Ended His Life.

While temporarily demented, James Walls, fifty years old, who lived near Phillipsburg, Thursday of last week eluded his watchers, who feared he might attempt suicide, and wandered to a point near Munson, threw himself from an embankment directly in front of a Beech Creek passenger train, which killed him instantly. He left a widow and three children.

That Word "That"

There is one word in the English language which can appear six times consecutively in a sentence and make correct English. To illustrate: A boy wrote on the blackboard. The man that lies does wrong. The teacher objected to the word "that" so the word "who" was substituted. And yet it must be evident to the reader for all that, that "that" that that teacher objected to was right, after all.

Drowning at Beech Creek.

Floyd Swartz, the six-year-old son of Marion Swartz, of Beech Creek, fell in the creek above that place Saturday afternoon. No one saw him tumble into the stream. A search was made for him and the creek was dragged. The body was found about three hundred yards from where the child fell in. After the body was taken out efforts were made to resuscitate the child but he was past all help.

To Correspondents.

The Reporter has been, on several occasions, annoyed by correspondents sending to it for publication, articles that are not complimentary to the person spoken of. The Reporter is not published to enable any one to rub another, and if rubbing is desired it must be accomplished in some other way. The blue pencil is used wherever this rubbing is detected, but oftentimes what looks like a genuine news item is altogether unfit for publication.

The Reporter desires to state plainly that it does not want any of that class of matter, and will endeavor hereafter to eliminate every article that has the least semblance to rubbing or foolish, trifling personals.

Senatorial Conference.

The Democratic Senatorial Conference for this district, comprising the counties of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield, will meet at Bellefonte, Thursday, August 14th. Their duties will be soon consummated as there is but one candidate in the district, Hon. W. C. Heinle, of Bellefonte, who will be nominated. All the counties have instructed for him, as he merits a return for the splendid record he made in the recent session.

The Philadelphia Record says: "The renomination of State Senator Heinle, of Centre county, in the Thirty-fourth district, is a proper tribute of appreciation for capable public service. No other man in the late Legislature was a more steadfast and determined opponent of the rascally plundering which was sanctioned by that infamous body."

Wild Carrot and Daisies.

Wild carrot and daisies are two weeds that need attention by the farmers of Penns Valley. Wild carrot is a comparatively new weed in this locality, but is gaining a foot-hold in every nook and corner in cultivated and uncultivated fields. It is an exceedingly dangerous weed on clay soil, where, like Canada thistles, it thrives best, being exceedingly difficult to eradicate.

The low daisy is a weed no less obnoxious than wild carrot or Canada thistles. Give this particular daisy an opportunity, and it will so thoroughly take possession of the land that it becomes useless for cultivation. These statements are not overdrawn, but are facts.

Farmers who have their all invested in land should guard against the spread of these pests, and should insist upon the careless tenants taking proper precautions so as not to lessen the value of real estate owned or cultivated by the prudent.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

J. Wallace McCool Dies from the Effects of a Dose of Carbolic Acid.

J. Wallace McCool, son of Emanuel McCool, died at the home of his father, near Orangeville, Illinois, Sunday morning, from the effects of a dose of carbolic acid taken in mistake. The facts of the sad accident are as follows: In his usual cheerful mood he did his morning chores, took the milk to the creamery and returned home. The morning being rainy and dreary he went upstairs saying he would sleep and requested to be called at 11:30. Soon after reaching his room he called down that he had taken carbolic acid. His parents rushed to his room, and when they arrived there they found the young man lying on the bed in great agony. He gasped that he was smothering, and that was the last word he uttered. A physician was sent for, but all efforts to revive him were fruitless. The burial took place Tuesday forenoon.

J. Wallace McCool was born near Spring Mills. He went west to Nebraska with his family and about five years ago came with them to the place where they now live. He was known to all as a jovial whole-hearted young man, making his sudden taking off doubly sad. He was aged twenty-three years, eight months and ten days.

One of the wheels of the wagon passed over his breast severely bruising him. In the fall to the ground he struck the tines of a fork, one of which penetrated his chin protruding along side of the jaw. The wound was very painful and ghastly.

Large Fire at Bellefonte.

A large fire occurred at Bellefonte, Midlin county, Monday afternoon which threatened to consume nearly the whole town. The fire started in the stables connected with Brindel's hotel and was not gotten under control until the stable, Brindel's Hotel, the Post Office, Safety Deposit Bank building, Sankey's Market, and five or six houses were in ashes. The loss is about $40,000. The prompt arrival of the fire company from Lewistown saved the town from being utterly destroyed.

Darwin G. Fenuo, who was managing editor of the Philadelphia Times for many years, is the new editor of the Patriot.
