Aged Millionaire Keeps to the Custom of His Poverty Days. In Brooklyn there lives a millionaire well along in years, with a wife from whom also youth has long since fied. From the old days before wealth came to them the couple retain one custom which has passed, as the years have flown, into a sort of sacred rite. The old lady cuts the old gentleman's hair. Once a year the millionaire goes to a barber shop and has his scanty locks trimmed. That sets the style for the ensuing year. When he comes home the wife carefully studies the cut, and after that it is her work of love to reproduce it until another year rolls around and the annual visit to the barber takes place. The old gentleman also shaves him-

Economy in the matter of barbering which was first a matter of stern necessity, is now the one little thing that the couple refuse to give up out of the days of poverty. As they are a childless couple, there is nobody to hector the old man into engaging a valet. Really the old man has his hair cut more often than is necessary, for sometimes when the worries of wealth and social duties are more than ordinarily oppressive the good wife will "Come dear-come up to my room. I want to cut your hair." And while the scissors snip the old couple laughingly go back to the old happy days of youth and struggle once more.

No Chloride of Lime for Him.

Pat Egan, a plasterer, and a well known character of Cambridge, Mass., walked into a shoe store on Massachusetts avenue on Saturday evening recently to purchase a pair of shoes, says a writer in the Boston Herald. After looking over three or four pairs of shoes he hit upon one pair that took his fancy. He tried them on, and found that they did not pinch or chafe, but complained that they went on too hard.

"Oh, that'll be all right, Mr. Egan; I'll easily fix that," remarked the clerk, who immediately took the shoes off and proceeded to sprinkle powder into them.

He was about to try them on Pat again, when the latter stood wrathfully up in his stocking feet and shouted out:

"Oh, no, you don't! No, you don't! Mr. Bell! Mr. Bell! Come here! Come here! I've bought shoes of you for the lost foive years, but the divil a shoe will I buy of you again. This brazen-faced clerk of yours tried to put chloride of lime in my shoes, but I was too smart for him."

Bird Was Removed.

A woman rushed into a fashionable millinery establishment which she had left only an hour before with a new hat that cost her $75. She had returned to discard the elaborate head-'Why, madam, what is the trouble with this hat?" the milliner asked. "What is the matter?" gasped the purchaser. "There is much the matter. Why, I would not wear that again until that bird with the big wing is removed or set in a different posi-

THE KEYSTONE STATE

The Latest Pennsylvania News Told in Short Order.

In a widely dramatic exchange of buland an alleged desperado in a lonely hut at Tobyhanna, a man giving the name of John A. Brown, of the latter place, a Yale graduate, and supposed to be the leader of a band of thieves, received bullet wounds which caused his death in the State Hospital in Scranton. The hospital authorities do not know what the dead man's real name was. He was shot by all three of the detectives. Two of the bullets entered his head and his skull was fractured. Both of his lungs were also punctured by bullets and either of the wounds might have caused death. The only other injured participant in the shooting is Charles Beggs, a detective, who was shot through the left arm. He was removed to Scranton and taken to the State Hospital. Besides Beggs, the other detectives were Charles L. Whipple and Mason Gillen, all being connected with a detective agency o Scranton. Lying on the floor of the rough cabin where he received his death wound, and doubtless feeling that he had only a few hours to live, Brown told Detective Whipple something of his early life. He said that he came of a good family in New York city, and was graduated from Yale a few years ago. Among other things, the detective says he told him that he had committed a serious crime in New Jersey some time ago, but was at first slow to mention it, for fear that if he recovered from the wound he would be held for it. He admitted having committed several robberies. Brown's age was about 30 years, his appearance good and he gave the impression of one who had had excellent training in a good family and a good education.

"We are going to enforce the law against the school directors of Waynesoro, proceeding first by mandamus to compel them to keep children from school who do not hold vaccination cerificates, and if they insist in their definance we will proceed under the penal statutes," said Attorney General Carson, speaking of the action of the Waynesboro school directors and teachers in allowing several unvaccinated children to attend school when warned not to do so. A conference was held between Attorney General Carson, State Health Commissioner Dixon and Supenintendent of Public Instruction Schaeffer, over the defiance of the Waynesboro school authorities in flying in the face of the law and the State authorities, the object being to decide on what should be the method of procedure. It was decided that the way to reach them is to begin mandamus proceedings to compel the school directors to obey the law and keep out all children who do not hold certificate of vaccination. If they do not heed the mandamuses and persist in their defiance, then the penal clause of the law will be invoked and somebody is going to be heavily fined. Dr. Dixon is determined that this open defiance of the law shall cease. The conduct of the Waynesboro school directors is all the more flagrant because it was only a few months ago that the court of Franklin County decided the law to be constitu-

A rear-end collision between two freight trains on the Baltimore Ohio Railroad, just west of the Baltimore & Ohio station in Chester, shortly after 4 o'clock, resulted in a conductor, Henry A. Mulford, of Baltimore, being killed, a locomotive being demolished and a caboose and three freight cars being destroyed by fire. The accident is attributed by Engineer William Clishan o be due to his failure to see the Hall block signal lights on account of the fog.

Eenjamin Walker, aged 65 years, was killed by a fall from the stone steps of his home in York. When a member of the family found Mr. Walker, he was unconscious. A physician could render no aid to the dying man, a fracture of the skull resulting in cerebral hemorrhage. He was a member of the Lafayette Club, affiliated with the State Underwriters and prominent in insur-ance circles. Mr. Walker was a cousin Governor Pennypacker.

Mouth and Eyes Covered With Crusts-Hands Pinned Down-Miraculous Cure by Cuticura.

"When my little boy was siz months old he had eczema. The sores extended so quickly over the whole body that we at once called in the doctor. We then went to another doctor, but he could not help him, and in our despair we went to a third one. Matters became so bad that he had regular holes in his cheeks, large enough to put a finger into. The food had to be given with a spoon, for his mouth was covered with crusts as thick as a finger, and whenever he opened the mouth they began to bleed and suppurate, as did also his eyes. Hands, arms, chest and back, in short, the whole body, was covered over and over. We had no rest by day or night. Whenever he was laid in his bed we had to pin his hands down, otherwise he would scratch his face, and make an open sore. I think his face must have itched most fearfully.

'We finally thought nothing could help, and I had made up my mind to send my wife with the child to Europe, hoping that the sea air might cure him, otherwise he was to be put under good medical care there. But, Lord be blessed, matters came differently, and we soon saw a miracle. A friend of ours spoke about Cuticura. We made a trial with Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent, and within ten days or two weeks we noticed a decided improvement. Just as quickly as the sickness had appeared it also began to disappear, and within ten weeks the child was absolutely well, and his skin was smooth and white as never before. F.
