THE CARROT PEST

Negligent Farmers are Inviting an welcome Guest,

The negligent farmer is inviting an unwelcome guest by permitting wild carrot to grow unmolested on the roadside adjoining his cultivated soil. The condition of the roadside along many farms is appalling. It suggests that the farmer is indolent. The wild carrot, Canada thistle, briers, mullein, and the like, lined up on the road side, represent as many loafers, thieves and robbers anxiously awaiting an opportunity to tap the fertile soil within the bounds of the imaginary or real fence. No other class of people, no persons with the same amount of money invested, would for a day permit a gang of professed loafers, thieves and robbers to stand in front of their business place. The police force would at once be called out.

The police force-the man with the hoe and scythe-on the farm should be a most vigilant character. It is when the policeman sleeps that mischief is perpetrated; it is when the farmer is absorbed in plowing, sowing and reaping [sometimes losting] that the soil-robbing weeds grow up by the road side, along fences, in waste places, and cast their seed on cultivated soil. Particular attention is called to the rapidity with which wild carrot is spreading over cultivated soil. It is only a few years since wild carrot was almost unknown in this locality. Today the weed is everywhere visible. It's spread is due to negligence. For this negligence the farmer will be obliged to suffer greatly. Weeds and crops cannot be grown on the same soil at the same time; either the weeds must be exterminated or the soil given over to them entirely. In Penns Valley there are a number of fields where the wild carrot holds absolute command and has appropriated the soil to its use; it is robbing the soil of its fertility, and if the owner has a scintilla of pride about him, it will cause him a shamed face.

Back to the road side again. The condition of the road side abutting ou a farm is the best index to the success Centre Hill, no doubt are thoroughly or failure of the owner of the farm. It is conclusive evidence whether or not the man who occupies the farm is a born to these parents died Sunday man possessed of warranted pride; whether or not he is suited to his occupation. It is seldom that a rank crop of weeds grows on the outside of a fence, and a good cultivated crop within its boundaries. If it does so arations for the turkey dinner next happen the farmer is not entitled to it, Sunday at his boarding house on for the chances are he is prospering at Grange Park. The students that you have referred to us have been so uniformly successful in passing our examination and in holding their positions which we secured for them, that we would be glad to have you refer to us as many more of your graduates as you possibly can at this time.

Since January 1st, Seven Hundred and Ninety-Seven (797) desirable stenographic and bookkeeping positions have been filled through our Employment Department. The calls received to date are over 50 per cent. greater than they were at this time last month.

We are simply overwhelmed with orders for stenographers and wish all students could be made to fully realize the necessity of attending a good school and remaining until they have completed their course. There is a position for every one who will thoroughly prepare themselves for the stenographic profession. Awaiting your reply we remain, Very respectfully yours,
