He was united in marriage to Miss Eveline Jane Cadwallder, February 17, 1846 Over sixty years they were permitted to travel life's journey together, sharing each others joys and sorrows. From this aged home death has strangely been kept away until now. In sixty years many homes have been founded, reared and dissolved, but this one has been kept intact until now. This indeed is unusual. Three sons live to call the name and character of their father blessed. David Emosy, of Girard, Kansas; William Fletcher, of Plainfield, and Horatio Benner, of Fremont, Neb., with their mother, who is now in her ninety-fourth year, with the perfect control of all her mental faculties, are comforted and inspired by the memories of these years which testify to them of the fidelity and fortitude of their loved one recently called from labor to rest.

The deceased went west in 1869 and settled in the vicinity of Plainfield, on what is known as the Wagner farm, and for twenty-five years was employed in farming. Seven years ago he moved to Plainfield and has been living there since.
