LOCALS.

Wednesday morning it was no trouble to slide to first.

Miss Margaret Jacobs spent her Xmas vacation in Boalsburg.

While skating on Long's dam, at Howard, Christie Schenck fell and broke his left arm below the elbow.

Misses Eleanor and Mabel Long, daughters of Merchant C. P. Long, Spring Mills, were entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. G. Allison, last week.

A very interesting paper on the early history of the Reformed church in Centre county and Central Pennsylvania was read by Dr. D. M. Wolf, before the Linn Historical Society.

The distinctive quality of the Review of Reviews as a "news magazine" is well illustrated in the opening number of the new year. In this January issue appears a well considered article by W. T. Stead, describing the political conditions and problems that confront the Liberal party on its return to power in Great Britain.

A most remarkable accident happened David Faust, of Limestone township, Northumberland county. While engaged in shelling corn one of his fingers caught in a cog wheel, a part of it was severed from the hand and along with it a tendon nearly eighteen inches in length was pulled out of his arm.

A number of people from Centre Hall enjoyed Christmas day in other localities, among whom the following are included: Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Geary in Millheim; Mrs. Flora O. Bairfoot, W. J. Smith, Miss Nellie Smith in Bellefonte; Mrs. J. R. Sechrist and daughter Ethel in Howard; Mr. and Mrs. John Conley in Bellefonte.

A farmer has discovered that he can obtain soft water from hard water by the use of his cream separator. He pours water into the machine just as he would milk, first running at a high rate of speed. Soft water come out of the milk spout while the rest comes out of the cream spout. It seems almost incredulous that this should be so. Maybe it isn't; try it.

The raising of flax, which has been abandoned in most of the fertile agricultural sections of the state, is still carried on by a few farmers in Lower Schuylkill. In Washington and Wayne townships, Schuylkill county, says the Reading Eagle, there are quite a number of persons who are able to spin the old-time products of flax. In fact, homespun articles are made there nearly every winter. While growing of flax to spin at home is out of date, the seed could be used to a great advantage by all farmers who grow stock.

Rebersburg.

Curtis Weaver, who is employed in Philadelphia, is at present visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Weaver.

James Frank, of this place, spent the holidays with his sons, at Bloomsburg and Harrisburg.

Amnon Walker, who several weeks ago had his hand cut off in the corn shredder, has returned from the Lock Haven hospital and is able to be about.

Miss Minnie Lee, of Hubersburg, spent Christmas at the home of Rev. Wetzel.

Charles Weaver, of Philadelphia, who was at home to attend the funeral of his nephew, Asher Weber, returned last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Corman are paying a short visit to their daughter, Mrs. Harry Musser, in Williamsport.

Miss Alma Vonada, of Millinburg, spent Christmas at the home of her uncle, Peter Hessler.

Mrs. Amanda Evans, who had been ill last week, is somewhat better.

MARRIED 50 YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dale, a Bride and Groom of Fifty Years, Celebrate Event.

Wednesday, the 27th of December, 1905, the friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. George Dale, of Dale Summit, assembled at their home to express their pleasure at being able to be present at the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. Rev. Wm. M. Rearick, of Bellefonte, presented the bride of the day with a solid gold thimble and the groom with a solid gold watch and chain, in behalf of the children. Clement Dale, Esq., of Bellefonte, read a short history of the Dale family.

A short history of the Dale and Musser families may not be amiss at this time. Christian Dale, the founder of this branch of the Dale family, came from Germany, and his descendants settled near Lemont.

George Dale was born August 1, 1831, at the old homestead at Oak Hall, now occupied by A. W. Dale. He received his entire education in the old school house which was located on the site now occupied by Victor Grange Hall. The first day of school taught in that building all the scholars were Dales, representing four families, except one boy, Green Irvin. One of the teachers was William Griffith Waring, afterward principal of the Farmers' High School and now living in Tyrone, having passed some ninety years of life. Another teacher was Thomas Hollahan, who afterward became superintendent of Centre county public schools.

When Henry Dale, grandfather of George Dale, went to the spring at the Cove, below P. S. Dale's house, for water, he always carried a flint lock on account of the Indians. This old musket is still in possession of the Dale family. This Henry Dale enlisted in the Revolutionary Army, under General Washington, at the age of seventeen years, and spent the winter of 1777 at Valley Forge. His son, Christian Dale, married Hannah Sheneberger. Her sister, the widow of David Keller, is still living at Boalsburg. Christian Dale had eleven children, George being the fourth. Three died in infancy, and five are still living. Solomon, one of the sons, enlisted in the Union Army and was lost at the battle of Spottsylvania. The first wife died young and he afterward married Eliza Neff, to whom he had four children, three of whom are still living, one having died in infancy.

George Dale began farming at the place where he now lives the year following his marriage to Helena Musser, of Penn Hall, at Lewistown, by Rev. C. M. Klink, Lutheran minister at that place.

Helena Musser's grandfather came from Schuylkill county to the present site of Penn Hall, at the time when they were called Moser. Her father's name was Jonas, and he was married to Maria Durst. They had nine sons and two daughters. One son and one daughter died when quite small. Jonas died in May, 1853, at the age of fifty-one years. During his lifetime he was engaged in farming and keeping the tavern at Penn Hall. This tavern was a common stopping place for the stages that drove between Water Street and Northumberland, carrying mail and passengers. The tavern and farm passed into the hands of George Musser, one of the sons, who sold it to Major Fisher, and then he went west. This is now known as the Fisher property.

