To Begin Work on Curtin Monument.

Joseph M. Huston, of Philadelphia, architect of the Andrew G. Curtin monument, visited Bellefonte Thursday of last week to start work for the foundations of the monument. He met General Beaver, the committee, the contractor, and the city surveyor. The work began at once. The monument will stand in front of the court house.

Keith's This Week.

At Keith's Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, this week: The season's musical novelty, Ye Colonial Septette; special attraction, the eminent legitimate actor, Frank Kennan & Co.; for the children: Belle Hathaway's baboons and monkeys; Louis Wesley, the famous eccentric comedian; Blockson & Burns, the funny eccentrics; Searl and Violet Allen in a comedy skit, "The Sign Painter."

New $20 Gold Note.

The Treasury Department began the issue of a new $20 gold certificate of an entirely original design, to take the place of the old certificates.

The action of the department is entirely commendable, everybody, especially newspaper men, were sick and tired of having that old twenty-dollar gold certificate poked at them a few times every day in the week. Indeed, the editor of the Reporter has not accepted one of the old style $20 gold certificates for some time. The new, original, modern design of that denomination will, however, be accepted at this office as part payment on all bills now due.

Frank Stoughton Killed.

Frank Stoughton, a civil engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad with headquarters at the Union Station, Harrisburg, was instantly killed Wednesday afternoon, of last week, a short distance west of Steelton, by the first section of Fast line.

Frank was twenty-three years of age and is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Stoughton, his father being supervisor of the Lewisburg and Tyrone Railroad, and the following brothers and sisters: Annie, Mrs. P. Creigher, Plainfield, N. J.; Thomas Stoughton, Pittsburg; Mrs. Walter Hill, Scranton; Mrs. Christian Mathewson, New York; Margaret and Augustus, at home.

H. E. Duck is attending as a delegate the biennial meeting of the general synod of the Lutheran church in session at Pittsburg this week.

ALPINE GUIDES.

The Trouble They Sometimes Have With Reckless Climbers.

The Alpine guide frequently risks his health, strength, even his life, for persons who may have been themselves the cause of the peril encountered. The qualities of a first class guide, says the author of "Adventures on the Roof of the World," include not only skill in climbing, but the ability to form sound conclusions in moments of danger. A certain climber tells an anecdote which bears on the importance of the guide's powers of judgment.

A member of the Alpine club was ascending a peak in company with an Oberland guide. Part of their course lay over a snow field which sank gradually on one side, sharply ended by a precipice on the other. The two were walking along not far from the edge of this precipice when the Englishman, thinking that an easier path might be made by going still nearer the edge, diverged a little from his companion's track. To his surprise, the guide immediately caught hold of him and pulled him back with more vigor than ceremony, well nigh throwing him down in the operation. Wrathful and not disinclined to return the compliment, the Englishman remonstrated. The guide's only answer was to point to a small crack, apparently like scores of other cracks in the snow, which ran for some distance parallel to the edge of the precipice.

The traveler was not satisfied, but he was too wise a man to argue while a desired summit was still some distance above him. On the descent when the scene of the morning's incident was reached the guide pointed to the crack, which had grown perceptibly wider.

"This marks," he said, "the place where the true snow field ends. I feel certain that the ice from here to the edge is nothing but an unsupported cornice hanging over the tremendous precipice below. It might possibly have borne your weight, though I don't think it would." Thereupon he struck the neve on the further side of the ice sharply with his ax. A huge mass immediately broke away and went roaring down the cliff.

The traveler was full of amazement and admiration and thought, how there, on an easy mountain and in smiling weather, he had been very near to making himself into an avalanche.

SYMPATHY.

Sympathy is food to a starving heart. Sympathy is two hearts pulling at one load.

Sympathy is the staff on which trouble leans.

Sympathy is the cream that rises on the milk of human kindness.

Sympathy in sorrow's hour is like the gentle rain to drooping flowers.

Sympathy is the least the rich may give, the most the poor can offer.

Sympathy is the blossom grown from the costly bulb called personal suffering.

Sympathy is a well-toned instrument that readily responds to notes of weal or woe.

Sympathy is the most powerful human magnet for attracting and holding friendship.

