

VOLCANIC REGIONS.

The Five Active Groups of the Western Hemisphere. The active volcanic groups of the western hemisphere occur in five widely separated regions: First—The Andean group of volcanoes of the equatorial region of western South America. Second—The chain of some twenty-five great cinder cones which stretch east and west across the south end of the Mexican plateau. Third—The Central American group, with its thirty-one active craters, extending diagonally across the western ends of the east and west folds of the Caribbean corrugations, fringing the Pacific side of Guatemala, San Salvador and Costa Rica. This is separated from the Mexican group on the north by a large nonvolcanic area, the isthmus of Tehuantepec, and on the south from the Andean volcanoes by the isthmus of Panama, where no active volcanoes are found. Fourth—The chain of volcanoes of the Windward Islands, marking the eastern gate of the Caribbean sea, standing in a line directly across the eastern terminus of the Caribbean mountains, trending east and west and parallel to the Central American group similarly situated at the western terminus. Fifth—The volcanoes of Alaska and the Aleutian Islands.—Professor Robert T. Hill in Century.

Circumlocution.

A young Yorkshire collier, anxious to pop the question to a girl whom he honestly admired, but not having the courage to ask her straight out, adopted a method of sounding her which romantic people will be inclined to think rather too practical. "Jessie, my lass," he said nervously, "Ah've insured my life." "Has ta, lad?" said the damsel indifferently. "Aye, an' Ah'm thinkin' Ah'm a fool for doin' it." "How's ta mak that art?" "Why, suppose Ah get killed in t' pit, where does ta think t' money'll go?" "Why, to thy feyther, for sure." "True enough, an' it ain't fair. It ought to be paid to my wife." "To thy wife! Why, tha hasn't got one, Bill." "That's just it," cried Bill in a burst of confidence. "Tha're a nice lass, Jessie, an' Ah want thee to have that money." "Why couldn't ta say so at fust?" cried Jessie joyfully. Then the happy couple embraced and trotted off to break the news to Jessie's mother.—Pearson's.

Went Him One Better.

A well known Glasgow divine related the following anecdote, showing that the ready wit of a countryman was more than a match for him: He was going to the country for his holidays and was in a railway train when a young man entered. In a short time the two commenced a conversation, in the course of which the clergyman asked the youth what he worked at. "I am a cooper, sir," was the reply. "A cooper! So am I," replied the clergyman with a laugh. The youth looked at him for a minute or so, then burst into a fit of laughter and said: "Oh, I see; ye'r a minister. Ye marry folks. But I gang farther than ye das, I biship couple and uncomple." The clergyman laughed heartily and acknowledged that the youth had the better of the sally.

Man's Greatest Enemy.

"Fatigue is one of the greatest enemies of the human race," says a writer in Ainslie's. "Modern physiology shows that it is the cause of nearly half and perhaps more of the several hundred catalogued diseases that prey upon man. In our age, with its high pressure, its hot and bitter competition and its unrelenting struggle for survival, its moral and physical ravages are steadily increasing. Cities, in which an ever larger proportion of our people dwell, are biological hotbeds and, for some, furnaces, forcing development prematurely and encouraging late hours and excitement and consuming nerve and brain."

Corrected His Error.

With the Germans the absentminded college professor is a stock source of witticisms. One of these deeply absorbed gentlemen, sitting on a rear seat, thought he knew a person sitting in front and was about to speak to him when, the stranger by chance turning a little, the professor saw that he was mistaken. Nevertheless, touching him on the shoulder, he remarked politely: "You will excuse me, but you are not the person I thought you were," Philadelphia North American.

Spiteful.

"Yes," said the engaged girl, "Dick is very methodical. He gives me one kiss when he comes and two when he goes away." "That's always been his way," returned her dearest friend. "I've heard lots of girls comment on it." Thus it happens that they cease to speak to each other.

Easy Diagnosis.

Mrs. Fondma—Sorry to disturb you at this hour, doctor, but we can't imagine what ails the child. Doctor—Cold, perhaps. Did you have him out today? Mrs. Fondma—Yes; but only to his grandmother's. Doctor—Ah! Overfed; that's all.—Philadelphia Press.

A MAN AGAINST A NATION.

