

The Age of Machinery.

We live in the age of machinery. The thinking, directing mind becomes daily of more account, while mere brawn falls correspondingly in value from day to day. That eccentric philosopher, Elbert Hubbard, says in one of his essays, "Where a machine will do better work than the human hand, we prefer to let the machine do the work."

It has been but a few years since the cotton gin, the "spinning jenny" and the power loom displaced the hand picker, the spinning wheel and the hand loom; since the reaper and binder, the rake and tedder, the mowing machine took the place of the old cradle, scythe, pitchfork and hand rake; since the friction match superseded the flint and tinder; since the modern paint factory replaced the slab and muller, the paint pot and paddle.

In every case where machinery has been introduced to replace hand labor, the laborers have resisted the change; and as the weavers, the sempstresses, and the farm laborers protested against new-fangled looms, sewing machines and agricultural implements, so in more recent times compositors have protested against typesetting machines, glass blowers against bottle-blowing machines, and painters against ready mixed paints. And as in the case of these short-sighted classes of an earlier day, so with their imitators of to-day, the protest will be in vain. It is a protest against civilization, against the common weal, against their own welfare.

The history of all mechanical improvements shows that workmen are the first to be benefited by them. The invention of the sewing machine, instead of throwing thousands of women out of employment, increased the demand to such an extent that thousands of women have been employed, at better wages, for shorter hours and easier work where hundreds before worked in laborious misery to eke out a pitiable existence. It was so with spinning and weaving machinery, with agricultural implements—in fact, it is so with every notable improvement. The multiplication of books in the last decade is a direct result of the invention of linotype machinery and fast presses.

The mixed paint industry, in which carefully designed paints for house painting are prepared on a large scale by special machinery, is another improvement of the same type. The cheapness and general excellence of these products has so stimulated the consumption of paint that the demand for the services of painters has correspondingly multiplied. Before the advent of these goods a well-painted house was noticeable from its rarity, whereas to-day an ill-painted house is conspicuous.

Nevertheless the painter, as a rule, following the example set by the weavers, the sempstresses and the farm laborers of old, almost to a man, oppose the improvement. It is a real improvement, however, and simply because of that fact the sale of such products has increased until during the present year it will fall not far short of 90,000,000 or 100,000,000 gallons.

Hindsight is always better than foresight, and most of us who deplore the short-sightedness of our ancestors would do well to see that we do not in turn furnish "terrible examples" to our posterity.

P. G.

Cruelty To The Guinea-pig.
"Did you know, papa, that if you sold a guinea-pig by the tail its eyes will drop out?"
His father laughed outright.
"Why who in wonder told you such stuff, Louis?"
"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge, "and it's so—yes, sir."

"Oh, nonsense," said his father, still laughing.
"Well, you go to the cage and hold me up, and you'll see."

Just to humor the boy, the father went out. In a moment he came back looking—well just like a man that's been badly sold.
"The little rascal got me that time," he said to a friend.
"But I don't see the point," said the friend.
"Don't you?"
"No."
"Well, guinea-pigs have no tails."

FADED TO A SHADOW.
Worn Down by Five Years of Suffering From Kidney Complaint.

Mrs. Remette Myers, of 189 South Tenth St., Ironton, O., says: "I have worked hard in my time and have been exposed again and again to changes of weather. It is no wonder my kidneys gave out and I went all at pieces at last. For five years I was fading away and finally so weak that for six months I could not get out of the house. I was nervous, restless and sleepless at night, and lame and sore in the morning. Sometimes everything would whirl and blur before me. I bloated so badly I could not wear tight clothing, and had to put on shoes two sizes larger than usual. The urine was disordered and passages were dreadfully frequent. I got help from the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and by the time I had taken four boxes the pain and bloating were gone. I have been in good health ever since."

FURNISHING THE SEWING ROOM.
A sewing room should, if possible, be fitted up with all the necessities of work. It should contain a pier glass, and opposite it one belonging to a chiffonier. There should be a long table, a manikin, a rack, a hamper, sewing machine and baskets for pieces and patterns.

A NEW CRADLE.
The latest cradle invention is in the form of a boat, and instead of rocking from side to side swings lengthways. Its inventor claims that this is the way in which a baby should be rocked and that sideways rocking is liable to injure a child's eyes.—Home Chat.

TO LAUNDRY MOURNING.
A good laundress is what is needed to solve a serious problem for the woman who wears mourning, particularly in the summer. Black goods not only look warm, but are warm, and the black lawns and sheer goods are avoided by most women because it is generally thought that they cannot be laundered with much success.

