Potter Twp. Crop Conditions.

The crop conditions in Potter township are about up to the average, with the exception of the corn. There are many fields in which the corn is very small, and how it will be able to make a crop is a mystery. The early planted corn is good, and the prospects for a crop are very fair.

Oats are about up to the average, the crop having made marked gains during the past two weeks. Barley is a poor crop.

Potatoes present a promising appearance. There is a good stand in most fields. The blossoming was profuse.

The wheat has all been stored, and is of a good quality. The crop, on an average, will slightly exceed that of last year.

The supplies for the district were also purchased. Potter township previously used Frye's old geography.

Many of the old charcoal pits are still to be seen.

Fertilizer, Fertilizer.

We will have on hand during the season, a quantity of the Pollock Fertilizer Company's fertilizer. You cannot go wrong in buying these fertilizers, and you will not go wrong, because the very first essential to successful farming is the production of good crops, and in order to produce the satisfactory crop the proper quality and quantity of fertilizer must be used. We can give you what you need in this line, and it will not take very much of your corn either.

FOREMAN & SMITH.

Penna Cave.

F. M. Earnest, of Millinburg, before returning to New York Tuesday, in company with the Millinburg, Clearfield and Buffalo guests at the Centre Hall hotel, visited Penna Cave, and among other observations made took the temperature of the air and water, and depth of the water in the cavern. The temperature of the air proved to be fifty-five degrees, and that of the water, at a point one hundred and fifty feet from the entrance, fifty-two and one half degrees. The depth of the water at the mouth of the cave is eighteen feet, the depth varying at other points, three feet being the shallowest.

Dr. Bitner on Mosquitoes.

Dr. H. F. Bitner Friday of last week gave his third talk of a series on "Mosquitoes" before the Chautauqua at Mt. Gretna. He pointed out the fact that care should be exercised to have the top of cisterns so tight that the mosquitoes cannot enter. No water should be left standing until it becomes stagnant. A little kerosene oil put on the surface of water containing mosquito eggs and larvae will quickly destroy both eggs and wrigglers. One ounce of oil is sufficient to cover properly fifteen feet of water surface. It does not require renewal of application oftener than every month or two, except in case of heavy rains.

Miss Rhone was a clerk in Warren's office during his term as Economic Zoologist under the Hastings administration.

WM. HENSTL.

Wm. Hensyl died Sunday morning in the carriage shop of Wm. Heckman, Rebersburg, at the age of seventy years.

The readers of the Reporter will scarcely be able to recognize that name but the person who bore it was none other than "Dutch Bill," a character known by almost every individual in Brush and Penna Valleys.

The deceased was a painter by trade and his hand was skilled in the art.

"Dutch Bill" served this country for five years in the frontier, fighting the Indians, being one of General Custer's brave men. He enlisted at Dayton, Ohio, and when honorably discharged he drew $700.

Peace to William Hensyl.

BULL IN EXPRESS CAR.

Chased Messenger Fisher Out—Ruled as the Supreme Master.

John M. Fisher, messenger of the Adams Express Company between Lewisburg and Bellefonte, had a most exciting experience in his car Friday morning. A Jersey bull weighing more than a thousand pounds, strongly crated, was loaded in his car at Rising Springs by Shook Brothers to be shipped to Canton, Pa.

The motion of the cars soon roused the bull to fury. His eyes gleamed green and he bellowed with rage. Making terrific lunges in his crate, his violence became so great that suddenly there was a splintering of the stout wooden bars, and in a moment to the horror of Fisher, the bull was at liberty.

With fierce bellows and quick lashing of his tail he tore around the car upsetting boxes, crates and barrels, chasing Fisher from one corner to the other.

Fortunately, he managed to reach the door at the end of the car, and, quickly tearing it open he managed to get out safely. The trainmen were hastily summoned, and on consultation they concluded the only thing to do was to leave the bull in possession of the car, as no one seemed willing to venture in.

At Coburn, the first station, the car was pulled up to a cattle chute, the door opened and the bull ran out.
