Spring Mills.

The new bridge over Sinking Creek erected by T. B. Jamison, is certainly a very substantial structure and is far in advance of the specifications.

Potters Mills.

Mrs. Mary McKinney went to Altoona some time ago to consult a doctor there in regard to a sore on her side; all hope for her recovery.

Kelley Harshbarger has his eye on the party who stole his chickens and if they don't soon come and pay for them there will be an expensive war with headquarters at Fort Taylor.

John Strong just received a load of fresh oyster shells which he will furnish ready-ground to persons wanting any.

Riechley Bros. cut a log on their saw mill on top of the mountain that made two thousand and eighteen feet of lumber.

The up-town scribe said John Wilkinson caught a catamount; come off, it was only a wildcat.

Neff Bros. are doing quite a business at their mill in this place in the way of chopping grain and sawing long wood into short lengths for stove use.

There were two fellows caught at Mr. Bebelhimer's apple hole; look out or there will be trouble.

Amos Alexander's house is under quarantine; almost the entire family is down with scarlet fever.

J. R. Bible was in town Saturday delivering feed for the people in the prop business.

If there is anything you want to know just ask Daddy Goodwin, he is posted on anything; the old gentleman has traveled all over the country and has seen and heard more than he can remember.

J. R. Bible purchased a fine young horse; hope he will have better luck with this one. John is quite a jockey and is always ready for a trade.

R. J. Smetzler has a dandy pair of fox hounds but is afraid to take them out; don't know why unless he is afraid he will find them in his traps with their hides off.

Cal. Ruhl was in a knotty business the other day, he was hauling knotty logs.

Jacob Auman, the expert dynamiter while working on the telephone line shooting holes, slipped and partly fell in after the fuse was lighted, but got out just in time to avoid an accident.

F. A. Carson, merchant of this place keeps a good line of goods of all kinds, except growler tobacco. Now place your order or there will be trouble with the smokers.

J. F. Stover must be in the hound business; he was trying to sell a good fox hound but could not give his pedigree.

Clark Bible is now climbing telephone poles for the Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Some persons in this town want to know if there is a living in trapping; just ask the trappers they will tell you.

Rev. Haven on his way from Spring Mills to Sprucetown Monday, upset in a snow drift; his horse ran away and did considerable damage to the sleigh.

Mrs. McCleanahan and daughter Cora returned from Altoona; Miss Cora will go back to Altoona, where she has a position with the telephone company.

Mabelle Smith, of this place, and Asher Stahl, of Centre Hall, were married last Wednesday evening in the Methodist church at Sprucetown, by Rev. Haven. Mr. Stahl is to be congratulated for choosing such an accomplished young lady as a helpmeet. Their many friends wish them a long and prosperous life.

Ray Burns, Pittsburg; Miss Ruth Swabb, of Aaronsburg. Miss Acker and Mrs. Frank Carson spent Friday evening at the home of Dr. Alexander. Mrs. H. S. Alexander, Mrs. James Stover and Mrs. David Boone spent last Thursday at the home of Edward Bubb.

Colyer.

Tuesday evening at six o'clock, Wm. Long and Miss Elizabeth Koozts, both of Milroy, were joined in marriage at the home of the groom's parents at this place. About thirty guests were present to witness the ceremony.

The feast that followed the ceremony and congratulations was no small part of the program. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents from those present. The young people have the best wishes of their many friends.

Ray Burns and Miss Ruth Swabb, of Aaronsburg, were guests at the home of Dr. S. H. Alexander Friday evening.

Wm. Ishler is wearing a broad smile and says a little girl came to his home to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moyer and daughters entertained thirty-two young people from Colyer and Potters Mills on Thursday evening. All returned home having spent a very pleasant evening.

Miss Ruth Swabb returned to her home in Aaronsburg, after having spent several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Arthur Lee.

W. F. Rockey filled his ice house with some of the finest ice taken from this pond, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday; he had twelve men engaged to help him.

Get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets at C. W. Swartz's, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson's, Potters Mills; C. J. Finkle's, Spring Mills. They are easier to take and more pleasant in effect than pills.

Farmers Mills.

Paul T. Rearick and wife spent several nights at his mother's home last week.

The steam saw mill is making things boom in the hollow; good time is made.

Farmers are busy hauling their grain to market.

Miller Goodhart baled over twenty-four tons of hay; Cummings Bros. did the work.

D. H. Rearick will move to his own farm in Georges Valley in the spring. Wm. Hagen will move in the Jacob Neidigh house in the swamp.

Mervin Homan's funeral was well attended Monday forenoon.

Harvey M. Horner will move to Georges Valley, in Simon Hennigh's tenement house and work for D. H. Rearick.

Samuel Gingerich and Adam Rhodes cut the last of the trees on the piece of ground Mr. Gingerich bought of Henry Potter.