The Most Curious European War That Ever Was Waged. The most curious European war ever waged was that which in the sixteenth century, the period of the reformation and the renaissance, was carried on single handed for between five and six years between a bankrupt grocer of Berlin and the elector of Saxony, who was the most powerful German prince of the period. The grocer's name was Hans Kohlhaase, and the immediate cause of the quarrel was the arresting of two of his horses in the elector's territory, he being a subject of the elector of Brandenburg. Falling to get redress, he adopted what was then a perfectly legal expedient and declared formal war on the realm of Saxony. The declaration was accepted in due form, and the war began. The extraordinary part of the story is that the grocer kept the war up for nearly six years practically single handed and even went to the extremity of declaring war on his own sovereign in the meantime before he was caught. He burned farms and even villages, employed mercenaries after the fashion of the times and made himself the terror of the district. He was finally influenced to stop hostilities by Luther, and after he had taken the sacrament from his hands he was betrayed into a further act of hostility by treachery and, being captured, suffered death on the wheel after refusing an act of grace which granted him the painless and honorable death of the sword. The story is perhaps the strangest of all the romances of that romantic age.

He Saw the Joke.

Here is a true story of a curious personality well known to many professional men in London today: He is a Scot, whose business ability is above the average, but everything he does is done with the air of a man constantly wrestling with some problem of the soul. He never smiles, and his eyes have a fixed but intense expression. One day he was returning to London with several companions. The whole party were Scotch, but the companions were of general type. One of them told a humorous tale, over which the rest laughed uproariously. Not so the human problem. He sat in a corner of the railway carriage glowering at his mirthful friends. Half an hour afterwards, however, when all were standing at a street corner before separating he took one aside and said solemnly and slowly: "Ye would observe that I did na' laugh at yond' story. Well, I saw the joke. Ye might not think it, but I have a keen sense of humor."—London News.

An Impossible Task.

The committee waited upon the successful man. "Your fame has preceded you," they said as he entered the room. He smiled serenely. "I am rather well known," he admitted modestly. "You have given names to sleeping cars, new cigars, health foods and games—names that have pleased the public and your patrons?" The successful man bowed. "Well," said the spokesman, "we have a new baby at our house, and we have come to you to select a name that will please her parents, sisters and brothers, grandparents, aunts, uncles, and friends of the family and herself later on." The successful man frowned sternly. "Sir," he said, "I do not undertake the impossible."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Telling the Weather From Mists.

The motion of mists, rapid or slow, was regarded as one of the best methods of foretelling the approach of rain or snow. When there was a mist before the rise of the full moon, if clouds were seen in the west before the sun rose or there was a mist in the fields before sunrise, wet weather was expected. When the mists vanished rapidly and the moon seemed to rise faster than usual, fine weather was sure to gladden the hearts of the peckymakers on the succeeding day. When the winds changed and the clouds flew along on "tail," the farmers predicted a storm.

Railroad Time Folders.

The average person who picks up a railroad time folder does not realize the enormous amount of work which the preparation of such a publication involves. The big Burlington system, for instance, has a general time folder made up from sixteen different division time tables. The folder contains 2,000 names of towns, gives the schedules of over 500 trains, and whenever there is a change in time 60,000 figures have to be carefully checked and corrected.

No Smoking.

There is one country in the world where it is considered a crime to smoke—Abyssinia. The law forbidding tobacco dates from the year 1642. It was at first merely intended to prevent priests from smoking in the churches, but it was taken too literally, and nowadays even foreigners have to be careful not to be seen smoking.

Conceded It.

"There's a burglar in the house, Benjamin," said Mrs. Frett, arousing her husband in the dead of the morning. "Hear that?" she continued. "It's surely the sound of a chisel. He's a safe burglar." "You bet he is," sleepily returned Benjamin, turning over for another nap.—Richmond Dispatch.

Couldn't Improve the Method.

Mrs. Chugwater—I'd be ashamed to sleep in church the way you do. Mr. Chugwater—I can't help it. It's the only way I know how to sleep.—Chicago Tribune.

THROWING THE LASSO.

