WHAT PENNYPACKER STANDS FOR.

No Quay machine candidate was ever more clearly branded than ex-Judge Pennypacker. A desperate effort has been made to prevent the truth being known, but in vain. The light has been turned on and the crushing facts so plainly revealed that successful denial is impossible. It was hoped to play another confidence game upon the voters of Pennsylvania; but the scheme of deception has been shown up and each passing day adds to the discreditable story. The past week an effort has been made to excite the interest of young men in behalf of the so-called Republican candidate for governor, while the record of his subservient to evil influences shows this misguided creature of Quayism to be a most unworthy example. He has earnestly sought to cover the manifold and grievous sins of a political malefactor, who seeks to retain power through using him as a cloak to hide evil doings and purposes.

It is seldom that the story of political intrigue which all honest men must condemn has been so vividly told within the household of Quayism itself. In another column we give the indignant declarations of the most faithful journalistic supporter of the Philadelphia Inquirer without perceiving the unprecedented, yet justifiable bitterness caused by Mr. Quay's conduct. What was so freely and frankly said, by way of protest and warning, fairly represented the feelings of nine-tenths of the Republican workers in Pennsylvania; and what they thought and said before and at the time of the state convention, they are still thinking and saying to themselves. They have no love for Democracy; ordinarily they are active and zealous partisans, but they believe in fair play. They are neither sneaks nor hypocrites nor political highwaymen. They have given the Democratic party many a hard tussle, and were ready to do so again this year, until an arrogant boss, to carry out his own selfish purposes, showed his contempt for their wishes and rights.

It is no wonder the Republican party organization in half the counties of the state is standing still in this campaign. The men concerned knew Elkin and believed in him and wanted him for their leader, no matter what other people thought about him. They know nothing of Pennypacker, except that he is the subservient tool of Quay and they don't care what becomes of him. They know that Pennypackerism and Quayism mean one and the same thing, and that is enough to chill the marrow in their bones—at present. Delamater was unpopular enough, but he made a manly canvass of his own, and had earnest friends in many parts of the state.

But Pennypacker is absolutely without personal following or strength anywhere. He is the sole creation of Quayism and has made it abundantly clear that if elected to the governorship he would sink his own feeble will within that of the tyrannical and conscienceless master to whom he owes everything he has been, all that he is and all that he hopes to be in public life. This candidate, indeed, is the biggest sham ever put up by Quay, and his weakness is giving the boss the deepest anxiety.

As the days go by the poll-parrot candidate will grow smaller and smaller, until even the Quay stalwarts will be ashamed of him. Meanwhile, the great battle for the redemption of Pennsylvania from the thralldom and curse of Quayism goes grandly on. Let every good citizen do his part to help this great cause of the people against the bosses; of fair play against machine tyranny; of freemen's rights against political slavery; of honest government against official knavery; of patriotism against despotism.

The enthusiasm of little Democratic Fulton, at the opening of the campaign for the redemption of the state, is an indication of the coming uprising all along the line. In every county the people are preparing to overwhelm Quayism this time. Let every voter do his share of the work.

THE DUTY OF HONEST MEN

Quayism As Seen By The Philadelphia Press Before Pennypackerism Blinded It.

There have been many queer things in Pennsylvania politics, but the backsliding of the Philadelphia Press, under the singular influence of Pennypackerism, furnishes a chapter of journalistic weakness and inconsistency that has no counterpart. Our misguided contemporary can never wipe out the commendable record of many years' vigorous hostility to Quayism and all that it stands for. It told the truth in those days, as it is now trying to hide it. It stood with the people against their enemies. It had no fellowship with an organized band of political highwaymen. It fought bravely for civic righteousness and good government. It turned on the light fearlessly. What it said then is even more apt and forcible now. We give herewith some extracts from the editorial columns of the Press during the senatorial campaign of 1900, when Mr. Quay was making such a desperate fight for re-election and a desperate fight for re-election and the re-establishment of his power for the rebuilding and strengthening of his broken political machine. Here is what the Press said, pass it along for your self-respecting Republican neighbors to read:

Repudiate Fraudulent Nominations. (July 18.) "The people have shown more than once that they want fair play and decent politics. They are tired of the dictation and corruption of the machine."

