James Searson, of near Linden Hall, is said to have one of the best wheat crops in that digging. He lives on the Potter farm, and it is vouched for by his neighbor George Swabb that the old saying about backing into the field for the first load of grain came as near the truth in this case as he ever HAW.

Grasshoppers are doing considerable damage to oats by cutting the grains from the main stem. In some fields the loss will be considerable on account of this pest, which are not more than half-grown. It is feared the orthopterous insect will also cut the bands after the oats is cut, making the handling of the crop more tedious.

Generally speaking the corn crop in Penus Valley is in fine condition. The early corn is already well eared, and it ham, Pittsburg, Pa. would require the most unusual conditions to hinder its development The fields that were replanted on account of cut worms or timothy worms will require more favorable weather conditions throughout this month.

Tired of seeing his tenant farmer, Cloyd Brooks, pumping water for all purposes, Dr. H. F. Bitner set to work to dig a well on an elevation sufficiently high to permit water to be carried to the buildings by gravity. He is not over sanguine that he will be successful in securing water at the point of operation, but there are many farm buildings that might as well be supplied in the wry contemplated by Dr. Bitner as to be constantly working the pump lever.

Symptoms A physician was talking about his patient's symptoms. "Young, strong people don't give me enough symptoms when they are ill," he said, "but the middle aged and the aged give me too many. Thinking about their health all the time, studying their condition all the time, the aged and the middle aged discover a symptom in every muscle, in every organ, in every limb. Thus they confuse

"The average sufferer of fifty or so symptoms like this:

"Well, doctor, I'm miserable all over, feverish one minute, freezing the next. I've a gnawing pain in my hip and side and back and an all gone sensation in the stomach, with a shooting, neuralgic headache over the left eye. I have a queer taste in my mouth, a dizziness when I stoop over and a dull ache up and down the right side, along with a kind of numbness. I cough a lot, my throat's sore, and I've the earache. Appetite's fair, but not what it should be. I have a feeling of lassitude, and I'm very weak. These are only a few of my main symptoms. To proceed, etc.' "-Exchange.

An Unruffled Spirit.

A contented spirit was Mrs. Snow's, so contended that at times her neighbors found it trying and took an unrighteous satisfaction in presenting any small thorns which might prick through her comfort.

"No, my Angle hasn't the measles." said Mrs. Snow one day. "Well, perhaps it seems strange she should escape the epidemic, but my children are unusually fortunate always in those respects. Of course I take the best of care of them, and, then, they inherit a tendency to throw off any germs. I anticipate no illness with Angie."

In spite of this the redoubtable Angle came down with measles a week later, and the inquiring friend again approached Mrs. Snow. "Yes, dear Angle has the measles at last," said the contented mother. "Now, most of the other children are well, and as the doctor has pleaty of time to attend to her it really seemed an opportunity for Angle. I don't suppose there ever was a child on whom they came out more beautifully than on Angle. I tell the doctor I think he may well be proud of his little patient."-Youth's Companion.

The Atmosphere.

Even if it were possible for man to live without breathing air he could not exist on the earth if it were without an atmosphere. Plants derive carbon, the most important element of their food, from the air, and without plants there could be no food for animals and therefore no human beings. Water also comes from the atmosphere, but if neither plants nor animals. If food and water could be supplied in some other way the world would still be unhabitable by plants, and animals owing to the severity of the cold. Without an atmosphere there would be no winds and consequently no waves or ocean currents. The sea-if we may suppose one to have been supplied by some unknown cause-would be a stagnant pool, uninhabitable by seaweed or fish.

American Buyer In London. "My American accent came near to taxing me just 5400 on my last trip to London," remarked a chibman, "When I tried to buy a certain buildog pup there the kennel man priced it at $500. as he had me sized up as an American and, in his regard, an easy mark. I made a deal with a cabby at the hotel stand, who went around and bought the same pup for me at $60, a very fair price, as the dog will never be a show winner. I gave a $10 tip to the cabman, so I made $430 by employing an agent who called his hansom an 'ansom and his horse an 'orse."-New York Sun.

Jackdaw and Magpie.

In England the daw is hardly ever mentioned but as Jack, yet daw and not jackdaw is the proper name of the species. It is suggested that the ple owes the "mag" to some corruption of Margaret or Meg. To mag is to chatter, but whether the verb was derived from the name or the name from the verb is a question. It is more than probable that the Jim Crow of America (the old name for a negro boy) was brought across from England in the