A certain laundress who is well known among her clients as an authority on all matters of soap and water and starch, offers the following directions, which will bring the best results if attended to carefully.
Dissolve a heaping tablespoonful of black starch in two tablespoons of lukewarm water. Then pour a quart of boiling water over it, stirring constantly until it gets perfectly clear, but do not let it boil.

Wash the dress in a little soapuds, just warm. Rinse in two buckets of cold water, with one teaspoon of vinegar and a handful of salt, says a writer on household hints. Dry the dress and then pour the black starch over it. Let the dress get a little bit dry, then roll it up, without sprinkling, and iron upon the wrong side, over a black cotton cloth. The dress will look as good as new.

An easier way to solve the problem is not to wear pure black in summer. All white is considered by many as almost as deep mourning as black.

LAMPS FOR DEN OR LIBRARY.
For studio, den or library the quaint old swing altar lamps in brass and silver have a fascination all their own. With these in the antique shops may be found interesting old wrought iron and brass lanterns, cut brass globes, crown chandeliers of brass intended for candles, many of them distinctly Flemish in character, others Italian and French.

One interesting old brass lamp in the form of a star is said to have been an old Hebrew temple lamp. Modern ingenuity has found a means of introducing tiny electric bulbs into many of these so that they give a dim but interesting glimmer in dark corners.

No light is as beautiful as candle light, and we have the candlestick in all shapes and sizes, in brass, wrought iron, pottery, and carved wood, from four inches high up to four feet, of old Flemish and Italian design in brass and iron, with points instead of cups for holding the candles, to the extremely modern flower forms in green bronze, pottery and mission wood.

There are candelabra, circular chandeliers, small looking glasses with candles on either side, and branching scones.

Many of the old designs are copied in brass, wrought iron, and copper, and new designs continually are being made the principal thought being for simplicity and grace of line and thorough artistic workmanship.
If the more expensive lamp is an impossibility, it is possible always to have a simple metal lamp with a plain porcelain shade, and that is far better than the department store absurdities, especially if the base is dark in color, absolutely without ornament, and the shade soft and dull in tone to make the light agreeable.

RECIPES.
Creamed Chicken.—Cook in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter and one of flour and when this mixture is well blended add a little chicken stock, cupful of roast chicken meat, cut into small dice, onion juice, salt and pepper to taste. Cook for ten minutes, stirring steadily, then add a minced hard-boiled egg and a cup of rich milk, heated, with a pinch of soda stirred in. Serve in paper cases if you wish.
Fruit Punch.—Peel and cut small six lemons and six oranges. Add these fruits a cup each of two kinds of berries (if they happen to be in season), a cup of minced pineapple, a cup of minced banana, one of white grapes (seeded) and one of Maraschino cherries. Boil a pint of water with a cup of granulated sugar for ten minutes; take from the fire, strain and add the fruits. When ready to serve turn into a punch bowl, add a large block of ice and two quarts of apollinaris or seltzer water.
A French Dessert.—Heat one cupful of maple syrup in a double boiler, then add the yolks of four well-beaten eggs and stir until thick; when cold, add one quart of whipped cream and set it in the freezer. Pack with ice and salt, and allow it to stand for three or four hours. Do not turn the freezer.

Beef Tea.—Cut lean beef into small pieces, put them into a jar with tight cover and place jar in kettle of cold water. Bring to a boil, cooking meat until juice is extracted.

COMMERCIAL COLUMN.

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:
"Money market irregularity had no ill effect on legitimate business and prices of securities quickly rallied when gold imports were arranged. Scarcity of labor is a much more important trade influence, restricting production of factories and causing delays in harvesting of crops, while structural work is also retarded. Fall jobbing trade is making progress, shipping departments forwarding goods as rapidly as possible. Leading centers are crowded by interior buyers, who place liberal orders, especially for wearing apparel. Quotations are well maintained and some improvement is noted in collections. A seasonal increase appears in retail trade at most points, although urgency of work on the farms limits business in those sections. Wholesale reports from the iron and steel industry and expectation of large crops have developed a tone of confidence in the commercial world that makes the outlook bright and encourages new undertakings. Resumption of work at window-glass factories has been deferred because of the large stocks on hand; but in most industries there is more complaint on account of inadequate supplies."
"Textile markets still show evidences of conservatism among buyers, although mills are busy and confidence in the future is not impaired. Only a seasonable amount of new business has appeared at New England footwear markets, but the tone is less firm."
Failures this week in the United States as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., are 133, against 170 last week, 167 the preceding week and 180 the corresponding week last year.

Successful Men Who Were Not Rich.

