Spring Mills.

The sick are improving. Ellis Shaffer has been housed up a couple days with severe pain in his side.

Jerry Condo went to jail last Monday morning, but only to serve as turnkey; a good man for the place, but sorry it did not go to a Democrat, where it belongs.

Ambrose Gentzell and wife spent last week in Altoona visiting friends. Quite a number of fishermen were out along the creek last Saturday fishing; some were successful and others were not. C. J. Finkle, the popular merchant, spent several days last week at Scranton, attending to business. Mabel Allison and Mae Smith spent a week at Bellefonte, visiting relatives and attending institute.

The Golden Eagles of Center Castle No. 169, will go to Millheim in a body Thursday evening, the Sth. Millheim Castle will have a public installation of officers in the town hali, to which all are 'invited.

NATURAL HISTORY.

The pouch of a pelican is large enough to contain seven quarts of water.

For mountain climbing camels are very inefficient and seldom used in Abyssinia and other mountainous countries.

Sparrows begin housekeeping very expeditiously. A pair of them will build a nest and furnish it with an egg inside of 24 hours from the time when the site was selected.

The female red grouse is said to vary its dress according to surroundings. It is a fact worth remembering that the red grouse occurs in no other part of the world but the British isles.

No one has been able to give a satisfactory reason for the formation adopted by the wild duck or mallard in flight. The birds arrange themselves in two converging lines, like a huge V, the leader occupying the point.

The ostrich is a descendant of a genus of bird which in prehistoric times attained an enormous size. In the alluvial deposits of Madagascar evidence has recently been found to show that ostriches 14 and 15 feet in height once lived on the island.

Stevenson's Cup of Misery.

R. L. Stevenson, writing in 1893 to George Meredith, in an epistle quoted in a new edition of his "Letters," says, with heart touching pathos: "For 14 years I have not had a day's real health. I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary, and I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written in bed and written out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head swam for weakness, and for so long, it seems to me, I have won my wager and recovered my glove. I am better now-have been, rightly speaking, since first I came to the Pacificand still few are the days when I am not in some physical distress. And the battle goes on-ill or well is a trifle so that it goes. I was made for a contest, and the powers have so willed that my battlefield should be this dingy, inglorious one of the bed and the physic bottle. At least, I have not failed, but I would have preferred a place of trumpetings and the open air over my head." Poe and the French.

The keener appreciation in Europe of literature as a fine art is no doubt the main reason why Poe is looked upon over there as our most noteworthy poet. Poe certainly had a more consummate art than any other American singer, and his productions are more completely the outcome of that art. They are literary feasts. "The Raven" was as deliberately planned and wrought out as is any piece of mechanism. Its inspiration is verbal and technical. "The truest poetry is most feigning." says Touchstone, and this is mainly the conception of poetry that prevails in European literary circles. Poe's poetry is artistic feigning, like good acting. It is to that extent disinterested. All . . . He does not speak for himself, but for the artistic spirit. He has never been popular in this country. for the reason New.. that art, as such, is far less appreciated here than abroad. The stress of life here is upon the moral and intellectual Goods elements much more than upon the æsthetic. We demand a message of the poet or that he shall teach us have to live. Poe had no message but that of art. He made no contribution to our stock of moral ideas; he made no appeal to the conscience or manhood of the race: he did not touch the great common workaday mind of our people He is more akin to the Latin than to the Anglo-Saxon; hence his deepest impression seems to have been made upon the French mind .-. Tricks of the Fabyahs.

The Fahyahs have a trick which is performed in this manner: They take a small cup, put it on the ground-all feats are performed in the open airand place in it a small bulb, which is then covered with sand.

Taking a small fan from their waist and standing about two feet away. they fan a rosebush from the cup at least two and a half feet high, bearing quite a number of roses, one of which they will give for a piece of silver. The flower withers away into ether in twenty minutes.

I have seen a peach, a pear and a plum tree grow from seed, bear fruit and wither away again in five hours. I have seen these Fabyahs throw themselves upon broken glass held in a large box that it would be impossible for any one else to touch without receiving a wound and never get a scratch.

Admiral and Chaplain.

On the return from a long cruise Admiral Goldsborough's chaplain was asked by the admiral whether or not he considered the result of his inbors satisfactory from a clerical standpoint. "Yes," he answered, "the result has been in the main most satisfactory. The only serious impediment to progress with the sailors has been that it is impossible to prevent their swearing when they hear the officers guilty of the very fault for which I correct them."

"Tut, tut, man, that is not to be helped. The officers all swear," replied the admiral. "I do it myself sometimes, but I don't mean anything-not a bit more than you do by your praying."

Saved by IIIs Wits.

The Duke of Wellington once met by accident an officer in a state of inebriety.

"Look here, sir," said the Iron Duke. "What would you do if you met one of your men in the condition in which I find you?"

The officer drew himself up, gave the military salute and replied with great gravity, "I would not condescend to

A Cap For Him.

An amusing story is told of a certain fussy and quarrelsome man who is fond of threatening lawsuits and actions for damages on every possible pretext and who is also not averse to taking mean advantage of his fellows. On a recent occasion his hat was slightly damaged by something accidentally dropped from the window of a neighbor's house. The fact was set forth in an indignant letter from the fussy person, who demanded that the hat should be replaced by a new one, a decidedly modest request, seeing that the original hat was old and shabby. while the injury to it could have been easily repaired.

The recipient of the letter, however, is a humorous gentleman well acquainted with the weaknesses of his correspondent. Instead of waxing indignant at the impudence of the demand he wrote a playful reply, explaining that times were hard, money scarce and new hats at a premium. He hoped, however, that as he could not furnish the aggrie red party with a new head covering be would accept the material for one. And he inclosed a sheet of foolscap!- -London Tit-Bits.

When John Was In Doubt. John was a coachman who took life most seriously and, being very particular, would return frequently in the course of the day to make sure he understood the orders that had been given him in the morning. One afternoon he presented himself before his mistress and began:

"Mrs. T., Oi'm not quite certain ez to Mr. T.'s ordher this mornin'. Of was droivin' him to the thrain, an' he noticed that the horse was lame, an' he