(July 27.) "The time has come in Pennsylvania when every species of machine election crime must end. Nominations made by fraud at the primaries are not entitled to respect or support, and will have neither from the honest Republicans of the state. The party has been dishonored too much by such methods."

A Combination Corrupt and Criminal. Referring to the turning down of faithful Republican members of the legislature, by orders of the Quay machine, the Press, July 29, said: "What do the decent citizens of Philadelphia say to this? Are they to permit those who served them to be sacrificed on that account? Do they propose that a combination of all that is corrupt and criminal in our politics, of the black-mailers and ballot thieves, shall control the party nominating its own representatives of a free city in the legislature? This is the issue that is forced upon them."

The People Or The Bosses. (August 2.) "The machine is desperate. It will go to any lengths to retrieve itself along the losses it has sustained. Voters are not to be led astray by any side issues or grand-stand plays. The real issues to be settled are Quay or anti-Quay, machine domination or individual independence, the people or the bosses."

No Better Than Highwaymen. (August 3.) "Political thievery is just as contemptible and degrading, and just as amenable to law, as the ordinary thievery that robs a man of his pocket book, or holds up the wayfarer on the highway under cover of the night."

Quay's Doom Sealed. (August 7.) "It will be a happy day for Pennsylvania when it takes its place along with Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Iowa and other Republican states, which are free from bossism and where merit and not subservient to a boss determines who shall represent the people."

There Must Be a Clean Sweep. "The outlook is most cheering to Pennsylvania reformers, but Quay has around him a gang that is worse than he. There must be a clean sweep. Not only Quay, but Quayism must be beaten, the machine broken up and its power destroyed."

Yet Pennypacker Is Quay's Own. (August 15.) "After four years of Stone the people of Pennsylvania will surely not be willing to end another Quay machine governor."

The Duty of True Republicans. (August 20.) "Fusion is the last resort of life-long Republicans who refuse to be defrauded and disfranchised by a corrupt faction. The Quay machine has been enacting a systematic and diabolical fraud and read out of the party those Republicans who have refused to accept as the voice of their political conscience the mandates of a few petty, besotted bosses, who are posing as the Republican organization of Pennsylvania. But all the beating of tom-toms and cries of irregularity that machine organs and machine bosses can encourage cannot drive this class of true Republicans from their allegiance, nor from their attempts to overthrow the corrupt and conscienceless handful of bosses who have grown rich on the spoils of office, and who seek still further to fasten themselves upon the party for personal gain."

Nominations Made By Crime. (September 13.) "No candidate for the legislature nominated by means of fraud and terrorism practiced by police and other office-holders, under the direction of the machine, is entitled to the respect and support of Republican voters as a candidate of the Republican party. Every nomination so made is an outrage and a disgrace which all who care for the good name of the party must unite to repudiate. Quayism has debauched the politics of the state and must be wiped out."

Honest Election Laws a Supreme Issue. (September 21.) "Recent exposures of election crimes have made honest election laws the supreme issue in coming legislation. It is an issue upon which men will not divide on party lines. The self-respect and common honesty of the community are rayed against the lawless forces of machine corruption. Every honest Republican and every honest Democrat can unite to secure a common result necessary for the honor of the city and the state, and the rights of the people themselves."

How About Pennypacker? (September 23.) "No Republican is under obligations to respect a nomination made by crime and a really honest Republican will."

Enemies of Ballot Reform. (October 3.) "At every session of the legislature for eight years an earnest attempt has been made to change the form of ballot and simplify it, and in every instance it has been defeated by the opposition of members who were under the control of Quay and members in his favor were defeated for renomination."

OPEN CHARGES OF BRIBERY

The Story of a Political Crime as Told by Quay's Own Disgusted Friends.