Sympathy is perfect forgetfulness of oneself in true feeling for the unhappiness of others.

Sympathy is love's healing balm spread by pity's tender hand on sorrow's heart wound.

Artificial Beauty In Home.

Personal artifice is at least as old as the Roman empire, for, speaking of the artificial beauty of a coquette, Martial says: "Golly, you are but a composition of falsehood. While you were living at Rome your hair was growing on the banks of the Rhine. At night when you lay aside your silken robes you lay aside your teeth also. Two-thirds of your person are locked up in boxes for the night. The eyebrows with which you make such insinuating motions are the work of your slaves. Thus no man can say, 'I love you' for you are not what he loves, and no one loves what you are."

A Lord Sold Into Slavery.

Charles Reade found the hero of his novel, "The Wandering Heir," in the person of Lord Altham of Ireland, who was sold as a "redemption" at Philadelphia in 1728 and who served for twelve years in effect as a slave to one or more masters in Lancaster county, Pa. The young nobleman was recognized by two Irishmen who came by accident to the house where he lived, and Admiral Vernon afterward took him back to Ireland. Reade laid the scene of Lord Altham's servitude in northern Delaware, but it is pretty well established that this was an error.

The Saving Light.

We boast our light; but, if we look not wisely on the sun itself, it snatches us into darkness. The light which we have gained was given us not to be ever staring on, but by it to discover onward things now remote from all knowledge.—Milton.

When a Kick Helps.

When one lacks the courage boldly to advance along the perilous course, his intelligence counsels, he is lucky, if he can and will goad some one into kicking him along it past the point where retreat is impossible.—Success.

Love.

George—Are you quite sure that you really love me? Bessie—Oh, yes; certain of it. I never knew any one that could make me so furiously angry at times!—Exchange.

Even Then.

Think twice before you speak, and even then nine times out of ten the world won't lose anything if you keep still.—Somerville Journal.

Buggy flynets, $1.35, $1.75, $2.00, $2.75.—C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville.

James Reed is having the finishing touch put on his new cottage with a coat of paint. J. P. Weber and son and Frank Young are doing the work. They are also engaged at painting the home of A. H. Hosterman who recently built an addition to his house.

Mrs. E. E. Brown departed on Monday for a few weeks' visit to her only sister, Mrs. Jones, at Kyertown. She expects to be present at the marriage, and also the reception, of her nephew, Harvey Jones, and Miss Mary Beams. Before returning home she will also spend some time with friends in Altoona.

The June picnic Saturday was one of the most enjoyable events of the season. The weather was all that could be desired; the place one of the most picturesque in the country, and the refreshments of the first quality. Young people from Baileyville, Pine Grove Mills, Boalsburg, State College, Oak Hill, Linden Hall, Lemont and Pleasant Gap were present. 68 names were registered. The party had their picture taken, and explored the "coal mine," near Reitz's Gap.

LOCALS.

A new walk was built from the United Evangelical church door to the main walk.

General Linevitch is in favor of continuing the war to the bitter end and declares he can drive Oyama out of Manchuria. The old man babbles.

Mrs. Mary Odenkirk and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Alexander, last week, went to Millinburg to visit friends. The Alexanders returned this week, but the former is prolonging her visit.

Rev. John H. Keller, of Mt. Pleasant, North Carolina, is home for a short vacation. The south seems to agree with the young minister, who not only preaches but teaches as well.

Lincoln Steffens has found good government in Ohio. Not in the state administration and not throughout the cities but in Cleveland. "Ohio: A Tale of Two Cities," in the July McClure's, is the story of Cleveland and of Cincinnati, the best and the worst governed cities in the United States.

The services in the Reformed church Sunday evening were reported by those present to have been highly interesting and creditable to the children who participated. As was mentioned in a recent issue of the Reporter, too much importance can not be attached to services devoted to the children of the church.

The Orangeville (Illinois) Courier says: Mrs. J. M. Swartz, a resident of Dakota village for many years, passed away Friday. Her demise was due to old age. Mrs. Swartz was a cousin of Geo. F. Swartz, the Freeport druggist, and was eighty years old. Her husband died several years ago. They were the parents of eleven children.
