New York (Special). - Whitaker Wright, the noted London promoter, who is accused of being concerned in colossal frauds in connection with the organization of financial corporations, was arrested here on the arrival of the French Line steamer La Lorraine, Louisiana, but the levees are still holdfrom Havre.

The arrest was made by two Central Office detectives at the request of the London police. Wright was taken to police headquarters and later to the Combs court, where he was arraigned before a magistrate and turned over to the United States authorities. He was then removed to the Ludlow street jail

Wright, when told that he was under arrest, showed no evidence of excitement and said he was a friend of King Edward. His principal concern was to avoid publicity, and he asked that his arrest be kept quiet.

He and his companion were entered on the original passenger list as M. Andreoni and Mlle. Andreoni. That he did not expect to be arrested is shown by the fact that soon after the steamship left Havre he told the pur-ser that a mistake had been made in making out the tickets in the name of Andreoni. His name accordingly was changed and appeared on the addition-al list as Mr. J. W. Wright, and that of the woman as Miss F. Browne.

Wright is thus described in the cable message from the London police:

Absconder charged on warrant with fraud to a large amount, Whitaker Wright, manager of London and Globe Finance Corporation of this city; age, 50 years; height, 5 feet 10 or 11 inches; complexion florid; hair and mustache dark; large head, small eyes, receding forehead; small chin, with fleshy roll beneath; stout build and weighing about 252 pounds; wears gold-rimmed glasses, with gold chain attached; speaks with a slight American accent. Please arrest, if possible, and wire Commissioner of Police, London.

Wright and the young woman occupied one of the finest deck suites or steamship. He was sitting at desk in his cabin when found by the detectives. When addressed by name he at once admitted his identity. On being told he was under arrest at the request of the London police he said:

The party went on deck and the woman was told quietly by Wright of his arrest. With an officer on each side of him he was escorted down the Stag 2.

WEALTHY RANCH-OWNER IS KILLED.

Just How the Stage Was Attacked Will Probably Never Be Known, As all the Passen. gers and Driver Were Killed-The Bodies Had Been Rifled of Everything of Value-Horses Allowed to Run Wild.

Tucson, Ariz. (Special) .-- Mexican bandits held up the stage which runs between Potam and Torin, on the Yaqui river, in the State of Sonora, killing all of the six passengers and the driver.

Among them was Filiberto Alverado, a wealthy Mexican, who owns a number of ranches along the Yaqui river. He was accompanied by his wife, to whom he had been married only two months, and by Senorita Julia Berdo and Senorita C. H. de Gonzales, both daughters of prominent families in Alverado's neighborhood.

Alverado and his wife had taken the stage from Potam to Torin, and the bandits no doubt thought he carried a large sum of money with him, although his friends say he did not have much on this trip. The stage carries very little mail and rarely any money or valuables, so that Alverado must have been the object of attack.

The hold-up took place about half way between the two towns, but just how the stage was attacked probably will never be known, as all of the passengers and the driver were killed. Their bodies were found on the afternoon of the tragedy and were still warm. The bodies had been rifled of everything of value. The traces had been cut and the horses had been allowed to run wild. The cover of the stage and the body were both shot full of holes.

It is thought by the Guaymas authorities that the perpetrators of the deed were some bandits who had taken refuge in the mountains back of the Yaqui river, but the Mexican officers at Potam are puzzled to explain why the women were killed and are inclined to believe that the outrage was committed by the Yaqui Indians, who, growing bold, ventured down the river