The odious and disgraceful records of political bossism and corruption in Pennsylvania may be searched in vain for a parallel to the shameful story of the nomination of Samuel W. Pennypacker as the so-called Republican candidate for governor. This recent history will not soon be forgotten. The name of the machine candidate was not mentioned until a short time before the Harrisburg convention. At Quay's orders Durham deserted his friend, Attorney General Elkin, who was making a most successful canvass for the nomination, and turned in over eighty delegates from Philadelphia for Pennypacker. At the same time Elkin was ordered out of the fight. He publicly refused to be thrown aside and challenged Pennypacker to a contest in the counties yet to be heard from. In a number of places the lines were thus drawn and in every instance, despite all the resources of the Quay machine, the hard work of his federal office-holders and the corrupt use of money, his choice was beaten. Apparently, the Republican voters taking part in the primaries were overwhelmingly for Elkin. When the convention met Quay bulldozed everything and everybody, taking forty-one pledged delegates from Elkin, and thus forced the unpopular nomination of the candidate of his own choice. Herein is given daily extracts from the editorial columns of the Philadelphia Inquirer, the most stalwart machine and Quay paper in the state, during the days immediately preceding the convention:

Republicans Under the Lash. "The Republicans of Pennsylvania are today under the lash of Senator Quay. In various counties Elkin and Watres have met and fought it out, and in every instance Elkin has won by a great vote of the people. Everything was going smoothly, when suddenly Senator Quay broke away and plunged his party into confusion. It was an outrageous thing to do, Pennsylvania Republicans are today under the lash. The sentiment of the people must be thwarted. The Quay orders are out to line up for the Quay candidate. It is not what the people want, but what Quay wants, and he is going to Harrisburg himself to lay violent hands upon the convention."

Quay's Method of Making Candidates. "Elkin has been making his canvass before the people by Quay appealing to the people? By no means. It is easy enough to give orders, but sometimes the people decline to take them, and we shall see whether the Quay orders of the Quay candidate are going to prevail in the convention. The inquirer has great faith in the people; in them there is a splendid opportunity for the people to make themselves heard and to win the fight for fair play."

The People and the Governorship. "The one question before the Republican party of Pennsylvania to-day is whether the people themselves shall name a candidate for governor, or whether a single individual shall dictate the majority rule of the party. The result of the question before the Republican voters of Pennsylvania today."

Quay's Political Crime. "I refuse to be ordered out, bartered out or forced out, said Elkin. He will not withdraw. He has been raising in Aaronburg, to survive her. J. H. B. Hartman and Emma C. Wert were united in wedlock in 1878, and two children blessed this union, Mary E. and Marguerite Ruth, the latter preceding the mother to the spirit world about three years ago, says the Journal. Mrs. Hartman had been an invalid for eight years and for three and a half years had been unable to walk. Rev. Sheeder, of the Lutheran church conducted the services."

Trying to Bribe Delegates. "The inquirer is in possession of evidence in several cases, showing attempts to bribe Elkin delegates. The coming convention must be conducted in the honest, or the result may be disastrous."

Elkin's Appeal For Fair Play. "Elkin is making a grand fight for fair play against the power of federal office-holders and ruling rate. Here is what he says: 'Under the circumstances, I would be lacking in a proper appreciation of the duties of citizenship if I failed in standing for a principle that is dear to every Pennsylvania heart; that is to say, that each man shall have a fair chance in an open field before the people on every question in which the public has an interest.'"

Desperate Work of Bosses. "It is Philadelphia and boodles against Elkin. We do not believe a single delegate can be bribed, bought or stolen. The fight against him is not that of the people, but cash offers of desperate politicians, who seek to strangle the people, the work of federal office-holders. Quay has tried to cut the throat of the best friend he ever had. He has demanded that Republican leaders join hands in this crime. It would be ruinous for them to do so."

The Dollar Mark of Infamy. "Any instructed delegate who refuses to vote for Elkin will have the dollar mark of infamy on his brow. All sorts of debauchery is being attempted. One Schuykill county delegate has been offered $10,000 and a good position in the county, with strings of strangled or bought would invite destruction."

The Crime Consummated. On the morning of the convention the inquirer's Harrisburg special telegram said: "The straits to which Quay was driven was shown by the direct steal of four delegates by the state committee, acting under Quay's orders. Two Schuykill men were offered $5,000 each, and refused to take it, so they were thrown out. It was brutally done; but, as Senator Penrose said the votes were needed and they had to be taken."

Forty-one Delegates Taken. The day following the convention the inquirer's Harrisburg correspondent reported Elkin as openly declaring to his friends that '41 delegates, pledged and elected,' had been taken from him."
