

LOVE AS OTHERS SEE HIM.

[By Peter Bolger—Staff Correspondent of Philad. Record.]

Of the few notoriously partisan Judges in Pennsylvania, John G. Love of the Centre County Common Pleas, is the boldest and most unscrupulous in disregarding the judicial ethics which demand that the dispenser of justice shall not be a demagogue, or practice the ways of either the pot-house politician or the boss of a political machine. He has persistently pursued, through perversion of the power of the Bench, an ethical of his own party, whose leader, the late Daniel H. Hastings, made him Judge ten years ago, and he has heaped insult upon those Republicans to whom he now looks for help in getting another term through the election on November 8.

Viewed in certain other lights than that of a political Judge, Love's professional and judicial reputation is not unimpeachable, but a single chapter can deal with only some of the reasons for the present popular outcry in Centre against a partisan Bench, and for the prospective practical display of the resentment of a large number of Republicans aggrieved by the rancorous exercise of the prejudiced Judge's factional and official power. Speculation upon the outcome from such a political condition, in view of the country's normal place in the Democratic column, generally favors the Democratic nominee for Judge, an eminent lawyer, profound scholar and model gentleman, Ellis L. Orvis, whose own accomplishments need no introductory reminder that he is the son of one of the greatest men whom Centre county has produced, the late John H. Orvis, who was Judge twenty years ago.

Love possesses fair legal attainments, but when his prejudices are involved in Court cases on political matters the people's experience does not warrant expectation or impartiality from him. In neither law nor literature is he a student in the sense of working. Of fair parts mentally, yet he is noted for most violent, deep-seated prejudices and bitter resentments. His vanity and conceit are colossal. Without the power of the Court, which he has used unrelentingly to serve his selfish purposes, he would be a failure as a politician, for he is tactless, vindictive, cold as a lizard and almost completely devoid of delicacy in handling men or matters. He rules with a rod of iron and has very few warm personal friendships among the attorneys or political workers.

The lawyers say that the Judge is "viciously lazy," disinclined to work, either mentally or physically, except in political plotting. As the real leaders, Hastings, Wilbur F. Reeder and others, are dead, Love now commands the machine. He glories in politics, and does not seem ashamed of having had about one-fourth of his appealed decisions reversed by the Supreme or Superior Court. It is a notable fact that in all but one of five recent reversals met by Love the victorious lawyer was Mr. Orvis. These were the Hastings bank case, Conner Railroad case and Lyon vs. Lyon, reversed by the Supreme Court, the Vonada Thompson liquor matter and the Butler-Thompson case, reversed by the Superior Court. In cases against corporations lawyers have had poor luck before Love. Corporate friends of his have at times privately confessed themselves scared by his overzeal for their cause.

His confessions to not the most evasive portion of the liquor saloon people has been somewhat on the order of that which defeated a neighbor and personal friend, who was a judicial bird of the same feather in a near county, last fall. Some Clearfield Republican bosses visited Bellefonte during the DeLoose Court session, in behalf of Harry Washburn, who wanted a license from Love for a Rosh township place, opposite Ocoola. Washburn, under Cyrus Gordon's rule in Clearfield, had a license in Ocoola. It was in Washburn's liquor establishment just across the county line, in Clearfield, that the saloon man's gathering was assessed or Gordon's campaign a year ago. The election of Judge Allison O. Smith was had for Washburn.

Love is said to have been told that Washburn, an experienced political worker, would be of much use to him this fall. The Judge granted the license and Washburn certainly is bustling and putting liquor out for him. The license grant was regarded as reciprocation to Gordon. There had been some similar license trading between the two counties before Judge Smith's election. Good authority says that Love's table has been supplied with choice specimens of motormen game brought down by a liquor dealer's gun.

A few months after he became Judge in 1895, Love began building a political machine. His benefactor, Hastings, was living in Harrisburg as Governor. Naturally Hastings, in his alliance with Martin and Magee to overthrow Quayism, expected his own county to do finely for the State anti-Quay combine. Love, however, secretly did all in his power, but vainly, to defeat the election of Hastings and Bension as delegates to the convention which elected Quay State Chairman.

In the following spring this Judge brought to bear all possible pressure to defeat Hastings' friend, the late Wilbur F. Reeder's efforts to get Centre county's in torsement of his candidacy for Congressman. Love favored Congressman Arnold, of Clearfield. The Judge sought in June of that year to prevent the county convention from endorsing the State administration of Hastings. He succeeded in at least making the praise rather faint. Further advantage of the fact that the Republican leadership brains of Centre were then busy in Harrisburg and unable to devote their usual attention to home details, had been taken by Love's faction in defeating the Hastings delegates in the North ward, the Governor's home.

