Monday night of last week, about twelve o'clock, the people of Spring Mills were aroused from their slumbers by the ringing of a church bell and the cry of fire. Upon investigation it was found that fire had breken out in the rear of J. F. Rearick's bicycle shop. The flames had made such rapid headway before the discovery was made, that any attempt towards saving the building would have been useless. The men, therefore, who had gathered, gave their attention to H. F. Rossman's store, which stood next to the shop. Efforts were made to save it, but in vain. The rear of the store building was used as a dwelling house by Mr. Rossman's family, all of whom escaped from the burning building unharmed.

In a very short time both of the buildings were razed to the ground. It was with the greatest difficulty that the postoffice building and shoe store of C. A. Krape and the general store and dwelling of C. J. Finkle were saved from the wild flames that threatened them constantly. Both these buildings were on the opposite side of the street from those burning, but the wind blew such a gale in their direction that some of the men deserve great credit for the manner in which they baffled the flames.

The bicycle shop contained the office of J. F. Rearick, also that of Wm. Musser. The loss to the latter is nearly covered by insurance. Mr. Rearick's loss is estimated at $1000 with no insurance. Mr. Rossman's loss is $7000 with $5000 insurance. William Pealer's loss, owner of the building in in which Rossman's store was located, is estimated at $1500.

None of the parties rescued any goods from the burning buildings. The origin of the fire is unknown, al- creamery at Hublersburg. though it is the popular belief that it was the work of an incendiary.

Save the Woodpeckers. Two very important small birds that remain with us all winter and then ascertain the amount of revenues feed entirely upon insects, especially in orchards, are the Downy and Hairy Woodpeckers. Members of this family can be known by their dipping for the privilege of carrying on legitiflight, their short, sharp notes, their sharp rigid tail feathers pressed against the tree for support, two toes in front and two behind insuring a firmer grasp, their hard pecking statement taken from the reports of against wood, their modest white and black colors, and the patch of red on the head of the male. They are found mostly on the trunks and larger limbs of the trees, head upward, searching fori grubs, chrysalids, etc. They are erroneously called "Sapsuckers," are killed through ignorance of their own value. They do not suck sap, and do not injure the trees. Protect the small woodpeckers of the winter time and thus protect your fruit crops.
