12 LOST IN TENEMENT FIRE

Tragedy in the Williamsburg District, Brooklyn.

TWO WHOLE FAMILIES WIPED OUT.

Smothered Before They Could Reach the Fire Escape in the Rear of the Building-The Blaze Started in the Cellar of a Grocery guard Store at an Early Hour of the Morning-Firemen's Work Hampered.

New York (Special). - Smothered before they could could reach the rear fireescape in a burning tenement building at 186 Troutman street, in the Wil- to Philadelphia from St. Louis and esliamsburg district of Brooklyn, 12 persons met death shortly before 2 o'clock A. M.

Two entire families, those of Maranio Triolo and Charles Polognio, are wiped out, the last living member of Fred Loree, aged 30 years, were suffoeach being now in a hospital, with nc cated to death in the village lockup in hope of their recovery. They are Columbiaville, Mich. whom are terribly burned. Although | cob Clemons. in the opinion of the coroner, all the dead were sufficcated, the bodies were badly burned before they could be taken from the ruins by the firemen

The burned tenement-house is in the center of a row of three-story tenements extending the length of the block, and was occupied by Italians.

The fire is supposed to have started in the cellar of the grovery store of Antonio Giambalvos, on the ground The cellar was stored with in floor. flamable material, and the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity. All the occupants were asleep at the time and there was considerable delay in sending in the first alarm. The Giambalvos family lived in the rear of the store, and succeeded in getting out of the building, but before the occupants on the two other floors were roused their escape had been cut off.

Before the firemen arrived the fire had communicated to the adjoining tenement, but here the occupants had sufficient warning, and all escaped The work of the firemen was greatly hampered for a time by the crowd of frightened Italians who filled the streets. The tenants in nearly all the neighboring buildings dragged their household goods out of the buildings. and with them blocked the way of the fire apparatus.

All the bodies were found in the rear room of the third floor, and it was evident that all had been suffocated in their effort to reach the fire-escape at the back of the building. The two who were rescued were found in the lower hallway soon after the firemen reached the scene. Working their way through the building the rescuers dis covered the heap of dead on the third floor, and within a short time succeeded in taking out nine bodies, but the last was not found until after 8 o'clock.

ADMIT FIRING ON THEIR CRUISER.

Russian Officers Did Not Even See the Vessels of Their Cruiser Division.

St. Petersburg (Special) .-- A difference has developed between Great Britain and Russia over the language of the article in the North Sea convention relative to the question of responsibility. At the Foreign Office Government Buildings-Bucket Brigades it is said that Russia does not desire to in any way recede from the basis of the agreement, but she proposes a modification of the language submitted in the English text. The admiralty, it is understood, contended all along that the international commission should confine its inquiry to the question whether torpedo boats were off the Dogger Bank and whether, in any event, the Russian ships were justified in firing.

Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's defrom the battleships hit the Russian protected cruiser Aurora, one of the shells entering the wardroom and wounding a priest, who afterwards

The Russian admiralty contends that this is additional proof of the good faith of the vessels which fired on what they believed to be torpedo boats, not having seen either the fishing vessels or their own ships of the cruiser division. Lieutenant Ott, one of the Russian witnesses, will swear positively that he saw flames rising out of four funnels of a low-lying ship

Lieutenant Ellis, another Russian witness, who was in a turret of the battleship Alexander III., sighted a gun, but did not fire. He declares he is positive he saw a torpedo-boat de-stroyer. Captain Clado, also one of the witnesses, insists that he saw two torpedo boats, and three depositions of the officers of the Russian transport Kamtchatka say they saw four beats resembling torpedo boats.

A private letter from an officer of the Aurora expresses the opinion that the whole mistake was due to the rockets fired by the fishing fleet.

The railroad people had sought to throw a foot brighe across the Allegheny River at this point, and Mrs. Ferris, who is 65 years old, found they were encroaching about five feet on her ground. She gathered the dog, the revolver, the club and a chair and went to the river bank, threatening to shoot anyone who trespassed.

The family attorney sent her word to hold fast, that she had the right end of it. The Pennsylvania Railroad people soon abandoned the project. She remained on guard for 36 hours and then retired.