The explanation of this ingratitude and viciousness was in Love's imagining that he would make a favorable impression for himself upon Quay, who, however, despised such politics because it never paid in the long run. In the expensive contest which A. V. Miller instituted early in 1897, to oust W. M. Crisler from the Shrively, to which he had been elected, the party rating of the political Judge endangered Miller, and he finally secured a great bill of costs on the county. This action was rebuked in the following February election, when Love's "subway" lawyer Edward R. Chambers, was defeated for Burgess of Bellefonte. "Subway" Chambers, who is on Governor Pennypacker's staff, is so called from his mediation between the Court and the liquor people.

Love got out of his gum shoes early in 1898 and openly fought Hastings for the delegates to the State Convention which nominated William A. Stone for Governor. Love's candidates were the late John M. Dale and George Chandler; but they were defeated by Hastings' men, John G. Platt and S. H. Williams. Love carried the fight to the floor of the convention, and had Platt thrown out and Dale seated. Later in the same year the Judge aided the successful move of Congressman Arnold, of Clearfield, to snatch the Centre County Congressional endorsement from Clement Dale, who was entitled to it under party precedents. The omission from the County Convention platform in that year of a word of commendation for Hastings' administration was due to the vindictiveness of Love.

The Centre ermine was again dragged in the gutter in 1899, when Love openly strove to defeat the Hastings delegates, S. H. Williams and John Gowland to the State Convention. In consequence of the prevalent charges of money bribery and manipulation of the liquor influence in that fight it was understood that Hastings, after electing his men, proposed to institute impeachment proceedings against Love for having done things in violation of his oath of office. Public indignation was such that Love a year later tried to be somewhat diplomatic, foreseeing direful possibilities for himself if he could not placate Hastings' friends. He apparently concluded that he could not be dictator while Hastings lived.

In the selection of William Allison and John K. Thompson for nomination for the House of 1901 at Harrisburg the factional hatchet seemed to be buried. But a treacherous scheme was soon unfolded which resulted in the disgrace of Thompson, a victim of Love's inability to play politics straight. The Judge was blamed for having instigated the Thompson anti-election pledge to vote for Quay for United States Senator, and engineered the plot which caused Thompson, upon whom the insurgents had counted, to absent himself from the organizing of the House, at which Marshall was elected Speaker, and stay away until the time to vote for Quay.

Thus, while all but a few of the other Judges of the State were observing the judicial proprieties by avoiding open activity in politics, and most of them were free from the suspicion of even privately influencing political machinery, Judge Love, for years, has brazenly defied precedent and public sentiment upon this matter.

But Judge Love exhibits fatuous disregard for those explanations and for public opinion by his open electioneering for himself, through his speaking and otherwise, under circumstances that are a subject for another narrative.

That Potters Mills Postoffice.

The Reporter regrets to state that in this issue it is unable to announce that the Potters Mills postoffice has been re-established. This regret is occasioned because of the fact that there remain only a few days in which the promise made (for political advantage only) has the least possible chance of being fulfilled.

There is a chapter in the Potters Mills postoffice affair that has not been given to the public, either through the columns of the Reporter or otherwise. It is the desire, on the part of Judge Love and his adherents, to obtain the support of a particular element that is causing the trouble in restoring the postoffice. If Love is re-elected, the closed doors of the Potters Mills postoffice will be continued as a reward for votes received elsewhere; if defeated, the Potters Mills postoffice will never be a subject discussed in the higher Republican political circles.

Let this one thing be impressed upon the good people of Potters Mills and vicinity: If you ever again will have a postoffice at Potters Mills, (under a Republican national administration) it will be established before the election on next Tuesday, otherwise the Potters Mills postoffice will remain, as at present, a thing of the past.

And this postoffice was closed solely because it was thought that action would gain votes for Judge Love. The Republican Managers were mistaken, however, but they have gone too far and cannot retrace their steps.

What will the voters do about it? Will they permit such conniving without resentment? Hardly.

Wedding at Altoona.

Royce Hoover and Mrs. Minnie Trout were married on Tuesday evening, October 11th, at 217, 6th Avenue, Altoona, by Rev. Hugh, pastor of the 2nd U. B. church. The following morning they left for the home of Mr. Hoover's parents, in Balsburg, where they visited for a few days, after which they returned to Altoona, where they have gone to housekeeping at No. 318, 5th Avenue. The groom is a workman in the P. R. R. freight shop, and the bride made her home with her mother and was engaged at dressmaking.

Died at Anvil.

Albert Bear, forty-two years old, of Yeagertown, employed as a blacksmith at the Standard Steel Works, dropped dead of heart failure while at his anvil.

The New Ballot.

In this issue will be found a reprint of the official ballot as it will be given the voter when he enters the election booth. The ballot should be carefully studied. It will be noticed that there is quite a change in the formation of the column, if an X is marked in it, will only be equal to voting for the electoral ticket. If a straight ticket is not desired to be voted, it will be necessary to mark in the top of the column, which will count for the electors, and opposite each candidate, in the various groups, you may select to vote for. For a straight party vote mark opposite the word Republican, Democrat, Prohibition, Socialist, Socialist Labor, or Independence, in the column on the left hand side of the ticket.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. size.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.
