A SLEEP FANTASY.

The Confusion and Absurdities That Come to Us In Dreams.

If you would know what stuff dreams are made of, read the following description of a sleep fantasy from F. Marion Crawford's novel, "Cecelia:" given to Mrs. Brooks by a number of, Sometimes in meandering through a maze of absurdities in which we feel as madmen must, believing ourselves to be others than ourselves.

Conceiving the laws of nature to be reversed for our advantage or our ruin. seeing right as wrong and wrong as right in the pathetic innocence of the idiot or the senseless rage of the matily served in the evening and more ninc, convinced beyond all argument than enjoyed by all present. At four that the absolutely impossible is hapo'clock Mrs. Brooks, never having re- pening before our eyes, yet never in the least astonished by any wonders, though subject to terrors we never feel when we are awake. Has no one even understood that confused dreaming must be exactly like the mental state her home. She was the recipient of of the insane? Inanimate things turn many valuable gifts which will always into living creatures, the chair we sit on becomes a horse, the armchair is turned into a wild beast, and we ride a-hunting through endless drawing rooms, which are full of trees and undergrowth, till the trees are suddenly, turned into people, who dance and laugh at us because we have come to the ball in attire so exceedingly scanty wood; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jodan, that we wonder how the servants could

Stow's Celebrated Monkfish.

One of the nightmares of John Ashton's "Curious Creatures of Zoology" is the monkfish, or sea monk, he being indebted to both Aldrovandus and Stow for his account. If the old writers are reliable, these monsters were quite Samuel Gingerich, Henry Potter, Miss common in the North sea, the British her cousio, Miss Mame Gentzell of Mary Potter, Fergus Potter, Miss channel and along the Irish coast up to the year 1414, when they are said to have become extinct through the ravages of a plague similar to that which was affecting men at about the same time. The superstitious of those days believed that they were priests or, den Hall; Richard Brooks and wife, monks who had been cursed for some crime and condemned by God to an endless life beneath the waves.

Stow's account of one caught in 1187 is as follows: "He had the shape of a man in all poynts and was kept in the castle at Oxford by the keeper thereof. All manner of raw meats he did gladly eate, but more greedilie of rawe fishe, ture. Often he was brought to the church, but showed no signs of reverence, and at length, when not well looked to, he stole away to the sea and was never seen again after."

Acrobatic Soldiers.

Clever and skillful is a feat which is frequently performed by Italian sol-Bliss Meyer and sister Blanche, of that it forms part of their drill, as they never perform it except when they are in uniform, but it is really one of a series of gymnastic exercises which Italian soldiers have for many years

THE SPIDER TREE.

A Curlous Product of the Cape Negro Country of Africa.

Travelers who visited or passed the Cape Negro country of Africa often heard from the natives of a plant that was part spider and that, growing, threw its legs about in continual struggles to escape. It was the good fortune of Dr. Welwitsch to discover the origin of the legend. Strolling along through and paid nursing, there is also a loss a wind swept tableland country, he come upon a plant that rested low upon the ground, but had two enormous leaves that blew and twisted about in |y I doubt it. So far, indeed, as the the wind like serpents-in fact, it looked, as the natives had said, like a gi-gantic spider. Its stem was four feet across and but a foot high. It had but two leaves in reality, that were six or eight feet long and split up by the wind, so that they resembled ribbons. This is probably the most extraordinary tree known. It grows for nearly, if not the subject deserves it. The nursing quite, a century, but never upward beyond about a foot, simply expanding looking in its adult state like a singular stool on the plain from ten to eighteen inches in eircumference. When the wind came rushing in from the sea, lifting the curious ribbon-like leaves and tossing them about, it almost seemed to the discoverer that the strange plant had suddenly become imbued with life and was struggling to escape. When a description and pic- in which we happen to be does affect ture of the plant were sent to England the body."

it was, like many other discoveries, discredited, but soon the plant itself was received, and now Welwitschia mirabills is known to botanists.

Rescued the Fing.

At Fredericksburg, on the day when half the brigades of Meagher and Caldwell lay on the bloody slope leading on to the Confederate intrenchments. mong the assaulting regiments was the Fifth New Hampshire, and it lost 186 out of the 300 men who made the charge. The survivors fell behind a fence within reach of the Confederate rifle pits. Just before reaching it the last one of the color guard was shot,

A captain, Perry, instantly ran out to rescue it and as he reached it was shot through the heart. Another captain. Murray, made the same attempt and was also killed, and so was a third, Moore. Several private soldiers met a like fate. They were all killed close to the flag, and their dead bodies fell

Taking advantage of this breastwork, Lieutenant Nettleton crawled from behind the fence to the colors, seized them and bore back the blood won trophy.

There are many eagles in the Tennessee mountains, and consequently there are many mountaineers who are expert catchers of the young eagles.

The Nun's Headdress.

Very few persons, says a French paper, know the origin of the headdress which so many nuns wear and which hides so much of their faces. It was formerly the custom for convents to send nuns to the various cities and towns for the purpose of collecting alms, and, as a rule, two nuns, one old and the other young, went to each place. They wore small caps and were popularly known as "Swallows of

One of the nuns was very pretty, and the young nobles who were feasting cast such bold glances at her that she blushed with shame, whereupon the king rose from the table and, taking his napkin, folded it in two and placed it on her cealed her blushes. Ever since that day, it is said, this kind of headdress has been worn by nuns.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of nomes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take; many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confident-ly to a baby as to an adult. For sale by C. W. Swartz, Tusseyvill^µ; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills.

been accustomed to practice after their regular drill is over. The feat consists in piercing an object with the point of a sword while the swordsman is in a most abnormal position. That it is not easy to do this can readily be imagined. Indeed a soldier must practice steadily for months before he can feel sure of reaching the mark. Whether the skill which he thus acquires will ever be of any practical use to him is doubtful; but, as it is rather a pastime than a military 'exercise, the soldiers' never think of asking themselves this question.

Stone That Bends.

"Firm as a rock," "unbending as flint," are phrases often used; but, as a matter of fact, there is a sort of stone that is as flexible as wooden fiber. It is of course very rare, and the few specimens known are now in museums. One of the finest is in the Hartley institution, in Southampton, England, having been found near Delhi, India. It is lathlike in shape, about an inchthick and two feet long. It is a particularly flexible specimen and can with the hands be curved several inches from the horizontal; otherwise it is hard and mineral-like, having the grain of ordinary gray sandstone.

Powerful Effect of Pure Saccharin. Saccharin should never be taken in a pure state. Some idea of its power, will be conveyed when it is understood that one part of it will give a very, sweet taste to 10,000 parts of water. Tasted in too large a quantity it acts upon the nerves in such a way as to paralyze the sense of taste, just as powerful music stuns or deadens the auditory nerves or a bright light acts upon the optic nerves.

Tennyson's Pipe.

Everybody knows that Tennyson was great smoker. We notice that one of his pipes was presented by the housekeeper at his home at Freshwater to Mr. Kelsey of Yarmouth in 1875. There of is a tradition that when the poet had smoked a clay once he put it on one side and took a new one. This is scarcely borne out by the pipe in question, which from its color must have been smoked not once, but many times. It was bought for a trifle not long since at a sale in the Isle of Wight by Mr. Spencer of New Oxford street. It has suffered in the wars, having been broken across the stem. It is now enshrin-