We have fallen under a universal witchcraft, declares Francis Bellamy, in Everybody's Magazine. A sense of the power and luxury in money, beyond all the wonder tales, has suddenly come to us. It has turned our fashionable society into a materialism which is no longer ashamed of its poverty of heart; it is sceptical and merciless of motives; its smartest relish is for the strokes and ruses of the manipulators of finance. In times like these, it is good to remember Agassiz, who refused to lecture at $500 a night because he was too busy to make money; Charles Sumner, who declined to lecture at any price because, he said, as senator, all his time belonged to Massachusetts; Spurgeon, who refused to come to America to deliver fifty lectures at $1,000 a night, saying he could do better—he could stay in London and try to save fifty souls; and Emerson, who steadfastly declined to increase his income beyond $1,200 because he wanted his time to think. Such stories of fine haughtiness did not seem quixotic to the young men in college thirty years ago. A generous idealism was abroad, and it was unashamed.

A Disclaimer.
Rat-a-tat!
The old soldier stood on the doorstep and listened.
"Washing day," he muttered; "no luck here, that's pretty sure."
"I expect it's only another bothering beggar—drat 'em!" muttered the sharp-faced woman within, as she hastily snatched her hands from the steaming washtub and marched grimly forward to meet the base disturber of washing day's ancient rites and ceremonies.

"If ye please, mum," muttered the ancient hero, "I've lost my leg—"
"Well, I ain't got it!" snapped the woman fiercely.

Girl Babies in Lapland.
In Lapland as soon as a girl baby is born and has been duly rolled in the snow—a ceremony which seems to take the place of baptism—she is dowered by her father with a certain number of reindeer, which are branded with her initials and kept apart as her special property. In proportion as they increase and multiply does her chance of making a good match improve.

Silence Assured.
A certain grave and dignified senator recently took a trip around to New York by sea. A few hours out of Norfolk it came on to blow from the northeast, kicking up a nasty sea, and the ship stood first on one end and then on the other, between times trying to roll her boilers out. The senator was dreadfully seasick. Stepping from his stateroom he ran plump into a lady who was passing from one room to another in most embarrassing scant attire. The lady looked as if she would like to sink through the floor.
"Be reassured, madam," said the senator, "I shall never live to tell it."

The Crown Of Gold.
"The late Paul Laurence Dunbar, the negro poet," said an editor, "once addressed a Sunday School in New York. I heard the address. It was delightful. An odd incident happened, though, at the end, an incident that Dunbar laughed at as heartily as the rest of us."
"Dunbar, toward the close of his remarks," said:
"And, my little friends, if you do all these things some day you will wear a gold crown. Yes, each of you some day will wear a gold crown."
"A little chap in the front row, catching the poet's friendly eye, piped:
"My fader wears one now."
"No," said the poet.
"Yes, he does—on his toof," said the little chap."—New York Tribune.

WELL PEOPLE TOO.
Wise Doctor Gives Postum to Convalescents.
A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.
"Five years ago," writes a doctor, "I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee. I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale.
"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes.
"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat, and with the best results.
"When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice.
"In convalescence from pneumonia, typhoid fever and other cases, I give it as a liquid, easily absorbed diet. You may use my letter as a reference any way you see fit." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville" in pages.
"There's a reason."

It was once told to a certain king of England that Lord Blank was his politest subject. "I will test him," said the king and showed Lord Blank the door for him to enter first, which he did. "You are right," said the king. "A lesser man would have troubled me with ceremony."

WORST FORM OF ECZEMA
Black Spots All Over Face—Affected Paris Now Clear as Ever—Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black spots all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of my town. After thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good. Finally my husband purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticura-Resolvent in connection with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every spot was entirely gone and the affected parts were left as clear as ever. The Cuticura Remedies not only cured me of that dreadful disease, eczema, but other complaints which as well, Lizzie E. Sledge, 240 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1905."

WOMEN'S NEGLECT

SUFFERING THE SURE PENALTY

Health Thus Lost Is Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

More than likely you speak the same words yourself, and no doubt you feel far from well. The cause may be easily traced to some derangement of the female organs which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, headache, bearing-down pains, flatulency, nervousness, sleeplessness, or other female weakness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless that danger is averted, or a serious operation is the inevitable result.

The never failing remedy for all these symptoms is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Miss Kate McDonald of Woodbridge, N. J., writes:
"Dear Mrs. Pinkham: Restored health has meant so much to me that I cannot help from telling about it for the sake of other suffering women."
"For a long time I suffered untold agony with a female trouble and irregularities, which made me a physical wreck, and no one thought I would recover. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me, and made me well and strong, and I feel it my duty to tell other suffering women what a splendid medicine it is."
For twenty-five years Mrs. Pinkham's daughter-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction, and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful. Address, Lynn, Mass.