The Manner in Which the Rope is Handled by an Expert. "A mistaken impression prevails in the mind of the public in regard to the manner in which a lasso is handled," says an expert. "The idea that the loop is always swung around the head before making a cast, especially when the roper is on foot, is erroneous. No man of experience ever makes a cast in this fashion from the ground in practical work. There are several reasons why he does not. One of them is that the movement is likely to frighten the stock, especially horses; another that he may have to wait some minutes before a favorable opportunity occurs for making a cast. He knows that better results are obtained by holding the rope as unobtrusively as possible, even keeping it concealed from the object of capture. "On the contrary, however, when mounted and in pursuit it is absolutely necessary to swing the loop over and around the head, for the cast must be made with the greatest possible force in order to overcome not only the forward movement of the pursued, but also the action of the wind should that chance to be against you. "As to the manner of casting, some 'ropers' cast with a quick, jerky movement of the hand, seeming to use the arm very little and the body not at all. Others employ body, arm and hand. Both methods are effective when perfected by practice."

Board With the Butler.

To avoid the trouble of housekeeping, many wealthy Parisians board with their butler, so to speak. Instead of ordering the food for the household from day to day, they pay a fixed sum per month to their butler or housekeeper, who contracts to supply them with the usual three meals per day, composed of the customary courses, says What to Eat. The price paid for this service varies in accordance with the style of living. If guests be invited to dinner or any sort of entertainment be given, an extra sum per head is paid. In this way the lady of the house avoids the annoyance of butchers' and bakers' bills, and if the butler does not keep his part of the contract it is easy enough to find another to replace him. Of course, the president's household is carried out on this plan on a large scale, and many of the big stores supply all their employees with daily meals in the same manner. The banks and other administrations of similar nature often furnish the noonday meal to their clerks by contract, the latter paying a trifling sum toward the cost.

The Manufacture of Pins.

In 1775 a prize was given to the colonist of Carolina who produced the first native pins and needles. During the war of 1812, when, owing to restrictions upon commerce, the price of pins rose to the enormous sum of $1 per paper, the manufacture was actually started in the United States, but does not seem to have met with success, as the enterprise was soon abandoned. The industry was not fairly started in this country until the year 1836. The early pins in this country, as in England, were made with globular heads of fine twisted wire, made separately, and secured to the shank by compression from a falling block and die. These old pins had the misfortune of often parting with their heads. It was to overcome this difficulty that the attention of early inventors was directed. The solid headed pin, in common use today, took the place of the old form about 1840.

Couldn't "Kid" Him.

"Have you known what it is to be an orphan?" asks one of the characters in the "Pirates of Penzance," and another replies, "Often." The similarity between the two words causes almost a page of good Gilbertian fun. It would have been otherwise if either of the characters had happened to be an average London boy. The tale is told of a London boy on his country holiday who was asked by a cartier to hold one of his horses. "Which 'orse?" asked the lad. "The off 'un," said the driver. "Orphan," said the boy. "How d'ye think I know which of 'em's a horphan?" said the cartier. "I don't know," said the boy. "And that closed the incident."—London News.

Out of Proportion.

Benham—I try to believe the Bible, but I find that story of the ten virgins, five of whom were wise and five foolish, a little perplexing. Mrs. Benham—What's the matter with that? Benham—Judging from the women I have known, the proportion of foolish ones was altogether too small.—New York Times.

As if It Were Possible.

Claribel—I wonder what that creature meant? Laurie—What creature? Claribel—Why, Tentworth, of course. When I told him everybody said I was improving in my singing, he said he was delighted to hear it. The Idea!—Stray Stories.

Her Protest.

"Darling," said Edwin, "your eyes are like diamonds, your teeth like pearls, your lips resemble the most glorious rubies, and your hair—" "Edwin," said Angelina sternly, "remember that you work in a jewelry warehouse and that it's disgusting to talk shop."

A YOUNG LADY'S LIFE SAVED.

At Panama, Columbia, by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Dr. Charles H. Utter, a prominent physician of Panama, Columbia, in a recent letter states: "Last March I had as a patient a young lady sixteen years of age, who had a very bad attack of dysentery. Everything I prescribed for her proved ineffectual and she was growing worse every hour. Her parents were sure she would die. She had become so weak that she could not turn over in bed. What to do at this critical moment was a study for me, but I thought of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and as a last resort prescribed it. The most wonderful result was effected. Within eight hours she was feeling much better; inside of three days she was upon her feet and at the end of one week was entirely well." For sale by J. F. Smith, H. F. Rossman, J. B. Fisher's Sons.