Mrs. Johanna Soderholm, of Fergus Falls, Minn., fell and dislocated her shoulder. She had a surgeon get it back in place as soon as possible, but it was quite sore and pained her very much. Her son mentioned that he had seen Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised for sprains and soreness, and she asked him to buy her a bottle of it which he did. It quickly relieved her and enabled her to sleep which she had not done for several days.

The son was so much pleased with the relief it gave his mother that he has since recommended it to many others. For sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills; C. J. Finkle, Spring Mills.

Books on military tactics and manoeuvres were furnished and officers and men were required to study them assiduously. In consequence of this schooling the regiment became one of the best drilled and most reliable fighting regiments in the service.

Confederate Raiders had been quite active at this time cutting communications between Washington and the north, by burning bridges on the N. C. railroad, the direct line between Baltimore and Harrisburg, Pa. The 148th P. V. was sent here to guard this line against these bridge burning raids of the Confederates; and in the mean time to be educated and trained in the art of war, in all its details.

A few days were devoted to putting up our camp and commissary, headquarters establishments and camp "auxes" generally; this done, the chief business was drill daily, except Sundays, when we had inspection at nine A. M., Divine Services at ten and dress parade at five P. M.

The regiment was made up of remarkably good material for soldiers, easily controlled and making very rapid progress in discipline. Everything had to be "just so." One evening the regiment turned out for dress parade; all the companies in position, guides still out and all dressed on Company "A" at the right; the regiment was in beautiful alignment; but still the colonel was not satisfied; we waited to hear the command, "guides post!"

but it came not; the colonel pointed to company "F," the second on the right; the orderly of that company sighted along the company front and discovered the trouble; he shouted: Stringfellow! take in your big belly; Stringfellow obeyed, the colonel was satisfied; he gave the command, "guides post!" and dress parade went on.

In the early days of our soldier life at Camp Beaver, at Cockeysville, Md., as regards custom and usage in war we men and officers were as green as the grass we trod and many ludicrous events were enacted.

Just across a low country, some distance from camp, beautifully situated, stood a fine mansion on high ground, almost in sight of camp. One day a rumor was circulated in camp that said house was a rendezvous for rebels.

Of course our chivalric patriotism would not tolerate rebellion so near our camp and a campaign against said house was planned and Company "A" was detailed to make the attack. In a very few minutes we were ready and in line, anxious to be led to the fray; we looked fierce; we were well armed; a big sword in an iron scabbard dangling by our side and each man carrying a gun big enough to shatter a saw-buck, or snake it rain.

And now we actually marched out of camp and out along the public road in very good order, keeping step to the captain's forceful, hep, hep, hep till we reached the beautifully shaded avenue that led up to the mansion. We fled right and marched up to this much suspected rebel "domicillum" and formed our line of battle in the yard, facing the veranda, a large, cool, vine covered retreat, where quite a company, mostly ladies, were enjoying an afternoon tea and having a fine time generally.

When we halted several ladies came forward, one of whom addressed the captain desiring him "to freely make his wishes known." The captain told her that it was rumored in camp that they were in cahoot with our enemies, that they gave shelter and comfort to them. The lady, a queen of refinement and style, said in the mildest manner and tone, that no one ever had reason to suspect their loyalty to the National Government, but she preferred her neighbors to speak for her. She kindly invited the captain to join her company at tea, but the captain declined; meanwhile some of the ladies pitched nick-nacks and candy to the boys, greatly to the amusement of "both sides of the question." We knew this silly campaign was at an end, and Company A fell back in good order; we had met some friends, and we were theirs during the remainder of our stay.

One evening Lieutenant Brown, who claimed to be a veteran of the "three months' service," and therefore knew all about war, took a guard, including three Meyers, cousins Henry, William and myself, out the Baltimore pike, a sort of aimless expedition I thought, to hunt trouble, or what not, we knew not. The sky was cloudless and the full moon shone in splendor, while the weather was perfect in mildness and beauty. We were armed; the brave Lieutenant was, besides two revolvers and a sword, armed with a canteen full of red army whiskey. He did not offer to share, as the soldiers used to call it, for a quart and a pint, the capacity of the canteen, was only enough for his own use that night. He did not know where he was leading us any more than we knew; he commanded us to halt and we halted, and he made us a speech, full of patriotic fire, in part as follows:

Don't Worry.

This is easier said than done, yet it may be of some help to consider the matter. If the cause is something over which you have no control it is obvious that worrying will not help the matter in the least. On the other hand, if within your control you have only to act. When you have a cold and fear an attack of pneumonia, buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and use it judiciously and all cause for worry as to the outcome will quickly disappear.

There is no danger of pneumonia when it is used. For sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills; C. J. Finkle, Spring Mills.

Japanese and Hudson tablets—extra quality, 5 cents—Garman's.

Last week we announced that we would be ready for business, and now we say . . .

We are in Business and are well pleased with the patronage given us. Remember Our Goods Are all NEW. Do not propose to make up our loss by fire by adding profit, but we propose to make up the loss by increase of sales. To do this we will endeavor . . . J. W. GEHART, General Superintendent.
