A bill has been introduced in the Legislature appropriating $25,000 for a monument in the capitol grounds "to commemorate the illustrious services of Simon Cameron rendered the State of Pennsylvania." There should be wings recalling the illustrious services of Maner, Lebo and Waggoner. Don Cameron should also have a monument. Senator Quay is certain to have one, and Governor Stone may live on in hopes that he will have the distinction.

The President is striving to throw the whole blame for inactivity in providing trust-curling legislation upon Congress. It is not exactly according to the American system that the President should boss Congress, but it is certainly not that system either that Congress should ignore him. If the Republican party really means to regulate the trusts it ought to elect men who will undertake the job seriously, and this applies to the President and Congress as well. All have seen the clown in the circus who makes great pretense of helping the ringmen spread the carpet for the acrobats and never touches it. These visits to the White House appear arranged in the same circus style.

More than 4,000,000 American farmers now have the benefit of the rural free delivery and the amount of mail that they receive has been more than doubled since the system was adopted. During the past year the system cost the government about $24,000,000, and with this amount the postoffice department has been able to give excellent satisfaction. There are still 700,000 square miles not covered by the rural delivery system. To accomplish this work it will require the employment of 26,000 to 27,000 carriers in addition to those now employed, making the entire force when the extension is completed about 40,000. The department expects that this will be accomplished within the next three years.
