Small-pox in Bellefonte.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Murphy, residing on East Curtin street, Bellefonte, has small-pox. The child was in Jersey Shore on a visit, and a few days after returning became ill, and later the dreaded disease developed.

The school board closed one of the schools as a precautionary measure, having learned that some of the pupils attending the school had been at the Murphy home a few days previous to the development of the disease.

Keith's.

The 67th and final vaudeville bill to be seen at Keith's Bijou Theatre will undoubtedly be one of the most enjoyable ever seen at a house whose programs have invariably attracted audiences twice daily that have tested the capacity of the house. For the initial week of Mr. Keith's fourteenth year as a manager in Philadelphia a distinct novelty is to head the bill. We are to observe how the Burmese play foot-ball, which will be demonstrated by the Mong Toon Trio.

Allie Tressler Dead.

Allie S. Tressler, of Freeport, Ill., died at that place Saturday, after an illness of but one day from Bright's disease. Mr. Tressler had been a resident of that place for nine years at which time he left his home at Linden Hall. The remains of the deceased were brought east by his uncle, Samuel Cornelius, and the interment took place Saturday from the home of his sister, Mrs. Robert McClellan, Rev. Fenstermacher officiating. His age was thirty years.

Linden Hall.

J. Henry Moyer who has been visiting friends near Linden Hall, left on Monday morning for his home in Hiawatha, Kansas.

Scott Wieland is home for a week's vacation, as is also Will Felding, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Annie Schock and Miss Edith Hall, of Huntingdon, are guests of Miss Freda Hess.

Robert McClellan's house took fire on Saturday from an over-heated pipe and had it not been for the timely discovery a disastrous conflagration might have been the result.

Mrs. Edla Wieland and daughter, who have been guests at the Hess home for the last month, left for their home in New Haven Wednesday.

Elmer Crissman has been in West Virginia for several weeks in the interest of the Linden Hall Lumber Co.

Little Ned Keller, Mrs. J. W. Keller's youngest son, who has been in an orphan's home since he was five years old, came home Tuesday; he is now twelve years old.

Misses Clara Gentzel and Lucy Keller, of Pleasant Gap, spent several days visiting friends here last week.

Miss Madie Glingerich, of Boalsburg, is spending a few days with Mrs. F. E. Wieland.

John Coble was accidentally shot in the foot one day last week by a gun in the hands of his little brother.

Miss Daisy Brooks expects to leave for Bellefonte next week, where she will spend the winter with her aunt, Miss Ida Bell.

MAINTAINING THE RECORD.

Hunting Parties Meet with Good Success, Five Deer Captured.

The Bradford hunting party is maintaining its record, having killed one deer up to Wednesday night. The hunters fortunate in killing the game are Clyde Bradford, George Bradford and Chas. W. Slack.

The hunting party known by the name of "R. A. M.," of Potters Mills, who are not nearly as ragged as they pretend, have two deer to their credit. One of the fleet-foots was killed by J. Frank McCoy. The name of the other slayer was not made known. The party consists of Wm. McKinney, Wm. Workinger, Frank Moyer, S. W. Johnston, J. F. McCoy, Warren Slack and Henry Moyer.

A party from Georges Valley are also in camp, but so far have not succeeded in killing any game.

Modern Eloquence.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Modern Eloquence which will appear for a short time. The publication of Modern Eloquence (ten handsome library volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best after-dinner speeches, lectures, addresses, anecdotes, reminiscences and repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

Potters Mills.

Misses Mabel Smith and Sallie McClenahan, Bruce Runkle and Asher Stahl drove to Penns Cave Sunday.

The school house porch was carried away hallow-ee night.

Frank McCoy killed a fine deer Saturday. Warren Slack wounded one, but did not capture him.

Bing Stover and Charles Romig, Milroy, were in town the other day.

Clayton Stover and Rufus Strohm came home to vote.

George Harman moved from McCoy's to the Cross church into the house with Ammon Vonada.

A horse and buggy belonging to Ammon Bubb Tuesday evening was taken to near Pennington's and hitched. And was not found until the next morning. Mr. Bubb had been calling on a young lady.

The barn of Henry A. Rauch, near Middleburg, was destroyed by fire recently. Two horses belonging to Mr. Rauch were found in the barnyard with the halter straps over their necks, and the stable door closed. One calf was burned. The fire is supposed to have been from incendiary motives. There was an insurance of $400.00 on the barn and $150.00 on personal property.

Edward F. Foreman, who with his family was in town last week on the sad mission of interring their little son, is employed by Heller Brothers & Co., contractors and builders, in Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Foreman, after being with the company for a month, was given the position of foreman of mechanics in wood construction. A large ten-story building was recently completed, which will give many men work on the inside during the coming winter.

St. John's Reformed Church, Boalsburg.—A. A. Black, Pastor.

REFORMED CHURCH RE-DEDICATED.

$7,000 Expended in Remodeling the Boalsburg Church—$1,600 Raised Sunday.