In 1856 the mother and some of the sons moved to Illinois and finally all went except Helena, who was already married to George Dale. Four of the sons enlisted in the Union Army. John became captain of a company in the 48th Regiment, Illinois Volunteers. He was wounded at the battle of Shiloh, April 6, 1862, and died April 24, at Quincy, Ill., as he was being brought home to Orangeville. At the close of the war the others engaged in the mercantile life in Orangeville.

Eight children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. George Dale—Edwin, Horace Christian, Blanche Emma, Charles Clement, Clara Mary, John Solomon, Lillie and Willard. Edwin died at the age of twenty-five years; Charles Clement at the age of one year, and Clara Mary at the age of thirty-two. Horace Christian is married, a banker, living in Ashville, Neb. Blanche Emma, wife of F. W. Musser, is living on a farm near Bellefonte. John Solomon and Willard are both married and live on farms adjoining the old homestead. Lillie is still at home.

An organization was affected during the day to be known as the Dale Association, for the purpose of holding annual reunions.

Mrs. Chadwick is realizing just now in her personal experience the truth of the declaration that "the way of the transgressor is hard." She seems to have exhausted every expedient known to fertile-brained lawyers in the effort to delay the beginning of her sentence, and now it is said she is seriously ill, so ill that she may not live to enter the penitentiary. It is possible these statements are true. Her experiences have certainly been enough to shatter completely an ordinary set of nerves.

WEDDINGS.

Thursday, December 21st, at high noon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Corl, at Struble's Station, their daughter Emma and Allison Houseman, of Altoona, were married by Rev. C. T. Aikens, President of Susquehanna University. The attendants were John Lytle, uncle of the bride, and Miss Ruth Lytle, cousin of the bride. After partaking of a sumptuous wedding dinner, the happy couple took a hasty leave for the Bellefonte Central, amid a shower of rice, old shoes and everything else that pertains to good luck, for the groom's home at Altoona, thence to Philadelphia, where the honeymoon will be spent. The groom is employed in the Altoona Times office.

Thursday, December 28th, at high noon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Hoy, at Pine Hall, was the scene of a very pretty wedding. The contracting parties were Miss Florence Hoy, and Luther Fye. The bride is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoy while the groom is in the mercantile business at State College having bought out Holmes & Company last fall.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. T. Aikens, in the presence of about fifty invited guests. Miss Alice Hoy, the twin sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, Madison Corl was the best man.

Tuesday, December 26th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Albert Dale, in Hartleton, Robert J. Smith and Miss Katharine L. Dale, John F. Dale and Miss Laura F. Lepley were united in the bonds of holy matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. I. Stonecypher, of Boalsburg. The young people are all highly respected and possess the qualities that make for success. They left for a wedding trip on the east bound train.

At the Baptist parsonage, Milesburg, on December 24th, 1905, at half past five o'clock, Worten Husband, of Fleming, and Miss Mary Haines, of Wingate, were quietly married by Pastor A. C. Lathrop. The bride and groom are both well known and esteemed young people, and their many friends gladly congratulate them and wish them long and happy lives.

The marriage of Herbert C. Hettinger, of near Spring Mills, and Miss Erma M. Smith, took place at the Reformed parsonage, Centre Hall, Sunday evening, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Daniel Gress. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Smith, east of Centre Hall.

Harry Ream and Miss Gertrude Hagen, of Spring Mills, were married at the Lutheran parsonage, Centre Hall, Sunday, December 17, by Rev. J. M. Rearick. The groom is a son of George W. Ream, and the bride is, the daughter of the well-known builder, John F. Hagen.

Harry E. Weaver, of Centre Hall, and Miss Gertrude E. Homan, of Aaronsburg, were married at the Lutheran parsonage, Centre Hall, by Rev. J. M. Rearick, December 21st.

DEATHS.

MRS. CATHARINE F. SPROW.

The wife of Jacob Sprow, west of Centre Hall, died suddenly at the home of her sister, Mrs. Todd Ryan, in Bellefonte, Saturday evening of last week. The day previous she went to Bellefonte to visit her sisters, stopping the first day with Mrs. Stover. Later she went to the home of Mrs. Ryan, and about five o'clock Saturday evening had a severe hemorrhage, and died within two hours. Interment took place at Centre Hall, Tuesday morning, services being conducted by Rev. J. M. Rearick.

Mrs. Sprow was born August 24, 1861, and in 1881 was married to Jacob Sprow, who survives her. She was the daughter of Daniel and Catharine Horner, and is survived by the following brothers and sisters: James, Centre Hill; Henry, Coburn; John, Colyer; George, Linden Hall; Rev. Andrew, Nickleville; Mrs. Sarah From, in the west; Annie, wife of James Stover, Bellefonte; Lucy, wife of Todd Ryan, Bellefonte.

Mrs. Sprow was a consistent member of the Evangelical church, having joined that denomination early in life, and while not an active worker in the church, she chose rather to show her works at home. She was a kind and true Christian woman.

Good bye, Kate; farewell forever; We shall see thy face no more, But among the best of heaven.

THOU SHALT DWELL FOREVER MORE.
