Secret of Success.

Inventor Edison, who has himself profited by advertising, is quoted thus: "To let the world know through type who and what you are and what you have that this great world wants is the secret of success, and the printing press is its mightiest machine to that end."

Two Important Operations.

Two important operations noted by the Watchman were performed at the Bellefonte hospital by Dr. Carl Viescher of Philadelphia, assisted by Dr. M. J. Locke, of Bellefonte, and Dr. W. S. Glenn, of State College. The first was for the correction of club-foot on Frederick Hemmis, a little baby that was brought to the institution from Karthaus, Clearfield county. The other was for appendicitis and Miss Eva Davis, of Julian, was the patient. Both operations are reported as having been very successful.

Main's Show.

Saturday, May 21st, promises to be a day of great enjoyment in Bellefonte, for on that date Walter L. Main's world's exposition, three-ring circus, greatest menagerie and racing carnival, combined with the superb military production, "Battle of Paardeburg," will exhibit giving a performance at 2 and 8 p. m. At 10 o'clock on the morning of arrival the most novel, rich and lengthy parade ever passing through Bellefonte's streets occurs. As the Main circus has the confidence and stamp of public approval, universally, it is safe to predict the day will be given over to amusement.

Freshmen Win Fight.

The annual Sophomore-Freshman "flag scrap" came off at Pennsylvania State College Thursday morning, lasting from 3 o'clock until 7, the Freshmen winning out after a bitterly contested battle, in which there were many battered heads.

The 1907 men hoisted their flag pole near Beaver Athletic Field, just before 3 o'clock.

The Freshmen made a wise move in having a seat for Smith, their lightweight wrestler, near the top of their 40-foot pole, and kept a solid mass of nearly 200 men close around the base, so that all the plans of 1906 proved ineffective in tearing down the pennant.

Plague of Caterpillars.

Caterpillars will be numerous during the coming summer. State Economic Zoologist Surface, who has familiarized himself with the conditions, declares that he has discovered nests of little worms concealed in great numbers in the limbs of trees.

In anticipation of the prospective abundance of the loathsome insects, Professor Surface is now sending to all parts of the State a pamphlet containing data concerning the habits of the apple-tree tent caterpillar, or the kind that attacks fruit trees, and the methods, both natural and artificial, of destroying them.

Two years ago the pest was everywhere present, but last season very few were observed. Wild cherry trees furnish a very favorable brooding place.

Main's Show.

Grin and Bear.

While the South Side telephone patrons simply "grin and bear," because their privileges have been curtailed by the United Telephone and Telegraph Company, in other sections—Snyder, Union and Northumberland counties—the patrons are up in arms, and are organizing local rural companies, which will give a first-class service at about the rate of one dollar per month for business places.

There ought to be enough snap and cash on the South Side to either force the U. T. & T. Company to restore the former territory, or organize a local company. The latter would be preferable, because of its cheapness and the complete service it would render.

Owners' Right Defined.

In two decisions by the Superior Court of Pennsylvania it is emphatically laid down that a telephone or telegraph company can have no right whatever on private property except what the owner grants them. They do not possess the right of eminent domain, except on the public highway. In the country, according to these decisions, a wire strung along a highway is an additional servitude on that highway for which the owner of the fee, that is the abutting property owner, is entitled to compensation. In other words, the telephone and telegraph companies must obtain permission of the land owner before occupying private land, and though they may occupy a public highway in the country without permission, they must make a just compensation to the abutting property owner.

The exceptionally poor outlook for a wheat crop, will cause the average farmer to cast about to find some additional source of revenue. The shortage caused by the failure of this crop can not be supplied in a better and surer way than to increase the herd of cows now on the farm, and give them extra attention. The price of butter, during the past year, has been unusually high, and there is no reason to predict a lower price throughout the next twelve months.