Sunday was a memorable day in the history of the Reformed church of Boalsburg.

The day was an ideal one—Providence favored the occasion, and the enthusiastic Reformed church people acquitted themselves accordingly.

The Reformed church was re-dedicated.

The cost of remodeling, refurnishing, lighting, etc. was $7000.00.

The sum raised Sunday was $1600.00. The entire debt was paid.

The re-dedictory services Sunday morning were witnessed by persons from all parts of Centre county, who either were members of that denomination, or had a direct or indirect interest in the old or new church. The members of St. John's Reformed church unconsciously betrayed, by the very expression on their faces, their connection with the church, and it would not have required superhuman knowledge to pick out of the audience nine-tenths of Rev. Black's flock at Boalsburg. Their giving, and intentions to give, put them in a happy frame of mind; they were fraught with good works.

The large auditorium began to fill up long before the appointed hour for the ceremonies to begin. The audience waited patiently, in the mean time passing congratulatory remarks to neighbors, and nodding to friends. Upon the appearance of the choir, everything was stilled. In a minute Rev. Lewis Robb appeared as did also the beloved former pastor Rev. Wm. H. Groh, by a stairway leading to the altar. With their faces turned to the lectern, each silently asked God's blessing.

Soft strains from the magnificent pipe organ quickened each soul, as Prof. P. H. Meyer played the prelude to Gloria from Mozart's twelfth Mass. The choir's rendition of this as well as other selections and hymns was beautiful.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS—FURNITURE.

Pretty Memorial Windows—The Donors of Furniture—Contractors.

The church is a red brick structure, two stories in height. At the north corner is a square brick tower, built on its own foundation, and rises over the height of the cone of the roof on the building proper. It rises full height without lessening in dimensions, and is topped with a number of brick projections with stone caps. The belfry is well up in the tower, and has arched windows on the four sides. In the belfry hangs the old bell that has called many times, and announced the death of many noble Christians.

Entrance to the edifice is gained through an open canopied vestibule, which leads to the vestibule proper and the stairway to the main audience room. The auditorium occupies the whole of the second floor, and is furnished with dark wood pews, with a seating capacity of about three hundred and fifty persons. The pews form a semi-circle, and are cut by two wide central aisles. The altar is a raised semi-circle, furnished with pulpit, lectern and chairs of neat and pretty design.

The pipe organ is built into the church to the rear of the altar, but is so arranged that the organist faces the audience. Between the organ and the altar is the choir gallery, and is separated by a magnificent brass railing and brass posts.

The pipe organ was built in the year 1868, and is a splendid piece of mechanism. Five hundred dollars were spent in remodeling the instrument, eight pipes being added. The bellows is operated by an ingenious contrivance termed a water motor, but is operated similar to a steam engine, water taking the place of steam.

The frescoes is beautiful. The figures and lines are modest and the colors delicate. Green is the predominating color in the carpet, windows and frescoes, the color blending with that of the furniture and fixtures.

A large hall separates the Sunday school room, on the first floor, from the vestibule, and a partition and screens separate the room into three departments—the main room, Bible class room and infant room, the walls of which are beautifully decorated.

At the close of the sermon, the pastor, Rev. A. A. Black, read the names of all those who had made contributions toward the church remodeling fund and those who donated furniture.

The several windows are dedicated to the following persons, each window sill having a brass plate on which is inscribed the name or names: George and Harriet Fortney. Peter and Sarah Kuhn. Daniel E. and Catharine Wieland. Sunday School class No. 7. Rev. Wm. H. Groh. Dr. C. P. W. Fisher and daughter Elizabeth. Samuel F. and Susan Lehler. J. William Keller. John and Mary Keller and Jacob Meyer, Sr. Daniel and Elizabeth Moser. William and Catharine Bradford. Sunday School class No. 13. John Russell Harrison. Joseph, Henry and Catharine Meyer. The altar furniture and fixtures were presented by persons who are not now connected with the Boalsburg church, but were placed there in remembrance of some dear ones who during life was a pier in that congregation.

The altar was presented by Judge B. Franklin Keller, Bramwell, West Virginia. Henry Meyer, of Hiawatha, Kansas, was the donor of the pulpit and pulpit chairs—the pulpit in memory of Elder Philip Meyer, and the chairs in memory of Mrs. Philip Meyer, and the donor's wife, Louisa A. Meyer. Lawyers Harry Keller, of Bellefonte, and William Keller, of Lancaster, in memory of their father, Daniel Keller, presented the brass railing about the choir gallery. Sophia Hall, wife of Bishop George Calvin Hall, of Wilmington, Delaware, presented the lectern, in memory of her brother, Rev. Henry Keller. A pulpit Bible was donated by John Wanamaker, Philadelphia.

The frescoes was done by Rady & Co., Harrisburg, who also furnished the glass.

The contractor for the brick-work and wood-work was Wm. Steele, of Bellefonte.

The Grand Rapids (Michigan) furnished.
