose if it puts before the public the exact facts, the merits and demerits, of each route proposed and is followed by positive action.

There can be no doubt that recent events in the Antilles have had a definite effect on public opinion already veering strongly in favor of Panama. In consequence, the Nicaragua route, which in 1901 had such an ascendancy that few took the Panama people's offer seriously, is now more or less on the defensive.

The debate is likely to be protracted, but it would be a great misfortune if the canal legislation were defeated. Congress should pass some bill that will permit the United States to go ahead with the most feasible isthmian canal. To do anything else would be folly.

While some Republican papers approve of Senator Hoar's speech, and practically all the independent papers do in all its length and breadth, there are some party organs that assail the senator as "a copperhead."

An important incident of the Oregon election was the ratification of a constitutional amendment adopting the initiative and referendum. This amendment recites that, while the legislative power is vested in a Legislative Assembly, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives, yet "the people reserve to themselves power to propose laws and amendments to the constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls, independent of the Legislative Assembly, and also reserve power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any act of the Legislative Assembly"; and it is consequently provided that, whenever 8 per cent of the legal voters petition for specific legislation, the same shall be submitted to popular vote, and shall become law if approved by a majority voting thereon; that any enactment of the Legislative Assembly may be submitted to popular vote by such Assembly, acting voluntarily, and must be when requested by 5 per cent of the voters; and that the veto power of the governor shall not extend to enactments voted on with approval by the people. This amendment had to be approved by two Legislatures before submission, and but one vote was cast against it the second time, while both of the great parties were committed to it during the recent campaign.

"If you want some nice flowers," said the man with the red mustache, "just go to church on Sundays, and you'll find them on the altars. No matter how hard up a church may be and how closely it may count its expenses in other directions, it seldom economizes in flowers. "It is not the big churches alone that scorn to stint themselves in flowers. The little chapels whose parishioners are certainly not rolling in wealth and where every penny is held at its par value likewise provide a splendid floral offering to gladden the eyes of pastor and congregation. Of course, in a good many less pretentious houses of worship beautiful effects are obtained from the artistic arrangement of rather plebeian blossoms, but in most churches flowers that are really fine and expensive are used the year round, and the flower committee often finds that altar decoration is the biggest item on its list of expenditures.

"The selection of pulpit flowers is generally left to the discretion of the florist, who sends the bouquet every Sunday morning shortly before service. Occasionally, however, the chairman of the flower committee gives him a tip as to the favorite flower of the pastor, and when making his selection he tactfully bears that preference in mind."—New York Times.

A certain number of peasants in the wilder and remoter districts of Ireland still wear something like a national costume. About Lough Mask plenty of the lassies are to be seen in picturesque red petticoats that artists loved to bring into their sketches of Irish life.

A reliable fisherman from Michigan says he was fishing one day on Sekirk lake, Kalkaska county, for pickerel. There was a bite, and in due time the fisherman struck and hooked what he supposed to be a big pike. His surprise was great when he saw, instead of one fish, two. One, a two pound pike, had taken the hook in the regular way. The other weighed five pounds and had the line wrapped twice about its gills, so that it was hopelessly entangled.—New York Times.

A variation of baked apples has the somewhat fanciful name of "apples on the half shell." Slices of bread are cut into rounds (the cover of a half pound baking powder can makes a good size), buttered and put in a baking pan. Pare and core some large, good apples, cut them crosswise into inch thick slices, put one on each slice of bread, dust with granulated sugar and put in a hot oven. Bake twenty minutes and serve with plain or whipped cream.

Nearly a billion more postage stamps have been issued to the postoffices of the United States since July 1 last than were issued during the whole of the previous fiscal year. This is not necessarily indicative of a great increase in the postal business. From lack of other facilities for the transmission of small sums by mail, stamps have come to be extensively used, which is a strong argument for the postal note plan now before Congress. A system is needed by which small sums may be sent by the mail, and this the postal note plan provides. It would be a great advantage to small business interests. Dorothy Dodd.

The Apple Plant-Louse. The Apple Plant Louse (Aphis mali) is a small green insect, called the Apple Aphis, having a short body, four transparent wings or none, a sharp sectorial bill, and long jointed antennae. These insects are often numerous and destructive although quite small. They suck the sap from the leaves, young buds, and sometimes from the young fruit of the apple tree, chaffly in the early spring from the time the leaves begin to expand until about the first of July. Then they migrate to the roots of grasses, as was discovered and proven by Professor Surface, of the Pennsylvania State College. The eggs are laid on the small apple twigs in the fall and remain there during the winter, as soon as the leaf buds begin to wax and the young hatch and increase rapidly by giving birth to living young (parthenogenes) without mating, so that there is a colony on almost every leaf. For the July migration they become winged, and during the summer they continue to feed and multiply on the roots of grasses. In the autumn another winged brood appears and they return to the apple where the females establish colonies of wingless egg-laying forms, which lay the small, oval, dark-colored eggs upon the twigs in great numbers. This completes the life cycle. The common remedy is spraying in the spring as the young are coming out and before the leaves expand, with kerosene emulsion or tobacco decoction. Whole oil soap is effective if applied early. They have many natural enemies, such as Lady Bugs, Birds, etc., that generally hold them well in check.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose. Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling how Swamp-Root will help you.
